SCOTTSBORO CASE REVERSED

Today

The Last Day.
Excuses for Many Things.
None for Starvation.
Polite Money Questions.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS IS the last day. Tonight you hear Mr. Coolidge "on the air." Then comes the voting, those that vote this time eclipsing in numbers all previous elections.

Heavy registration tells experienced politicians what the result will be.

THE NATIONAL Broadcasting Company, as a free contribution to public information, will send out the election news on a nationwide hookup, and Mr. Aylesworth, head of the broadcasting company, has invited this writer to be present and occasionally "make a few remarks," telling the microphone what is happening.

The chief remark, which can be made in advance, is this:

Regardless of votes and results, this country will go ahead, gradually pulling itself out of the mud of depression, slowly, perhaps, but surely, overcoming the effects of the great, bloody and stupid war.

Nothing can stop the progress of a country that sincerely wants peace and the happiness and prosperity of all its people, a country that even now has only one complaint, that it has TOO MUCH of everything.

WITH A BAD, perhaps dangerous winter ahead, those in power should have in mind the fact that no one should go hungry in the United States.

There is excuse for lack of employment, with shrunken payrolls in every factory. There is excuse for everything in this depression, which is part of world-wide troubles. BUT THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR HUNGER.

This country has the food, the government has the money. The food should be put within the reach of every hungry man, woman and child.

AND THAT is a job for the nation to attend to, through competent men, and best of all, probably through officers and men of the Army and Navy. It is not a job for any private agency, Red Cross, Salvation Army, or any benevolent group of dear ladies or worthy busybodies.

"America must have the dole."

There is no doubt that dole in England was necessary; and inevitable, with revolution as the alternative.

Here the dole is dreaded, especially by those that would be taxed to pay it. And it may be avoided here, but only by preventing absolute hunger.

Ours, as Lord Northcliffe said, is a very docile people. But its docility ends this side of starvation. When an American mob does start, it is the most dangerous mob in the world. Those that do not know it should read "The Mob," by the late Prof. Shaler, of Harvard, and learn what a mob in motion means.

IN A PREFACE to his essays, Montaigne remarks, quoted from memory:

"He who tells me that I know nothing, tells me what I already know."

Any high financier who tells this writer that he knows nothing about finance, tells also what is already known.

Nevertheless, will some learned financier kindly answer these questions:

What is the difference, in value, between a government bond, bearing four or five per cent interest, and slips of green paper with the government's promise to pay as many dollars?

IN THE BIG war the government's Liberty GOLD bond for one thousand dollars could be bought for about eight hundred dollars.

And, at the same time, the government's little green one dollar bill did not drop at all. In fact you could buy a $1,000 gold bond for about 800 of those one dollar bills, in spite of the fact that, plainly written on the green slip, it says "one SILVER dollar, payable to the bearer on demand."

Eight hundred little GREENBACKS calling for eight hundred SILVER dollars could buy a $1,000 gold bond. WHY?

THE APPROACHING Congress may vote to pay the soldiers' bonus of two and a quarter billions now, when veterans need the money, instead of paying, as the bonus must eventually be paid, several years later.

If the government issues gold bonds for two and a quarter billions, paying, say, four per cent, that will cost the taxpayers just one hundred million dollars a year in interest. And there is little doubt that the bonds would again fall below par.

If the government prints currency and gives it to the veterans, taxpayers will save the $100,000,000 a year and the currency will NOT fall below par.

WOULD THE color of the paper make any difference to the government's credit? Would it have sound credit if it ran more deeply into debt to the tune of two and a quarter billions, signing its name to pieces of yellow paper, bearing interest and promising to pay gold? And would its credit be forever ruined if it increased its indebtedness, its promises to pay, by signing pieces of green paper, bearing NO interest?

Would not saving $100,000,000 a year interest help government credit? It would surely help taxpayers.

SOLEMN HIGH finance will say:

"Ah, but if you print two billions of greenbacks, you

RUSE SAVES RESTAURANT CASH FROM ROBBER

Employe Gives Outlaw $13, Protects Big Sum in Safe

A quick-thinking girl cashier saved the weekly payroll of Thompson's Restaurant, 435 Market street, this morning, by handing over a small sum in the cash drawer to a note-threat robber as he staged his second holdup in 10 days.

A poorly-dressed man, keeping one hand inside his coat as if holding a revolver, pushed a note scrawled on brown wrapping paper to Margaret Huffman, 24, cashier.

The note read:

"Warning. Do not make a fuss or I'll shoot to kill."

Apparently knowing this was pay day and a large sum was in a safe at the girl's feet, the robber in a low tone, demanded:

Like a flash she replied:

"There isn't any money in that safe. Here, take this."

She handed him about $13 from the register and he ran out. Fifteen patrons in the restaurant were unaware of the holdup.

Miss Huffman tapped the bell to summon the manager, William Lacey. He was in the basement and by the time he arrived the robber had disappeared.

Miss Huffman described him as of medium height with ruddy complexion. This description, police say, matches that of the robber who held up another downtown restaurant in a similar manner recently.

Miss Huffman lives at 97 Watsonia boulevard.

POLL INDICATES LANDSLIDE

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A large proportion of the 4,500,000 plurality landslide that will sweep Gov. Roosevelt into the presidency will be piled up in the Democratic solid border states, the normally Republican states of the grain belt, such debatable central states as Illinois and Indiana and an almost complete sweep of the Rocky Mountain and the Pacific Coast areas.

The geographic distribution of the Roosevelt strength is plainly evident from returns in the nationwide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in cooperation with all other Hearst newspapers in the United States.

A detailed analysis of the returns state by state and within the states down to the individual counties is used as the basis for estimating Roosevelt's plurality over President Hoover at 4,500,000. In this analysis detailed estimates

Indian Summer Rain Due for Election

Indian summer weather with light showers likely will greet voters of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania tomorrow—election day.

Today's mild temperature, near the all time record of this date, will be duplicated tomorrow, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. There will be nothing to prevent a large outpouring at the polls, he said, though umbrellas may be needed.

A similar brand of weather will prevail throughout Pennsylvania, according to the official forecast.

East of the Mississippi scattered showers are held probable tomorrow, while western states will have fair skies for the march to the polls.

Hoover Scores 'Hate;' Roosevelt on Tour

Democratic Nominee Greets Friends in Home Area

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

EN ROUTE WITH GOV. ROOSEVELT IN HUDSON RIVER VALLEY, HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 7.—In a drizzling rain, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt set out this afternoon from his Hyde Park home for a 100-mile "sentimental" motor tour among his old friends and neighbors on both sides of the Hudson River.

He observed as he climbed into his car:

"The rain is a sure indication of Democratic weather."

For 20 years on the day before election, whether or not he was a candidate for public office, Gov. Roosevelt has made it a point to visit the "home folks," who started him on his political career as a state senator.

Gov. Roosevelt spent the morning working on his final speech of the campaign, which will be delivered in Columbus Hall, Poughkeepsie. He will outline the steps which he proposes to take in the event of his election to restore

President Charges 'Irresponsible' Tactics

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

MORMON TABERNACLE, SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 7.—By "misrepresentation" and "irresponsible" tactics, the Democrats have sought to build up a "personal hate" against the administration that is designed to elect Franklin D. Roosevelt tomorrow.

This was the charge made today by President Hoover in his final campaign speech, delivered at Salt Lake City before a packed crowd in the Mormon Tabernacle. The President said:

"That is making politics out of human misery."

APPEAL TO VOTE

Tonight, over the radio, Mr. Hoover will ask all citizens to exercise their franchise. Insofar as review of the issues at stake in the campaign were concerned, however, he spoke his last word here.

Grand Jury Meets In Cleanup Drive

Eight hundred cases, many of them resulting from Judge Frank P. Patterson's drive against speakeasies and the numbers racket, were to be presented before the November grand jury, which convened today.

Judge Patterson charged the jury, made up of 16 men and one woman. Hugo Potter, 620 West Burgess street, was made foreman.

ROOSEVELT TRIUMPH SEEN

40,000,000 Expected To Go to Polls Tomorrow

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—With every surface indication pointing to Democratic victory, the presidential campaign was whooped to a close today by battalions of orators in every state.

At their head were the principals. Nothing could better illustrate the intensity and effort of this campaign than the fact that President Hoover chose to spend the last day fighting vigorously in the Far West, while Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt elected to make a final whirlwind tour of the Hudson river valley.

Tonight both will go on the air and address country-wide audiences in an effort to get out the vote.

Unless all signs fail, it will be the largest vote ever cast in an American election. Almost 47,000,000 people are eligible to vote and have signified their intention of doing so by registering. Probably 40,000,000 of them will enter the booths.

It has been, and continues to be in the final hours, a most unusual campaign, one perhaps without parallel in the political history of the nation.

To the exuberant and confident Democrats, this spells victory tomorrow in the election of Gov. Roosevelt. To apprehensive and troubled Republicans, it constitutes an ominous forewarning of defeat.

But the Republicans remain doggedly hopeful.

ASKS TROOPERS FOR POLLS HERE

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—State police protection will be necessary in Allegheny County tomorrow, Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, told Gov. Pinchot today. In a wire to the executive at his home in Milford, Van Dyke asserted:

"Citizens, after losing homes, jobs and savings are not in frame of mind to have their vote forcibly controlled by corporations or stolen by bold election boards. Have great fear of election day disturbances if corporations persist in coercive and threatening tactics."

Van Dyke said the aid of Gov. Pinchot in protecting Allegheny citizens was asked after receipt of numerous complaints of coercion by corporations in that county.

By telephone from Milford, Gov. Pinchot told the Sun-Telegraph:

"If the sheriff of Allegheny County—or any county—informs me that the situation is beyond his control, then I should act on any request for the state police. But until then I shall do nothing."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Representative Ragon, of Arkansas, chairman of the House Campaign Fund Investigation Committee, today said a number of committee investigators were in Pennsylvania to guard against irregularities in the elections Tuesday.

Taken From River After Bridge Plunge

An unidentified man about 70 years old leaped or fell into the Allegheny River from the Sixty-second Street Bridge today, was rescued and taken to the St. Francis Hospital in a serious condition.

Police said he climbed to the rail of the bridge. Screams of Mrs. Emma Brown, of 1204 Sawyer street, attracted the attention of A. F. Stratiff, 7311 Butler street, and William Knightley, who lives in a houseboat on the river. They rescued the man.

Mr. Hearst's Views Are Perfectly Plain; Mr. Hoover Should Not Misstate Them

MR. HOOVER, IN HIS farewell tour of the country—his positively last appearance on this or any other stage—is perverting the truth in a manner somewhat unbecoming a President or even a private citizen with a due regard for the proprieties.

Perhaps the President does not mean to pervert the truth. Perhaps his whole disastrous failure in office has been partly due to a certain incapacity to be quite honest with himself or with anybody else.

Mr. Hoover declares that Mr. William R. Hearst is opposed "to the disarmament conference now in progress."

Mr. Hearst is not opposed to disarmament conferences, but is opposed to the United States giving up everything in these conferences and obtaining nothing of value to itself or to humanity.

Our diplomats seem to be either snobbishly susceptible to the blandishments of foreign powers or else incapable, through lack of experience or adequate training in duplicity, to contend with the shrewd and practiced deceit of foreign diplomats.

AS A RESULT of the first disarmament conference the United States scrapped battleships, while England only scrapped blueprints, and the United States furthermore accepted limitations on the freedom of action of its own ships, such as limitations on the inclination of the guns, regardless of what might be the most effective line of fire.

In the second disarmament conference, the United States abandoned the cruiser size and design, which all naval experts agreed were necessary for our requirements, and accepted the size and design of cruiser which Great Britain desired and which were entirely unsuited to our requirements.

We also raised the naval quota of Japan from six to seven, and inasmuch as Japan and Great Britain are secret naval allies, the proportion of Japan and England is now seventeen to ten against us.

IN THE PRESENT disarmament conference the most dangerous proposition of all has been made by France and—according to dispatches—favorably received by our government.

This proposal is that we enter into an agreement to protect France from attack.

And this means that we agree to inject ourselves into European wars, and so continually suffer the disastrous consequences we are now enduring.

This "security pact," so-called, in which France gets all the security and we invite all the dangers and disasters, is one of the greatest menaces which has ever threatened our nation, and Mr. William R. Hearst does maintain that if this country cannot go into disarmament conferences without surrendering the best interests, and even the independence of our nation, we would better keep out of foreign entanglements, where we are so little able to protect our elemental rights.

MR. HOOVER REFLECTS upon Mr. William R. Hearst for advocating a five billion dollar prosperity loan to finance an extensive program of public works to give work to the unemployed, and so provide the workers with the purchasing power which is essential to the revival of prosperity.

Mr. Hoover should hardly criticise Mr. Hearst for this, because Mr. Hearst got the idea directly from Mr. Hoover

When Mr. Hoover was striving for the nomination for President four years ago, he met Mr. Hearst at Mr. Louis B. Mayer's home in Santa Monica and proceeded to outline to Mr. Hearst a great nation-wide program of public works, em-

13 PICKETING HIGH COURT ARRESTED

Reds Beaten as They Attempt to Parade On Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court today set aside the death sentences imposed on seven Negroes at Scottsboro, Ala.

The ruling by the court means that the cases will go back to Alabama courts for a new trial.

The highest court upheld the contention of counsel for the Negroes, convicted of attacking two white girls, that they had not had a fair trial.

In the decision, which ordered the case back for another trial, Justice Sutherland said the question whether the Fourteenth Amendment guaranteed the right of counsel had not been previously decided by the highest court. He then pointed out at length the need of counsel for preparation of cases to preserve the rights of litigants.

He said counsel should actively participate in such a case to prevent what might be termed "judicial murder."

Before the decision had been handed down 13 persons were arrested and an officer sent to a hospital today as the result of a brisk clash on Capitol grounds between a group of demonstrators and police, including Charles Israel, 30, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The group, comprising about 100, marched up Capitol Hill toward the Supreme Court to demand freedom for the eight Scottsboro Negroes.

Capitol authorities had told the demonstrators ahead of time that they would not be allowed to parade. There was a short but sharp struggle. Night sticks rose and fell. In a few minutes most of the marchers were headed back the way they came.

The injured policeman, George Walker, was set upon outside the entrance to the Capitol grounds. He was beaten and kicked.

CURTIS FREED IN LINDY HOAX

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—John Hughes Curtis, who was convicted of obstructing justice in the Lindbergh kidnap case, was freed today, Judge Adam O. Robbins suspending operation of his one-year sentence.

When the prison term was suspended Curtis paid the $1,000 fine which was imposed on his conviction and walked from the court with all charges against him lifted. He had been out on bail pending appeal from the original sentence.

Before the formal court action releasing him, there was one report he would be freed because of valuable information given authorities since his trial.

Curtis played a prominent part in the kidnap case, announcing that he was in touch with the kidnapers and negotiating with them for return of the infant son of Col. Lindbergh.

He directed Col. Lindbergh and police on numerous efforts to make contact with the kidnapers, and Col. Lindbergh was on one such errand when word came that the child had been found dead.

ROOSEVELT LANDSLIDE INDICATED IN FINAL HEARST POLL

N.Y. GOVERNOR LIKELY TO WIN BY 4,500,000

were made of the anticipated majorities in each state on the face of the poll retrns.

In arriving at these majority estimates four separate calculations were made, first on the basis of the total poll vote of the state; second, the vote by individual counties; third, the division of the vote as between men and women, and fourth, an adjustment of these three of the 1928 party affiliation of the poll voters, to show the shift of Republicans to the Democratic side and vice versa.

N. Y. TO BE CLOSE

New York State promises to be so close that returns from practically every county will have to be in to determine finally where its 47 electoral votes will be placed.

On the face of these returns applied to the total vote cast in the 1928 election New York leans to President Hoover by an estimated majority of 74,831. The calculations indicate a majority of 556,262 in the five boroughs of New York with President Hoover having a prospective majority from the rest of the state of 631,093.

Inasmuch as New York State cast approximately 4,250,000 votes in 1928, an indicated Hoover majority of less than 75,000 makes the state definitely doubtful, though credited, on the face of the poll returns to Hoover.

MASS. FOR HOOVER

Massachusetts, which the Democrats carried four years ago, shows an indicated Hoover majority of 502,839, with the Republicans taking every county in the state, including Suffolk (Boston). However, the poll returns do not reflect any swing to Roosevelt that may have resulted in and around Boston as the result of the personal campaigning in that area by Gov. Smith in the last fortnight.

It is to be expected, therefore, that this half million indicated majority will be considerably reduced, though the state should go to Hoover.

Connecticut returns indicate a 26,469 Hoover majority, worked out county by county, with all counties going Republican. This also is subject to alteration for the same reason as Massachusetts.

Rhode Island, the only other eastern state to go Democratic in 1928, indicates from the poll a 4,729 Hoover majority, all counties going Republican. Once more an adjustment of the estimate may be expected from the last-minute shifting.

The other three New England states showed indicated Hoover majorities respectively of 35,516 Maine, 7,445 in New Hampshire and 20,560 in Vermont.

HOOVER CUT IN PENNA.

Pennsylvania, almost an even million four years ago, has seen such a turnover in this campaign that Hoover has an indicated lead of only 126,448. The city of Philadelphia divided its poll replies exactly even. The result there will depend on the ballot box count. Pittsburgh and Allegheny County lean to Roosevelt. In six outside congressional districts Roosevelt shows majorities while Hoover leads in 16.

Ohio, the one state in the central group that leans to Hoover in the poll, shows an indicated majority of 37,692. It is the dry woman vote that apparently accounts for Hoover's Ohio advantage. The men in that state divided within less than 1,000 difference out of approximately 30,000 poll votes, but the women gave Hoover a 6½ to 5 advantage.

Michigan is in line to give Roosevelt 39,667 over Hoover. Detroit and Wayne County show 74,429 in Roosevelt's favor. The Sixth Congressional District immediately adjoining adds 19,449 and the Seventh, also adjoining Wayne, 2,389, while the Second, immediately south of Detroit, shows 1,174 Democratic. Roosevelt's one other area is the Eleventh District, up along the straits. The rest of Michigan belongs to Hoover.

INDIANA DEMOCRATIC

Indiana comes through with an indicated Roosevelt majority of 56,849. He shows dominant in eight of the 12 congressional districts.

It is almost a complete sweep for Roosevelt in Illinois with an indicated majority of 370,276. Cook County accounts for 204,798 of this. Hoover has the Tenth and Eleventh districts surrounding Cook by 6,454.

Every other district in Illinois shows a Roosevelt majority. The closest one being the Thirteenth, spreading along the north border of the state.

Wisconsin shows as complete a Roosevelt sweep as Illinois. The indicated majority there is 211,988. Milwaukee accounts for 100,199 of this.

Iowa, President Hoover's birthplace, shows an indicated Roosevelt majority of 80,213. Only one district in this state has favored Hoover in the poll, that being the sixth, including Des Moines, which gives him an indicated advantage of 3,445.

Kansas, the home state of Vice President Curtis, and a Hoover state consistently throughout the period of the poll, shows an indicated Republican majority of 36,030. Five of the seven districts lean to Hoover.

NORRIS IS FACTOR

Nebraska, with the aid of Senator Norris, Progressive Republican, comes through with an indicated Roosevelt majority of 79,864, every district in the state going Democratic.

Missouri leaves no doubt as to its position by returning an indicated Roosevelt majority of 142,943 and it probably, when the returns are in election day, will double that figure so general is the Democratic sweep of the state.

In the Rocky Mountain area of the Far West, Hoover appears to have one state and only one certain. That is Colorado, but his majority there is indicated to be only 7,735.

Utah, the real surprise of the mountains, it appears, will go Democratic by a 28,101 margin.

Out on the Pacific coast only one state at any time has appeared to give Hoover even a fighting chance and that is Oregon. The indicated Roosevelt majority is 37,750, distributed almost equally among the three congressional districts.

UPHEAVAL IN CAL. SEEN

California, which decided the Wilson-Hughes contest by going Democratic in 1916, was a piker then compared with what it promises to do for Roosevelt 16 years later. California's Roosevelt majority is going to be somewhere between a half and three-quarters of a million with every single congressional district from Oregon to the Mexican border on the Roosevelt side.

If the figure tops 700,000, which appears altogether likely, Los Angeles County can be credited with half of it. San Francisco County has an indicated Roosevelt lead of 90,000 and Alameda, across the bay, 30,000. The other districts range in proportion according to their population and voting strength.

Coming back East to the southern border states, little Delaware indicates a 4,790 Roosevelt majority.

Maryland is safely Democratic this time after having gone Republican four years ago by 78,000. It will give Roosevelt twice that majority the indicated figure being 148,555. Baltimore city will return more than half of this. Roosevelt gets every district in Maryland.

Red banners fluttered over a cheering throng in Madison Square Garden last night as Foster, speaking by telephone from his Bronx home, denounced Republicans, Democrats and Socialists.

Leaving here, the Governor headed for Beacon, 20 miles down the river, where in 1910 he made his first political speech as a candidate for the State Senate. He planned to speak as a candidate for the presidency on the same spot where he launched his political career as a youth just out of Harvard.

In a personal letter to the voters in the little town of Hyde Park, Gov. Roosevelt today appealed for the support of his home community. He wrote:

'Dear Friend:

"The greatest happiness that election day can bring to me will be the news that you, my neighbors, supported me with your vote.

"Istand ready to give you the beest in me to furthering the interests of our nation, to the restoration of the prosperity that our people should enjay and to the upholding of the highest ideals of our beloved country.

HOOVER SCORES 'HATE' IN CAMPAIGN

tain terms. He declared that all of the charges lodged against him were baseless and countered with the suggestion that most of the promises made by Gov. Roosevelt could not be eventuated—or else were in accord with proposals already made from the White House.

Application of the Democratic program, the President said, would destroy those principles upon which the nation was based and force America to join the "decaying nations" of the world.

Mr. Hoover analyzed the strategy of his opponents for his audience. First, he said, they are relying on the "Solid South." Second, they would add their political brigades in the big cities. Then, by misrepresentations and nebular promises, which can never be fulfilled, they are appealing to the unemployed, the farmers, the miners and other ranks in which disaffection might be expected to be inspired easily.

The President declared:

"Their failure will be the rebuke of an honest-minded and thinking electorate."

SCORES ROOSEVELT

Turning to the topics which most interest this section of the country, Mr. Hoover denounced Gov. Roosevelt for his evasion on the subjects of beet sugar tariff and silver.

He reiterated the statement he made last night at Denver to the effect that duty-free sugar from the Philippines should be scaled downward, and observed:

"I do not need to reiterate that I stand flatly for the protective tariff. I stand for the protective tariff, which means always the preservation of the American market for the American producer. Further, I stand for the speedy repair of the breaches in its walls which have been made by the depreciation of foreign currencies."

At this point, the President pa tribute to Senator Smoot for having led the fight to take "tariff out of log-rolling."

On the subject of depressed silver, President Hoover called the attention of the western states to the fact that his was "the only administration in 30 years which has won for you the consideration of this question by the nations of the world."

KELLOGG PACT

One more major issue was discussed by the President. That concerned American application of the Kellogg peace pact. Afte lauding its purpose, he said:

"I have made but one reservation and that is that we wil join no movement that proposes to use military or economic force in its attempts to prevent war. For that is a contradiction of method."

In conclusion, the Preside said:

"And if it shall be the will o this nation that for anothe four years I shall continue to lead in the execution of their purposes, they may be assured, both by the pledge of past endeavor and by my solemn pledge for future endeavor, and by the further knowledge of my personal conviction and deep emotion on the subject, that then for yet another four years this nation shall continue to advance in leadership toward the precious goal of worldwide and enduring peace."

FINAL RESULTS IN HEARST NATION-WIDE POLL

Total Ballot By States

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The following tabulation shows the total vote by states recorded in the nation-wide postcard presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Based on these returns minimum majority estimates of the vote to be cast tomorrow have been calculated on the basis of the total presidential vote of each state in 1928.

In figuring these estimates, not only were the total poll ballots for each state taken into account but, also, the division of those ballots as between men and women; as to how they voted four years ago, and as to how each individual county in each state recorded itself in the poll.

In many states of the 36 allotted to Gov. Roosevelt, it is likely that majorities will run as much as 50 per cent higher than these estimates.

The estimates for California, for instance, worked out as high as 721,000 in the several calculations, whereas this table credits Roosevelt with only 494,000 majority in that state.

Roosevelt's Lead Shown

Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The final tabulation of returns in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, shows Gov. Roosevelt a 55 per cent favorite of the country's voters.

The Democratic candidate drew 350,282 of the 634,260 Hoover-Roosevelt postcard ballots against 283,978 for President Hoover, a Roosevelt majority of 66,304.

Roosevelt has held 93 per cent of the 1928 Democratic voters, only seven per cent of the 211,294 who voted Democratic four years ago indicating they intended to support Hoover. The Democratic vote divided 197,196 for Roosevelt and 14,068 for Hoover.

In contrast to this only 67 per cent of the Republicans of four years ago indicated they would support Hoover this year, the other 33 now backing Roosevelt. The 1928 Republicans divided 258,027 for Hoover and 125,997 for Roosevelt.

The remaining 389,972 poll voters who failed to indicate on their ballot cards how they voted in 1928 divided 70 per cent for Roosevelt and 30 per cent for Hoover, the Democratic candidate drawing 27,089 and the Republican, 11,883 of this group.

Woman 'Brings 'em Back Alive' With Pancakes

Mrs. Mary Bates, of Buttermilk Falls, near Idlewild Park in the Ligonier area, captured three of the terrors of the Laurel Ridge section by enticing them into her cellar with a mess of pancakes. From there she brought 'em back alive to the Idlewild Park zoo and collected a reward of $3 for each of them.

The simian reign of terror began several weeks ago when eight monkeys broke out of the zoo. Pantries were raided and residents and campers of the section were pelted with missiles as the monkeys roved through the tree tops.

Mrs. Bates' discovery of the monkeys' liking for pancakes was quite accidental. She was frying pancakes in her home Friday when three of the monkeys appeared. She coaxed the monks into the cellar and kept them there until park employes arrived.

The other five monkeys still are at large.

STUDENTS BOLT CLASSES TO CELEBRATE

Triangle Snakedance, Bonfire to Mark Grid Victory

State police blocked the Washington invasion of 300 shouting Duquesne University students today.

Classes at the university were deserted in celebration of Saturday's gridiron victory over Washington and Jefferson College, and the jubilant students marched to Washington to let the people there know about it.

But the W. & J. boys were ready for the reception, and, to avoid a possible disturbance, the Washington Mayor, Robert E. Griffiths, waited on the town's outskirts for the arrival of the Duquesne delegation.

Adam DiVinchiza, Duke cheer leader, said he was escorted before the president of the Washington college, Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, and was told the invasion was not wanted.

The troopers stayed until the cars were headed homeward. Returning to Pittsburgh, the students assembled on the campus and prepared for a snake dance downtown and a bonfire tonight.

The abduction occurred at Second avenue at Sixty-first street. The men, with gray hats pulled low over their foreheads, leaped from an automobile which had drawn up to the curb. They seized the boy after fighting off his aunt.

There was no dissension in the Marciante family, police said. The father recently sold a grocery store in the neighborhood.

The opinion expressed here is that the royal betrothal has been merely postponed, but as usual court officials are silent, owing, it is said, to pressure from the royal family.

may keep on, printing twenty and a hundred billions. Then what?"

You MIGHT, but you might NOT. The assumption is that the country would not go crazy. If you drank a glass of beer, in the old days, you might keep on and drink a gallon of brandy. But you might not.

The debt of the United States, all payable in gold, already exceeds in volume the total amount of gold in the world. There is nothing back of that debt but the nation's credit, the government's promise to pay, that you see on the humble one dollar greenback.

NOBODY WANTS inflated currency. Nobody wants unsound money. But if what you have to offer is the nation's promise to pay, and that is ALL you offer, why insist on paying interest, when you can print the money and save $100,000,000 a year?

If Uncle Sam prints the money it will cost him absolutely nothing, in interest, not a cent more than it would to pay the money years hence. And if he did print and distribute the money, would not the veterans soon take it to the stores, in every city, town and village in the country? Would not those new dollars be scattered like gentle rain, fertilizing prosperity everywhere, without causing any "currency flood?"

THESE QUESTIONS are asked in good faith, by one who knows that he knows nothing about money, and believes that high finance knows exactly as much. It is not the business of this column to tell Congress what to do about the bonus or anything else.

It may, however, be remarked that if you want to make plants grow, by irrigation, you must put the water at the roots. You cannot, as has been well said, "make a tree prosperous by watering the top branches only and neglecting the roots."

To make prosperity grow you must put money into the pockets of those that will spend it. Putting it in some financial reservoir and hoping that it will leak out and reach the spender is folly.

BROOKLINE FIRE BEING PROBED

A fire of mysterious origin, which swept through a two-story dwelling at 1400 Milan street, Brookline, was being investigated today by City Detective Michael Tortorelli, of the bomb and arson squad. One fireman was injured.

Tortorelli was notified after Fire Chief Henry Weirauch discovered an open three-quarter inch gas pipe feeding the flames.

The property and an adjoining building at 1402 Milan street, police said, was the property of Frank Buccerri, a contractor. Buccerri, with his wife and baby, resided on the first floor of the burned building. The second floor was unoccupied.

Buccerri and his family were absent at the time of the fire. Neighbors said they left yesterday afternoon.

When firemen were summoned, first by a still alarm, the entire interior of the building was on fire with waves of flames sweeping over the roof tops.

A year ago, Chief Weirauch said Buccerri's house adjoining the burned structure was damaged slightly by fire.

M. E. Gray, Father Of 5-Day Week, Dies

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Malcolm E. Gray, 66, nationally known as the originator of the five-day week and founder of the Rochester Can and Atlantic Stamping companies, died early today in Genesee Hospital of pneumonia.

The five-day week, put into operation in his plant January 2, 1922, was adopted by Henry Ford, who was a guest at Gray's home while studying the plan.

INSULL FINGERS BEADS TO CALM HIS NERVES

Shuns Interviews in Hospital; Guarded Pending Probe

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull, who will remain in a hospital while lawyers argue about his extradition to the United States, had his baggage moved over from his hotel today and sent out word that he would see no one until he has had time to rest.

The former Chicagoan was told by hospital physicians today he must smoke fewer cigars, and he was given a string of oriental beads to keep his hands occupied. The idea was to relieve him of nervousness.

On Saturday the Court of Appeals ruled that he must remain under detention until it is decided whether he is to be returned to America to answer an indictment arising from the collapse of the Middle West Utilities Company, which he controlled.

Premier Tsaldaris today said that Insull has not been convicted of any crime, and until he is, the Greek government will not act on the presumption of his guilt. He added:

"We don't know whether he is guilty or not, and the only thing to do now is to leave the matter of his extradition to Greek justice on the basis of the Greek treaty with America. For the time being, Greece is responsible for him. Since he is ill, we have ordered his transfer to a hospital where he will be well guarded."

The American government, meanwhile, has two months in which to present a warrant and evidence against the prisoner. (Two assistant state's attorneys are en route from Chicago to Greece.)

HITLER ATTACK ON BERLIN FEARED

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Adolf Hitler, spurred to action by heavy losses for his National Socialist party in the Reichstag elections, issued a manifesto today announcing an unrelenting battle to force Chancellor Franz von Papen out of office.

The fiery Nazi leader claimed von Papen was defeated at the polls despite the gains for the Nationalists, declaring the Chancellor had the backing of only 10 per cent of the nation.

HITLER BLAMES VON PAPEN

Hitler blamed Von Papen and his administration of the government as the direct cause of the great Communist gains throughout the country.

Hitler's Nazis lost 35 Reichstag seats. It was the first time since formation of the party that it had failed to register gains at the polls. The election generally was interpreted as the death knell of the Hitler movement.

The expected indecisive result of the elections plunged Germany into political chaos again.

After hearing rumors that Hitler's storm troops, indignant at their poor showing at the polls, were planning a march on Berlin, the government ordered troops held in readiness to crush any attempt at a putsch.

HARMONY APPEAL

In answer to the Hitler blast, a spokesman for Chancellor Von Papen declared that the government was satisfied with the outcome of the election. He said:

"The government is ready, however, to broaden the base of the cabinet and receive with open arms everybody willing to co-operate."

Plans to replace Von Papen with some chancellor less antagonistic to the Nazis were shelved temporarily. The cabinet will attempt to strengthen its position in order to avoid endless dissolutions of the new Reichstag, which meets for the first time on December 6.

TROPICAL GALE PERILS CUBA

Associated Press.

A tropical hurricane destroyed one vessel and hid the fate of another today as it snaked its way up the Caribbean toward Cuba.

The American schooner Abundance was wrecked off eastern Jamaica by high winds apparently attending the storm yesterday, but its crew of six was saved.

The Blue Funnel freighter Phemius radioed that she was struck by the storm 150 miles east of Cape Gracias a Dios, Nicaragua. The liner Ariguani went to the rescue, but could not find the Phemius in the position given.

The national observatory at Havana in its midnight bulletin said the hurricane was 100 miles northeast of Cape Gracias a Dios, moving northwestward toward Yucatan channel.

ALFRED E. SMITH AND THE CANDIDATE HE CHAMPIONS: FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT

HOOVER'S BOAST ON 'MOB' HELD B. E. F. SLUR

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Hoover's extemporaneous declaration in St. Paul Saturday night—"Thank God, we still have a government in Washington that knows how to deal with a mob"—was condemned roundly as a slur on the B. E. F.

The President's attitude toward the Bonus Expeditionary Force, which was driven from Washington last July by federal troops, was likened to that of the old czarist regime of Russia when the peasants cried for bread, by Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota. He said:

"Undoubtedly the old regime in Russia under the Czar thanked God for the Cossacks, but they don't do it any more."

Another United States Senator, who declined to be quoted, characterized the President's statement as "awful."

R. B. Ellison, national organizer of the Khaki Shirts, which succeeded the B. E. F. with a wider program than immediate cash payment of the bonus, said:

"President Hoover has cast an unjust and outrageous slur upon the members of the B. E. F., who do not yield even to him in their devotion of the flag. They were, and still are, loyal American citizens, even though they are jobless and destitute.

"The B. E. F. never was a mob until President Hoover made it one. The organization would have continued as a disciplined unit had the President seen fit to deal with it in a humane manner.

"Through the high-handed methods of the President and his henchmen, it became a 'mob,' not threatening violence, but a 'mob' of hungry men, women and children fleeing for their lives before cavalry and infantry armed with sabers, bayonets and gas."

BORAH VOTE IN; IT'S SECRET

BOISE, Ida., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Senator William E. Borah, Republican Independent of Idaho, who said in Washington after the Republican national convention he would not support President Hoover on their party's platform, has cast his vote without naming publicly his choice of the Presidential candidates.

Stephen Utter, Ada County Clerk, revealed Borah had entered an absentee ballot in Precinct One before leaving for Washington yesterday.

Friends of the President sought in vain to obtain pronouncement from Borah favoring him.

The principal solace which those seeking a word for Hoover could point to was his attack on former Gov. Al. Smith for his stand on the liquor question, and the statement in another address declaring the depression could not be blamed "upon the present administration."

2 Injured Fighting North Side Blaze

Firemen Joseph Lally, of No. 46 Engine Company, and Charles Wagner, of No. 47 Engine Company, were injured while fighting a blaze in a four-story brick building at East Ohio street and Madison avenue yesterday. Both were cut by glass.

Battlion Chief Louis Steckle estimated the loss at $2,500. The first floor is occupied by Donohoe's food store. The upper three floors are unoccupied.

DO, HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

bracing the East, the West, the North and the South.

Mr. Hoover explained that the plan must be extensive, comprehensive and nation-wide in order to secure the support of all sections of the country.

The plan was inspiring and completely won Mr. Hearst's support for the plan and for Mr. Hoover's candidacy.

Mr. Hoover, when elected, abandoned the plan, because it contained items of flood control and water conservation to which the power trust objected, but Mr. Hearst still advocates the plan and believes that it would be doubly beneficial at this time, when employment is urgently needed by over eleven millions of our citizens.

MR. HOOVER ACCUSES Mr. Hearst of being opposed to "the promotion of peace by means of the Kellogg Pact."

This is a childish accusation.

Mr. Hearst's objection to the Kellogg Pact is that it means nothing, as we have seen in the Chino-Japanese conflict, unless it is supported by force of arms, and if it IS supported by arms, it becomes, not a peace pact, but a WAR pact.

Mr. Hearst is an ardent advocate of peace, but primarily of peace for AMERICA.

Mr. Hearst urged that America stay out of the World War and received much opposition for that.

Mr. Hearst now urges that America stay out of all war pacts, or security pacts, or war commitments of any kind, or foreign entanglements of any kind, in order that peace and prosperity and happiness may prevail in our own dear country.

MR. HOOVER FINALLY defends the Dawes transaction. The facts regarding the transaction are these:

Mr. Dawes was chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation, appointed by Mr. Hoover.

On June 6, 1932, Mr. Dawes retired from the board and from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

On June 26, 1932, Mr. Dawes obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of which he had been the head, eighty million dollars for his bank.

This may have been an entirely proper proceeding, as Mr. Hoover declares.

Mr. Hearst merely said:

"This may have been very good for Mr. Dawes and his bank, but unfortunately the rest of the community do not possess similar opportunities."

If Mr. Hearst is mistaken in this statement—if any of you folks who read this have enjoyed similar opportunities, write Mr. Hearst about it. He would like to hear of such cases.

MR. HEARST RECENTLY declared that Mr. Hoover's especial friends were Mr. Morgan and Mr. Insull, of the power trust; Mr. Grundy, of the depression tariff; Mr. Dawes, special and peculiar beneficiary of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Mr. Montagu Norman, alias Skinner, governor of the Bank of England.

Mr. Hoover has defended one of his friends, Mr. Dawes, but he has not defended Mr. Samuel Insull.

But Mr. Hoover has defended promoters and speculators in times past and has stated in an article in the Mining Magazine of London that money was better in their hands than in the hands "of the idiots who parted with it."

Unfortunately, the hundreds of thousands of worthy people who originally held the money, but who lost their life savings in the collapse of Mr. Insull's swindling power trust, do not agree with Mr. Hoover.

Nor does Mr. Hearst agree with him.

These poor plundered people were not "idiots." They were merely pitiful victims of conscienceless speculators and promoters.

It would have been much better for these worthy people, and much better for the country, if the money of which they have been robbed had remained in their hands.

Money in the hands of the people is what makes purchasing power, and what makes prosperity.

The inability of Mr. Hoover to understand this primary principle is one of the things which have made his administration such a disastrous failure and which now make the man himself so utterly ineligible for re-election.

Mr. Roosevelt has pledged himself to give consideration to the FORGOTTEN MAN.

During Mr. Hoover's administration the forgotten man has been THE WHOLE AMERICAN PUBLIC.

GAS EXPLOSION RAZES HOME

A three-room house at 1310 Montier street, Wilkinsburg, was demolished in a gas explosion early today. Fire followed the blast. The loss was estimated at $1,200 by Fire Chief Samuel Jeffries. The report of the explosion was heard over a wide area.

Driver Dale Dodson, of the chemical wagon, was injured slightly when struck by debris. The house was tenanted by the family of Joseph Fuscia. They were not at home at the time of the explosion.

FATAL DRY RAID WITNESS SLAIN

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—August Gobel, 47, of Maplewood, a witness in the killing of a prohibition agent during the raid on the Rising Sun brewery in Elizabeth in 1930, was shot and killed early today and a policeman assigned to guard him was seriously injured by gunmen, who escaped.

Gobel was a fireman in the Rising Sun brewery at the time Agent John G. Finiello, former Pitttsburgher, was shot and killed during a federal raid. He has been working as a fireman at the Chris-Christian Fiegenspan Corporation plant.

Patrolman Adolph Weigand was assigned to guard Gobel yesterday after a man who described himself as Gobel's brother-in-law informed police that an attempt might be made on Gobel's life.

Weigand said he and Gobel were sitting in front of a boiler talking. Several times Gobel got up and went into a courtyard around a corner of the building out of Weigand's sight, the policeman said:

Presently, he added, he heard Gobel cry out:

"They've got me!"

Weigand ran out in time to see Gobel mowed down by a fusillade of shots. Weigand opened fire on two men who answered, and Weigand himself went down with bullets in his arms and body.

FOUR MEN LOST IN SEA MYSTERY

KING PARK, N. Y., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—A hole in the bottom of a boat—a hole that may have been made by a bullet interested state police today as they inquired into the tragedy of the sea which took three and probably four lives.

There was only one known survivor of the two outboard motor boats which set out into the heavy seas of Long Island Sound Saturday morning. Three are known to have been drowned, one is missing.

Thomas Carmondy, 55, a New York detective, was found exhausted but alive on Meadows Beach Saturday night. His story was that Charles Beck, 30, and Daniel Ryan, 35, were in one boat and John Sheridan, 28, and Michael McCluskey, 32, were with him in the other.

The Beck boat began leaking, Carmondy said, and Ryan was transferred to the Carmondy craft, leaving Beck alone.

The boats became separated and the one in which the four men rode capsized. Ryan and McCluskey were drowned. Sheridan and Carmondy clung to the overturned boat for more than an hour, according to the detective's story. Finally Sheridan's grip relaxed and he disappeared. Carmondy himself was unable to explain how he reached shore.

The boat in which Beck was the sole passenger was washed ashore, empty.

Speakeasy Owner Put on Probation

John Nemo, 43, of Yew street, pleaded guilty in Criminal Court today to operating a speakeasy at 4808 Liberty avenue, raided recently by county detectives on a complaint received by Judge Frank P. Patterson. Judge Patterson received the plea, fined Nemo $200 and placed him on probation for three years with the condition that if he violates the parole he must serve a jail term of a year.

Cut down by his daughter, Sophia, 14, who reported to police she found him hanging by his necktie from a rafter on the third floor of their home, Marco Gaspardic, 42, of 137 Welser street, McKeesport, was being detained today by police. The daughter said she rescued her father when she returned home late yesterday. Gaspardic blamed his alleged suicide attempt on domestic difficulties, police said.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Officers said they were convinced Steve Novak, 36, was only joking when he approached a gasoline station with one hand inside his coat and said "Hands up!" But George Freres, Jr., the attendant, opened fire, and Novak is in a serious condition with an abdominal wound. Novak had no gun, and his wife said he had gone to the station on an errand.

Deserter Shoots Woman, Kills Self

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Grover L. Easter, of Chappells, S. C., who was described by the sheriff's office as a deserter from the 16th Artillery, Fort Bragg, critically wounded Mrs. Lena Hales, of Fayetteville, who was separated from her husband, as she was leaving her father's house, and killed himself last night.

Officers said the shooting was a case of unrequited love.

$2,100 Auto Parts Taken by Robbers

Spider Spins Web Of Evidence Against Thief

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—A spider spun a web of evidence that resulted in Joseph Wolek's arrest for purse-snatching.

Police, responding to a radio report of the theft, accosted Wolek standing on a street corner. An officer said:

"That fellow has some spider webs on his shoulders. He must have been hiding under a porch."

So Wolek was taken to a police station, where he was identified by his victim, confessed the theft and gave up the loot—$10.60.

DREISER TALKS FOR MOONEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—A capacity crowd which jammed the civic auditorium at a mass meeting yesterday in support of a pardon for Tom Mooney, convicted of the preparedness day bombing, sang the "Internationale" and booed mention of the names of Gov. James Rolph and Matt I. Sullivan, one of the Governor's advisers.

A letter from Mooney likening his San Quentin prison cell to a living tomb and appealing for a nation-wide movement for his freedom, was read. A motion calling for such a movement was adopted.

Theodore Dreiser and Lincoln Steffens, writers, were given ovations when they appeared on the speaker's platform. Another ovation was given Paul M. Callicotte, of Portland, Ore., who stated his belief he was the man who placed a suitcase bomb on the spot where it later exploded, causing the death of 10 persons.

Callicotte said he was hired by two men in Oakland the day of the parade to take a suitcase to San Francisco.

EARL CARROLL'S BACKER DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—William R. Edrington, oil operator and financier, lay dead today at Fort Worth, Tex., and in New York he was described by Earl Carroll, whose theatrical enterprises he had backed over a period of 12 years, as "a banker with the heart of a poet."

Edrington became associated with Carroll shortly after he arrived in New York from Fort Worth, in 1919. He financed a play Carroll was producing and two years later put up the money for the first Earl Carroll Theater and for the first "Vanities" revue.

Three years ago Edrington and Carroll decided to build a large, modern theater at Seventh avenue and Fiftieth street. The playhouse, costing more than $4,000,000, was opened in August, 1931, but the venture did not pay.

By this time Edrington's securities, mostly in oil stocks, had dropped in value, and last March his property in New York was attached.

Edrington was adjudged a bankrupt in Federal Court at Fort Worth. Carroll was forced to relinquish the theater.

M'BRIDE SEES DRY VICTORY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—In a final pre-election statement, F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said "legalized liquor cannot exist in this country without greatly hindering national progress and we believe that it is the will of America to stay dry."

The campaign, McBride said, closes "with no new plan by the wets and no different program by the drys." He added:

"The liquor forces are fighting to restore the legal situation which existed before the Eighteenth Amendment, while the drys are fighting to maintain national constitutional prohibition as a uniform policy more effective than any other against the evils of alcoholism."

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—William D. Upshaw, the prohibition party's candidate for president, said last night in a pre-election statement:

"If everybody in the United States who is dissatisfied with the liquor planks in both old party platforms would have the courage of their convictions, the Prohibition candidate for president would get 50,000,000 votes on Tuesday."

Upshaw predicted he would poll "by far the largest vote any prohibition candidate ever received."

MONEY RAISED FOR WATCHERS

Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman announced today watchers' certificates would be issued from county headquarters, three to a city district and two to a country district. At the same time county committeemen were receiving letters from Coleman written Saturday afternoon and informing them no money would be available for watchers.

From somewhere, somehow between Saturday afternoon and this morning the money was forthcoming.

On the North Side yesterday, William A. Herd, chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, and Councilman Harry Little held a meeting of workers on behalf of the Republican ticket.

As a precaution against possible violence at tomorrow's election, Henry Ellenbogen, Democratic and Independent nominee for Congress from the Thirty-third District, today sent Gov. Pinchot a telegram, asking protection of the State Police. The telegram said:

"Threats of violence and intimidation of voters and watchers are openly made and only the presence of the state police can guarantee a peaceful and honest election."

Club Guest Shot By Reno Gambler

RENO, Nev., Nov. 7.—(INS.)—A night club shooting early today put a Reno card dealer in jail and his alleged victim in a hospital.

During a quarrel, police said, John A. O'Brien, 40, the man under arrest, shot and probably fatally wounded Albert Groh, 30, a guest at the club. Peggy Linscott, 28, was held as a material witness.

Woman Hangs Self In Erie Hospital

Jigsaw 'Addict' Breaks Into School Shop

This seems like carrying things too far.

Somebody cracked a window to enter the manual training shop at Brookline School over the week-end but nothing was stolen—only the band saw, which can fashion jigsaw puzzles, was operated.

EPPLEY DENIES O. K. OF HOOVER

Eugene C. Eppley, president of the Eppley Hotels Company and chairman of the American Hotel Association committee on prohibition, today challenged a recent statement issued by Frank A. Dudley, an eastern hotel operator, to the effect that hotel men favor re-election of President Hoover as a means of ending prohibition. Eppley's statement said:

"Mr. Dudley's statement is thoroughly misleading. While it purports to represent the hotel industry, it represents only Mr. Dudley's personal views and wishes. The American Hotel Association is strictly non-partisan in its support of candidates, regardless of party, who advocate modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment."

TOM MIX HORSE QUITS FILMS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Veteran of 20 years' active service in films with his master, Tom Mix, the noted horse, Tony, has been placed on the retirement list.

In his place on the screen with Mix will be seen Tony, Jr., a chestnut sorrel which, like Tony, has white stockings on each foot and a white diamond on the forehead. The new equine star, however, is no relation to his dark bay predecessor.

Tony, now 23 years old, was acquired as a sickly pony by Mix for $12.50 in 1909, and was fed by hand on a mixture of milk and oats while he gained strength and the appearance known to millions of "western" fans.

Having trained him, Tom took Tony when he joined the old Selig Film Company and introduced the horse to the cameras in 1912. Since then the horse has helped Mix earn a total of approximately $7,500,000, has traveled in state with the star, slept in the finest stables in America and Europe and became a household name wherever the Mix films were shown.

Two Young Bandits Rob Druggist of $195

Two youths held up and robbed Nathan Rosenberg in his drug store, Carnegie place and Penn avenue, last night, according to a police report. The druggist was summoned to the front of the store, and while one of the bandits held him at bay with a revolver the other took $180 from the cash drawer and $15 from Rosenberg, police said.

Spinal Cord Broken, Man Dies in 12 Days

After surviving for 12 days with his spinal cord severed, George Fiejda, 45, of Aliquippa, died today in St. Francis Hospital. He was injured October 27 when the truck he was driving near his home skidded and plunged down an embankment.

THOMAS HERE, SEES BIG VOTE

A presidential candidate drank orange juice and coffee in the Pennsylvania Station today and between polite bites of buttered toast gave out what is probably the most conservative pre-election statement ever issued.

He was Norman Thomas, the tall, thin, white-haired Socialist, and he did not predict victory for himself. In fact, he would be more astonished than you if he polls more votes than Hoover or Roosevelt. But he did say this:

"The Socialist party will poll a greater vote than ever before."

Thomas was en route from New York to Milwaukee to make a speech. He doesn't know whether he'll hear the returns tomorrow in Milwaukee or Chicago.

HEIR TO RICHES NOW BUS BOY

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The Examiner says Albert James Baron Guggenheim, 23, scion of a wealthy New York family and heir to $800,000, is working as a bus boy in a Hollywood cafe, where he once tipped waiters at $10 a throw.

He is the son of Albert Guggenheim and Mrs. Fanny Baron Guggenheim, of New York, the newspaper said, and upon the death of his grandfather, Bernhard Baron, English tobacco king, a trust fund of $800,000 was established for him.

The newspaper quoted Guggenheim as saying:

"I play a good game of bridge, a pretty fair game of golf and I have a polo handicap. But one must eat. Six weeks ago the trustees of my grandfather's estate decided not to give me the allowance which has been mine since the death of my grandfather.

"For these six weeks I have been actually in want and I took the first job I could get. It's from riches to dishes for me."

FALSE ALARMS COST TRIO $60

Three young men, accused of turning in a false fire alarm from Ruthledge and Fingal streets, were fined $20 each in Morals Court today. They were Joseph McCarthy, 18, of Greenleaf street, who admitted the offense; Greme Ruckert, 19, of Fingal street, and Walter Sebak, 21, of Greenleaf street.

Another false alarm indirectly brought a fractured leg to Patrolman Henry Bahler. Directing traffic at Capital and Pioneer avenues as fire trucks sped by, an auto struck him. The driver, Eugene Straub, 37, of Woodruff street, arrested, said the fog confused him.

Film Executives To Banquet Here

The banquet, honoring the retiring president, James G. Balmer, will be served under a big circus tent being erected in the ballroom. More than 750 persons, including representatives of Paramount-Publix Corporation, Metro-Gldwyn-Mayer, United Artists, Warner Brothers, Universal and Fox companies, are expected to attend.

A Sale of Men's $50 and $60

Suits and Overcoats

A circumstance of the times which spells opportunity for those in a position to profit by it. One of our best manufacturers had these suits and overcoats made up for a prominent midwestern store, and ready to ship, when an unfavorable development in the latter's credit prompted the manufacturer to change his mind. He appealed to us in the situation. We replied with a spot cash offer which brought the entire lot—200 suits and 200 overcoats—to Pittsburgh on the basis indicated above. There can be no questioning of the values. Exact counterparts of these suits and overcoats (from the same manufacturer) are in our stocks at these regular prices. They're direct from the bench—strictly hand-tailored of the best woolens, in the latest styles and complete sizes.

The election holiday, tomorrow, will give hundreds of men a chance to examine these values. This is all that any man need do to recognize and appreciate the situation. Men and youngfellows interested in suits and overcoats of the highest style and quality can fully satisfy their desires tomorrow at savings of $19 to $29—or almost the price of another suit or overcoat.

Program Pointers

Discussing the activities of the Pittsburgh Fire Department, Richard L. Smith, chief of the Bureau of Fire, appears as guest speaker during KQV's "Pittsburgh Today" presentation at 9 tonight. Smith has a service record of nearly 32 years and recently was elected president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs . . . On the same station at 9:15 "Pygmalion and Galatea," the first of a series of "Hysterical Fables," is offered as a highlight of the "Joy Club" broadcast . . . Listeners are taken on a musical jaunt during the Minstrels program on KDKA at 9 tonight. Features are "I Love the Land of Old Black Joe," "You're In Kentucky Sure As You're Born," and "Moonlight on the Colorado."

Chief Smith

Stolen plans for a deadly aerial torpedo, hypnotism, drugs, plots and counter-plots run riot in tonight's "Dr. Fu Manchu" episode on WJAS from 8:45 to 9:15 p. m.

Speakers in behalf of the Welfare Fund today are: The Most Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh Catholic diocese, WCAE at 2:30 and Joseph Havrilla WJAS at 5 and WWSW at 8:20.

A musical salute to Carnegie by the Westinghouse Band with Judge D. Paulson Foster as guest speaker, is listed on KDKA at 6:15.

Listening In

Kate Smith's Movie. Nat Learns to Drive. What Children Like.

Believe it or not, Fanny Hurst wrote that scenario for Kate Smith's feature-length motion picture without ever having seen or met the "Songbird of the South" . . . Despite not having made personal contact, the novelist said, she felt she knew Kate's personality and was able to weave it into her story . . . Incidentally, Kate leaves for the Pacific Coast Wednesday . . . and speaking of movies, Lanny Ross recently completed a two-reel version of the Broadway musical show, "Spring Is Here" . . . It's Lanny's debut . . . Moonshine and Honeysuckle, the popular serial drama, is scheduled to appear in book form soon. . .

Miss Hurst

Nat Shilkret, who's been taking driving lessons, had a bit of bad luck on his initial solo drive. . . He followed his piano-playing habit of stepping on the right pedal, pressed the accelerator at the wrong moment and tangled with a taxi.

Children's preferences as to radio stars and acts are being revealed in that United-American Bosch Radio Star poll . . . The youngsters, so far, have chosen Walter Damrosch, Sherlock Holmes, Amos 'n' Andy, the Stebbins Boys, Rudy Vallee, Rubinoff and Bill Hay for first places in the various divisions.

CBS reports receipt of a letter from a British DX-er who lists WJAS as one of three United States stations he hears regularly—and clearly.

Ford Miller's wondering what one says when one receives flowers at the microphone. He was tendered a bouquet during a recent public broadcast in Gimbel's store . . . and is still hoping some master of etiquet will come forward with advice on the subject.

The theft of priceless paintings from the Louvre and the substitution of clever copies provide the plot for "Mysteries in Paris" on WJAS at 9:30.

A Donora (Pa.), trio composed of Catherine Rhodes, M. Louise Taylor and Elizabeth Stephans Cross, bows with a new program, "Memories of Love and Romance" from WWSW at 9 tonight. Organ melodies provide the background.

The "Playboys" trio—Walter G. Samuels, Leonard Whitcup and Felix Bernard—goes on a network with a new two-a-week series of programs over CBS-WJAS at 11:15 a. m. tomorrow.

4 AWAIT AUTOS IN JIG SAW CONTEST

Because of logic, neatness and cleverness in fitting together the political map of the United States in the Jig Saw Presidential Game conducted by the Sunday Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with the other Hearst Sunday newspapers, four residents of Allegheny County today are looking forward to delivery of their prize automobiles.

These four, whose entries were among the 50 best in the contest, are George J. Gross, 2124 Sidney street; Eugene Hoyet, 443 East Seventh avenue, Tarentum; Esther D. Miller, 645 Mifflin road, Hays, and Lieut. Lester F. Rhodes, U. S. Army Engineer Corps, Pittsburgh.

NATIONAL JUDGES

Final awards were made by a national board of judges appointed by the editors of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with all the Hearst Sunday newspapers. Careful consideration previously had been given all entries by local judges. Included on the local board in the Sun-Telegraph's division were John M. Henry and Senator Frank J. Harris.

The awards were not made on accuracy in predicting actual results of the election, but were particularly based on soundness of the reasons advanced by the entrants for awarding the electoral votes of each state to the respective presidential candidates.

WINNER'S REASONS

An example of a winning entry is that submitted by George J. Gross, one of the Allegheny County victors. It follows:

"According to my reasons and figures, the presidential election will turn out as follows—in favor of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The Western states being mostly farmers do not favor Herbert Hoover. The Middle states, being comprised of a great many business people and capitalists, are in favor of Hoover. The New England states also favor Herbert Hoover. The Rocky Mountain states, the Pacific States, the Central states, and the Southern states, all favor Franklin D. Roosevelt a great deal more than Herbert Hoover, excepting Colorado, Kansas and Ohio, which lean toward Hoover.

B. E. F. A FACTOR

"The veterans of the B. E. F. have no regard toward Hoover, since he refused to give them their bonus and chased them out of Washington. This, of course, will cause a lot of people to vote for Roosevelt instead of Hoover. The farmers being against Hoover will also lessen his number of votes. Prohibition will continue to prove harmful to Hoover during the presidential election, as it has been doing in the past.

"I figure that this so-called depression (depression because a Republican President is in office, and it would have been called a panic if he were a Democrat, as we all know), had the public in general turned against Hoover and the Republican party. Therefore, in conclusion, may I add that I think our next President will be Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The jig saw presidential game has been a great thing and I enjoyed it very much."

Dean Amos to Lead Convention Meeting

The Pennsylvania Association of Deans of Women will hold its annual meeting at Harrisburg, Friday and Saturday. Miss Thyrza Amos, dean of women at the University of Pittsburgh, will lead a discussion of "Current Trends in Education Significance to Women," at the Saturday morning session.

Railway Age Editor To Speak Wednesday

Samuel O. Dunn, Chicago, editor and publisher of Railway Age and an authority on railroad problems, will be the speaker at a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium Wednesday noon.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

-With-

Patricia Pitt

This week-end will bring us another autumn wedding. It's going to be a small event, but interesting nevertheless.

Mary Anne Ritchey, daughter of Mrs. John L. Ritchey, of Northumberland avenue, is to wed Henry Allison Young, of New York, Saturday at 12:30 in the chapel of the Third United Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. William M. Woodfin officiating.

There'll be no attendants. And after the ceremony there is to be a small reception in the Ritchey home and a breakfast for members of the two families.

Sarah Elizabeth Owens will give a bridge party in her home, Shady avenue, tomorrow night for Mary Anne, and last evening the John D. Ritcheys gave a buffet dinner in their home for the bride-to-be.

There were 75 flower lovers at the luncheon held today in the Allegheny Country Club by the Allegheny County Garden Club, of which Mrs. Frank Faber Brook's is the president. Exhibits of chrysanthemums were featured in connection with the luncheon.

Benefit Meeting

This will be another busy week, what with events scheduled for the coming days to attend and plans to make for benefits to mark later November days.

Today St. Margaret's Dispensary Board will meet at the home of Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland to work on the Cinderella ball it will give November 25 in the University Club. After the meeting there'll be an informal tea.

The Dilworth Hall Alumnae Association will open its season today with a bridge luncheon in the new College Club, and tomorrow Betty Shaw will make her curtsy to society at a luncheon her mother, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Shaw, will give in the Twentieth Century Club.

And on Thursday there'll be much Christmas shopping at St. Anne's Guild bazar to be held in the afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock in the Calvary Church parish house. The money will be used for the guild's usual work and for its unemployment relief.

Announce Betrothal

Want to hear about another engagement? The Stephen Davises, of New York and Las Vegas, N. M., have announced the betrothal of their daughter, Marion Larue Davis, to Charles Neale Brown, of Sewickley. The wedding's to take place some time in January in New York. Mr. Brown and his bride will live on the Brown ranch in Las Vegas.

The bride-to-be has just arrived in town to be the guest of Mrs. James Brown, her fiance's mother.

Before long there'll be indoor polo benefits. On December 10 the Mt. Vernon Seminary Alumnae Association will sponsor a benefit polo game in the Armory. And proceeds will be used for the soup kitchen it maintains at the Knox School, South Side.

Mrs. S. Davidson Herron is in charge of the kitchen. Mrs. Harry C. Bell is president of the alumnae.

Breakfast Given After Hunt at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Va.—Mrs. Daniel H. Holmes gave a hunt breakfast for several score at Fassifern Farm Saturday following the first drag hunt of the November program and climaxed an active week in the Homestead colony. The revival of the riding tournament, a popular sporting event in Virginia Hot Springs more than a decade ago, attracted scores of spectators and numerous riders to the horse show grounds Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Holmes' breakfast was given in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Fay Ingalls, master and huntsman of the Bath County Hounds. Mr. Ingalls and Miss Susannah Ingalls, who rode in her first hunt this fall.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt returned to New York this week after spending the month of October at the Homestead.

Among arrivals at the Homestead this week were Miss Gertrude Low who joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ethelbert I. Low, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Davis, Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward and Mrs. Alfred Aiken with Miss Edith Hadley, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Magruder Dent, of Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Alexander Williams Biddle, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Cochran Supplee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Murphy, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Wilmer and Miss Mary Pancoast, of Philadelphia, who were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Avery Sherry, of Milwaukee, and Mrs. and Mrs. A. A. Schlessinger, of Naples, Fla.; Mrs. Henry B. Joy and Mrs. John W. Dyar, of Grosse Point, Mich.; Mrs. Sturgis Lothrop, of Manchester-on-the-Sea, Mass.; Mrs. Russell G. Fessenden, of Concord, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. MacInnes, of Montreal, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. V. Corydon Taylor II, of Cleveland; Mrs. Matilda W. Williams with Miss Elizabeth C. Williams, of Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Degrauw Warnock, of Paoli, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin are coming from New York with Mr. and Mrs. Reeve Schley directly after the national election, and will be in the Homestead until December.

With the advance of the season many teas are being given in the great hall during the afternoon concert hour. Mrs. William Welch Collin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Atkinson, Mrs. Isaac E. Emerson with Mrs. George W. Ewing, Mr. William Edward Glyn, Miss Mary F. Mellon and Miss Matilda Mellon, Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer, Mrs. Edward V. Hartford, Mrs. Francis Rogers, Mrs. Edward M. Fielding, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett and Mrs. Arthur J. MacMahon have been among those serving informally during the week.

Motion Picture Chairmen To Meet on Fridays

Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert, district chairman of motion pictures for the State Federation, will meet with motion picture chairman regularly on the second Friday morning of each month at the Congress of Clubs. Round tables will be conducted and anyone interested is invited to join.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

There's a young man, Francis Le Moyne Schmertz, who's headed for the diplomatic corps, even though he's not yet in the first grade!

At luncheon table he said to his mother, Mrs. Louis Robinson Schmertz III:

"You sang very well in the choir yesterday, mother."

"Thank you, Frankie," said his mother.

"You looked nice, too," added Frankie.

"Thank you," his mother said again.

"Now mother, may I have another piece of cake?"

James W. Macfarlane, who's name is almost synonmous with the Stage and Play society, has transformed a room above his garage into a little theater, and there he entertains informally.

Now that theaters are in garages, tea rooms in former stables and studios just almost any place, we're not so surprised as we might have been a few years ago to hear that there's a school for small children in a hay loft, and down in exclusive Sewickley Valley at that!

This attractive school is being conducted by Mrs. Tileston Chickering at 1445 Beaver road, Glen Osborne. The hay loft is the barn of the old Chickering farm. The older children of the school have a more prosaic schoolroom in the house next door.

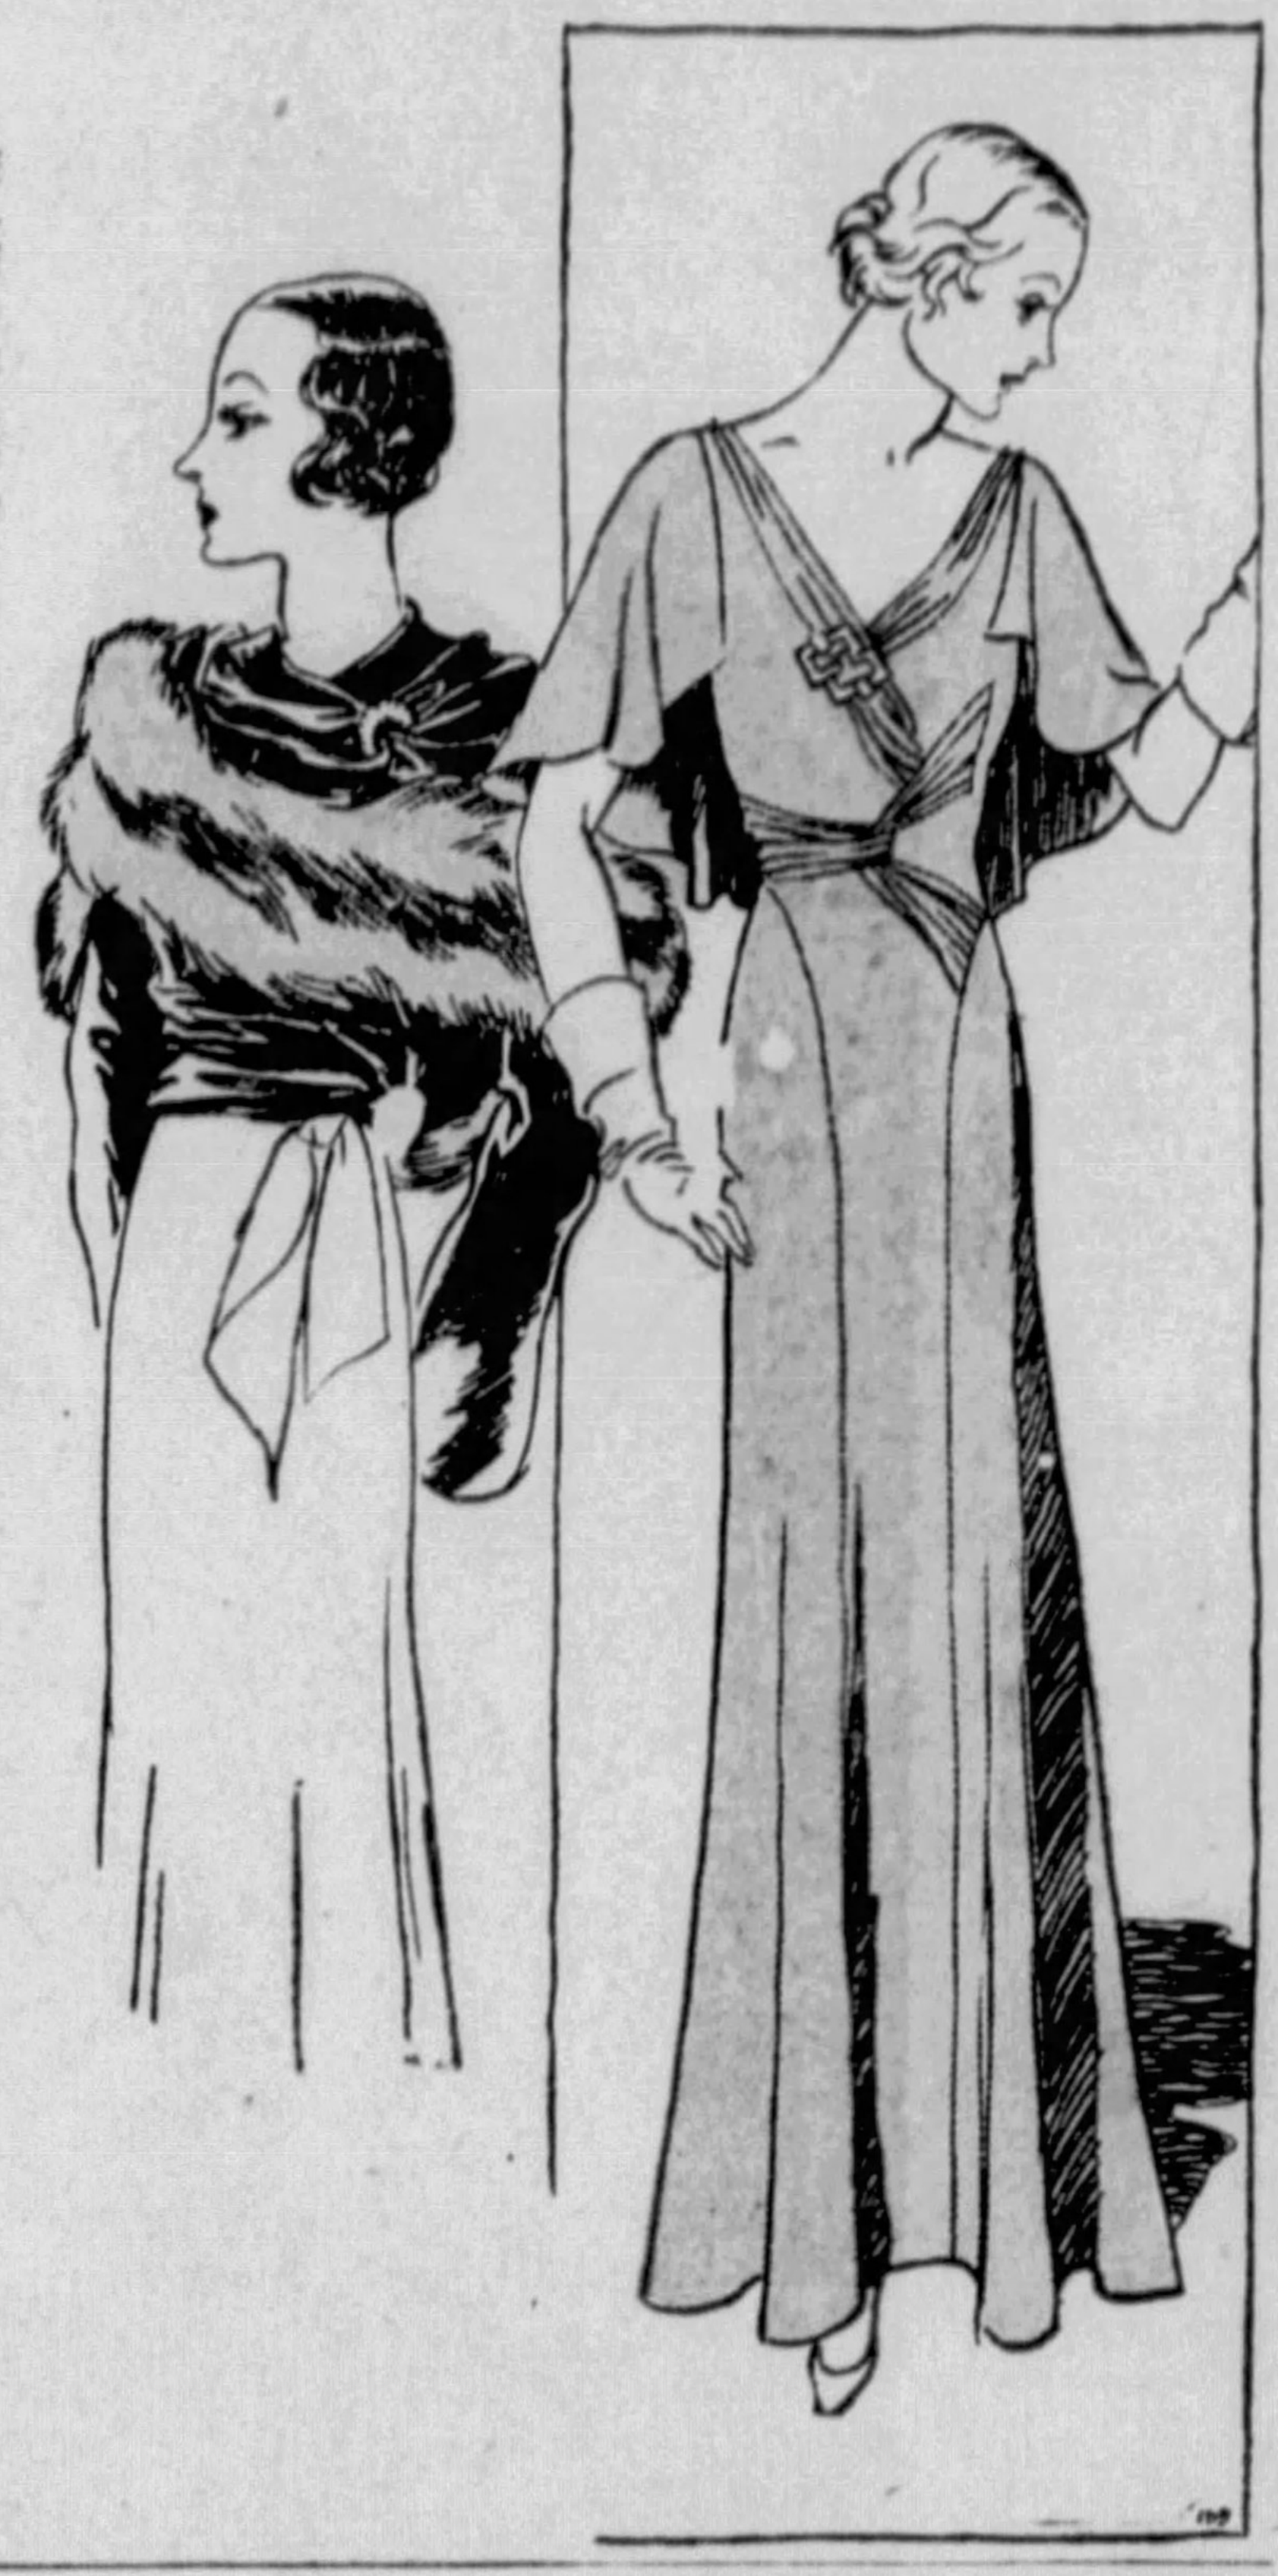
Elder, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Elder, of South Linden avenue. The Rev. H. P. The bride wore a gown of white satin having a yoke of lace, extending into the satin sleeves. Her veil of tulle cascaded from a cap of lace and she carried a sheaf of calla lilies. JEWELS, SILKS AND FURS IN LUXURIOUS EVENING COSTUMES

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Pieces of jewelry, of immense proportions, against backgrounds of velvet, make up one of the favorite Paris recipes for smart evening clothes this year. Among dozens of what are known as crisis costumes, there known as crisis costumes, ther are a few luxury models, upon which Paris dressmakers lavish their finest touches of feminine design. The old and tried combination of jewels, rich silks and furs continues to hold first place among evening dresses and wraps of the luxury variety.

ALL THREE are combined in the brief wrap that Lucien Lelong shows in today's sketch. It is a lavish affair, made of the soft, silky type of velvet that falls into soft, full folds. There is a slight bolero effect in the way the silver fox swings around at the back, then across the front, falling lower over one arm than the other. The waistline is held close by means of a wrapped belt and the neckline tucked around the base of the throat, then fastened with an immense diamond-and-ruby brooch.

TWO RECTANGLES of diamonds make an extra-size pin which fastens the folds of the neckline in place on the Maggy-Rouff dress. It is in red velvet—the dull-surface type which looks like duvetyn. Folds of the fabric not only mark the V-shaped decolletage, but accentuate the fitted waistline. The skirt falls smoothly over the hips to plenty of fullness at the floor-length hem.

Seibel Tells of Benefits of Library Of Old Knoxville

Addressing the Woman's Library Club of Knoxville at its president's day reception on Saturday afternoon, George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, recalled the benefits he himself had derived from the Mercantile Library when it was first established in the old Knoxville Grade School and to stimulate community interest in which the club was organized. This library is now kept under luck and key at Carnegie Library, and so rare is it that it is not subject to circulation. The club, Mr. Seibel recalled, was chiefly instrumental in procuring a South Hills branch of Carnegie Library.

More than 70 members and guests attended the reception which was held in Mrs. W. D. Heesom's home, honoring Mrs. L. Arnold Watt, the new executive. In addition to Mr. Seibel's talk, the program included music by Esther Edmundson Mohr, soprano; Stella R. Phillips, piano, and a trio composed of Margaret Probst, cello; William Stone, violin, and Earl Wild, piano. Among the past presidents who attended was Mrs. Seibel, wife of the speaker.

FAVOR REPEAL, BUT DIVIDE ON SALES TAX

Candidates for Congress in Western Pennsylvania and adjoining districts of Ohio and West Virginia on the whole favor repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but are evenly split on the sales tax, a poll by the Sun-Telegraph reveals.

Six of Allegheny County's leading candidates for Congress favor both repeal and the sales tax. Only one candidate from this county refused to answer a questionnaire. He is Clyde Kelly, incumbent, Thirty-first District, who is running for re-election on nearly all tickets, except repeal, which is held by his opponent, Leo Guthrie.

Guthrie and Anne E. Felix and Henry Ellenbogen are the three candidates from this county opposing the sales tax, although the trio favors repeal.

All Socialist candidates favor repeal and oppose the tax.

HOW OTHERS STAND

Fifteen of 17 congressmen throughout Western Pennsylvania favor repeal, with J. Howard Swick, of the Twenty-sixth District, and Milton W. Shreve, Twenty-ninth District, standing on the Hoover platform of resubmission.

Five incumbents besides Kelly from this section of the state ignored the questionnaire. All Republicans, they are J. Banks Kurtz, Samuel A. Kendall, Henry W. Temple, Nathan L. Strong and Adam M. Wyant. One Democrat, Charles N. Crosby, and James F. Lavery, Liberal, also failed to reply.

Their Democratic opponents, for the most part, have taken decided steps, although a number held off on the sales tax. In letters of explanation, a number felt they did not care to impose additional taxes, and would wait until they were faced with the absolute necessity of more taxes before they would decide.

10 FAVOR SALES TAX

Ten, however, expressed their favor for the tax, five opposed it, and the remainder stood off.

Three West Virginia candidates replied—all candidates against incumbents. Of two Democrats, Ramsay, First District, favors both repeal and the sales tax, and Jennings Randolph, Second District, has reached no decision on the tax, although favoring repeal. Wolverton, of the Third District, opposes repeal and is undecided on the sales tax. John Ruth, of Youngstown, O., an independent, favors repeal and opposes the sales tax. Other congressmen and candidates have ignored the questionnaire.

The questions asked the various candidates are:

"Do you favor repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment?

Do you favor the sales tax, such as the one defeated in the last Congress?

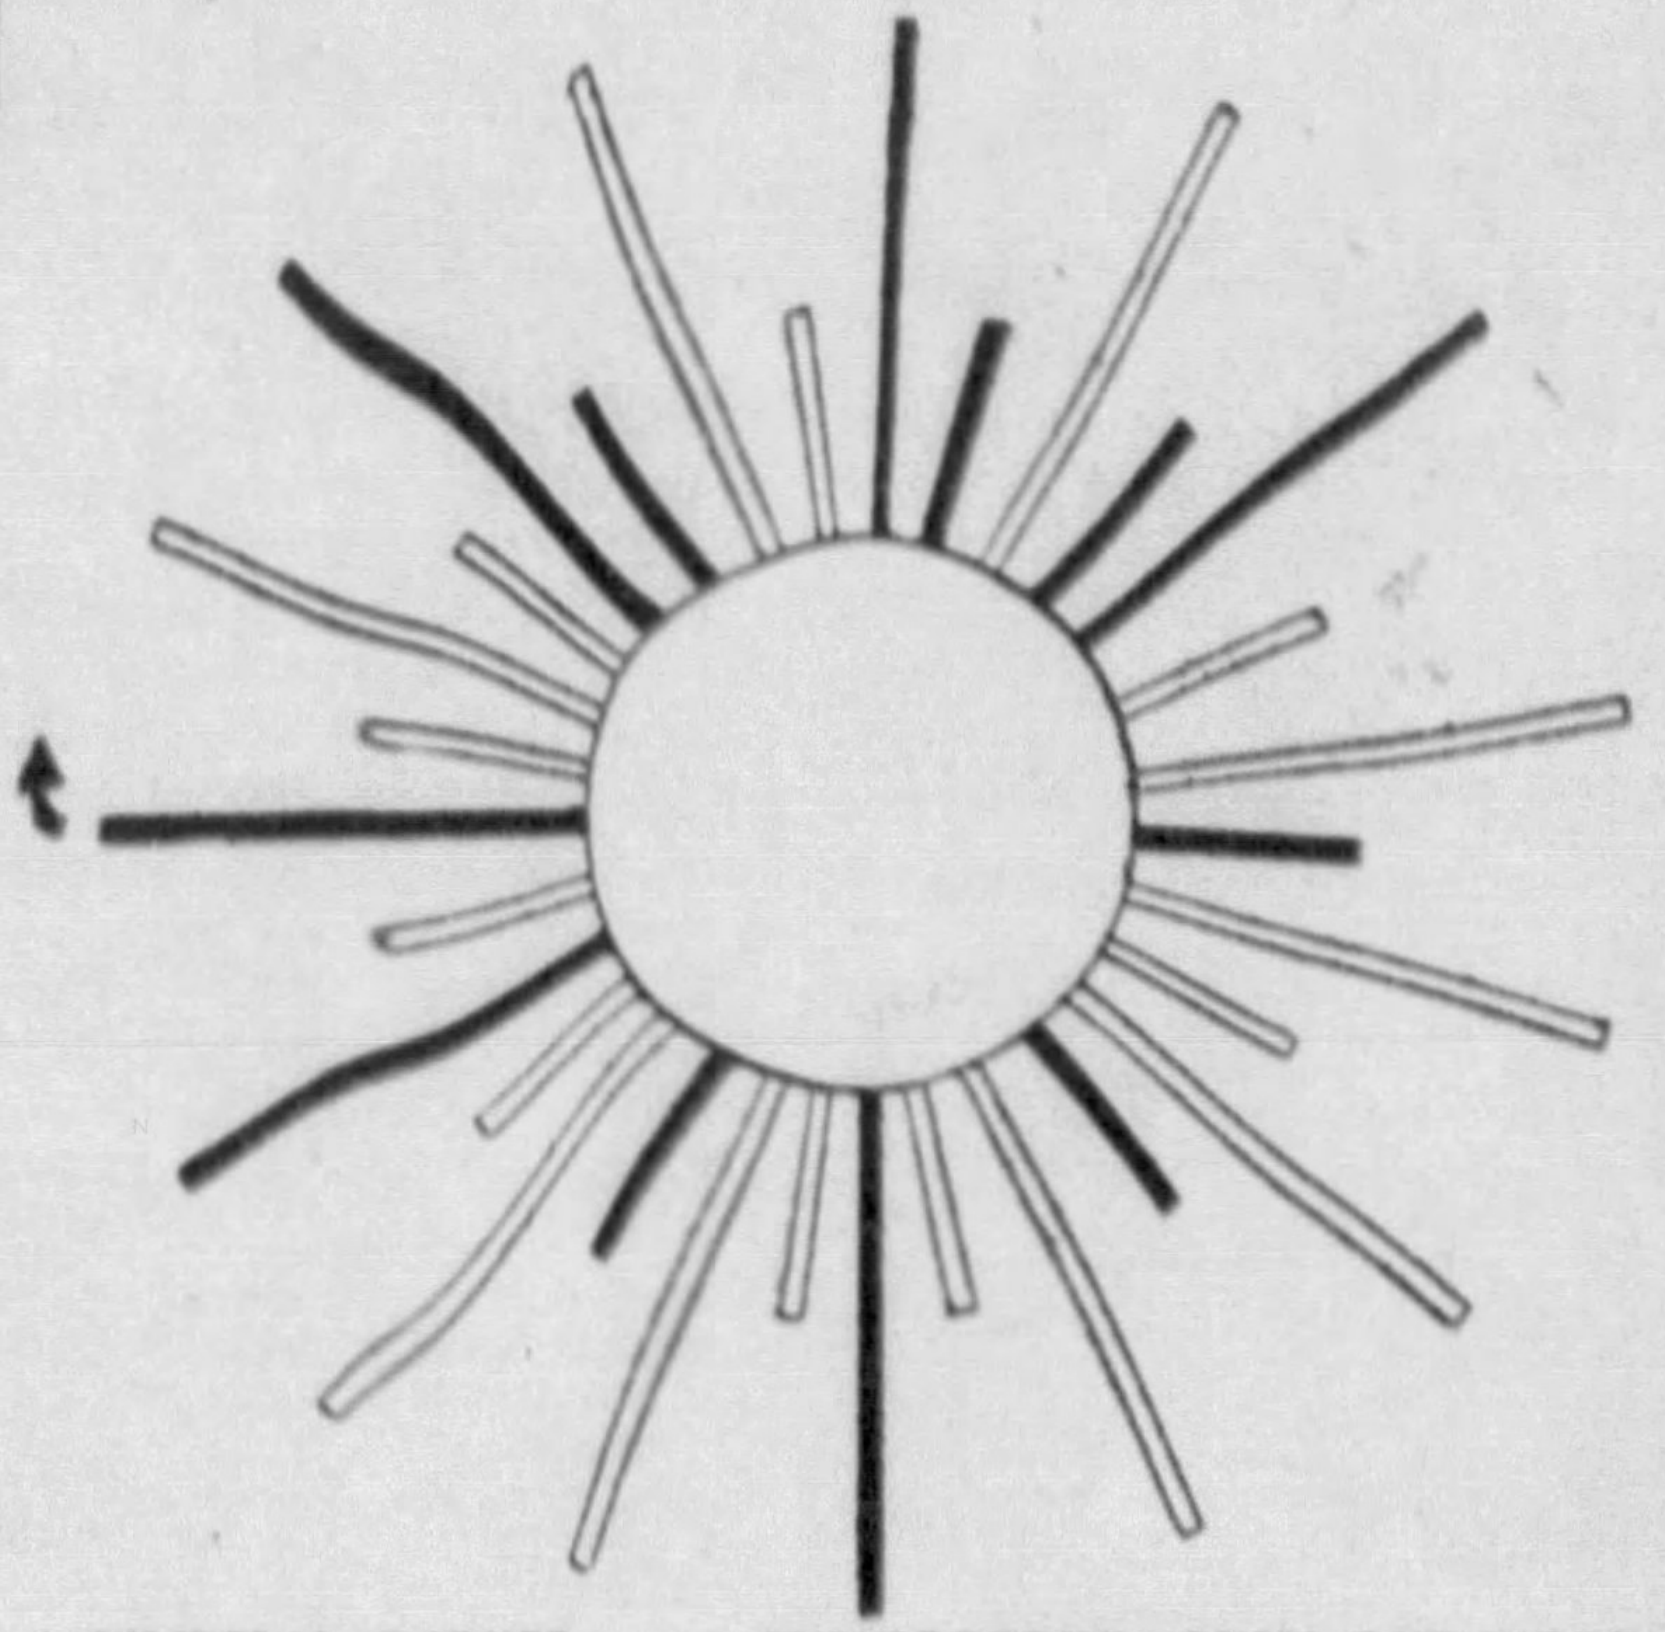
Cipher Sharps Stopped By No. 5, Given Clues



A BILITERAL CIPHER . . . IT REPRESENTS ONLY ONE WORD

Lots of people giving the "Bronx cheer" for last week's ciphers, because they were too easy, are now clamoring for help on Saturday's biliteral cipher No. 5 reprinted today.

The biliteral cipher is based on the mathematical fact that the transposition of two objects—blocks, letters, radishes, roller skates, etc.—will yield 32 dissimilar combinations.

Of these, only 24 would be necessary to represent the letters of the alphabet (i and j, u and v were interchangeable, then).

As soon as you've mentally digested this fact, make up a "key" alphabet.

Write a column of letters of the alphabet, remembering that "i" and "j" as well as "u" and "v" should be regarded as one unit. Then, on the same line as the first letter of your alphabet, write the letter "a" five times.

Under the fifth letter "a" write the letter "b"—and alternate the "a's" and "b's" to the bottom of this column.

In Column No. 4 there should be two "a's" and "b's," alternating the PAIRS until the column is complete. Column No 3 consists of four "a's" followed by four "b's" to the end of the column. In No. 2, place eight "a's" followed by eight "b's" and eight "a's." In No. 1 column, you must have 16 "a's" followed by eight "b's."

Figure out the rest for yourself, remembering that the solution consists of one word—no more, no less. If you get it now, call the Cipher Editor for sure.

Save your biliteral alphabet; you may need it again.

CONGRESS POLL FAVORS REPEAL

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A poll of more than one-third of all candidates for Congress, conducted by the Hearst newspapers in 22 states, reveals an overwhelming majority for outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and sentiment divided on the enactment of the sales tax.

Out of a total of 385 candidates for the Senate and House queried on repeal of the prohibition amendment, 299 replied they would vote for a resolution submitting that straight question to the states. This represents a majority of 213 in the poll.

Only 31 declared themselves unqualified "drys."

Other answers varied, as follows:

For resubmission, 27.

Undecided, 3.

Evasive, 7.

Declining to state, 10.

Numerous candidates stated they would vote for immediate modification of the Volstead Act to legalize beer and light wines, although the question was not submitted in the poll.

A total of 337 candidates was asked their position on the enactment of a sales tax similar to that defeated in the House at the last session and 167 declared in favor of it.

$500,000 Kahn Suit Renewed by Singer

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—Retrial of the $500,000 damage suit brought by Lydia Lindgren, Swedish singer, against Otto H Kahn, financier and art patron, was scheduled for today in Long Island City Supreme Court.

The singer in her original complaint charged Kahn refused to abide by a contract under which she was to receive a large sum of money for withdrawing a suit for slander filed against Julia Claussen, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, in which Kahn's name figured.

ABORTING a Cold
(with lemon juice)

It's just a waste of time taking a cold remedy that can only relieve. To end your cold, abort it. The lemon juice treatment will do it. Squeeze two full-size lemons in a large glass of very hot water and drink without sugar. First, take three tablets of Pape's cold compound an hour apart. This clears the head, dries the nasal passages, reduces any fever. The lemon juice then drives all cold symptoms right out of the system. Bedtime is best. This treatment will abort, the worst cold, overnight. One cold compound tablet will check a cold at any time, for several hours; then when night comes you can get rid of it by abortion. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound. It's perfectly safe. Try it, and you'll never go back to half-way remedies.

Do Not Be Misled

by an eleventh-hour misstatement of facts which cannot be answered personally to the individual voter in the closing hours of the campaign.

My attention has been called to a circular issued by a candidate for Congress opposing the HON. HARRY A. ESTEP of the Thirty-third Congressional District, criticizing Mr. Estep's record as a member of Congress on the basis of non-presence and his failure to vote on important measures.

I know this to be a deliberate, unfair and untruthful statement.

There is no man in Congress who has a better record of attendance and who has always been present and voted on all measures where a roll call was had and who was present in connection with all measures which were passed in the interest of the country.

Mr. Estep's opponent has deliberately misstated the facts as shown by the Congressional record.

As a colleague of Mr. Estep in Congress and with the experience of twenty-two years in Washington, in connection with legislative matters, I cannot remain silent and permit such charges to stand unrefuted.

Signed, EDMUND F. ERK,
Member of Congress,
Thirtieth Congressional District,
Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

WARNS AGAINST BALLOT BOX STUFFING

Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence today sounded a warning against ballot box stuffing at tomorrow's election and announced that legal aid will be available if attempts are made to deprive voters of their rights. B. B. McGinnis will head a staff of attorneys at Democratic headquarters, Fourth avenue, and Andrew G. Smith will head a committee at the Courthouse.

Lawrence also called attention to the fact that placing a cross mark after the party name "Roosevelt" would not count as a vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

MARTIN HOPEFUL

Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, in a statement issued in Harrisburg, expressed hope of victory in Pennsylvania, and urged Republican leaders to carry on until the polls close Tuesday evening.

Concerning the failure of the Republican County Committee to hold a final rally last Saturday, County Chairman W. H. Coleman said:

"The last-minute unprincipled effort from prejudiced sources to picture the Allegheny County Republican organization as being discouraged is most censurable and the attempt to misconstrue the decision of the organization not to hold a meeting is most vicious. I deemed it much more advantageous to hold the meeting at North Side Carnegie Hall, the last week of September, and the wisdom of doing so has been demonstrated by the interest of committee members throughout the campaign. I am confident the majority for Herbert Hoover in Allegheny County will approximate 60,000.

'WOMEN FOR ROOSEVELT'

Former City Treasurer Adolph Edlis, chairman of the Roosevelt Independent committee, said:

"The majority of businessmen, women, unemployed and veterans will vote for Roosevelt. The present leaders have made this a gambling country which has enriched a few. They are the cause of more than 11,000,000 unemployed in this country today."

Harger Urges Votes For Dry Candidates

George D. Harger, Prohibition party state chairman, spoke last night in the Davis Avenue Baptist Church, urging support of dry candidates for state and national offices. Election of Republican or Democratic candidates, he asserted, would carry a mandate of the voters for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

PRINCE MICHAEL FESTIVAL SET

BUCHAREST, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—Crown Prince Michael for the first time will sit at the head of a banquet table tomorrow with several hundred guests in celebration of his namesday, which, under Greek Orthodox rites, is much more a day of rejoicing than a birthday.

The banquet will be tendered by the 11-year-old prince to the Knights of the Order of St. Michael, who will drink a toast of fealty to King Carol and his son.

The day will be a national holiday. At noon Michael will acknowledge the plaudits of the crowd gathered to congratulate him outside the palace and deliver a short address of thanks from a balcony.

MAN ON LEDGE 10 HOURS DIES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—His back broken in a 150-foot fall, John Costello, 47, who lay on a ledge above the railroad tracks for 10 hours before his cries brought assistance, died late last night.

Costello, a steel worker, lost his footing while climbing a hill Friday. He tumbled down the steep incline, stopping on the ridge of rock where he was powerless to raise himself.

Railroad men finally heard his moans and the fire department was called. He was rescued by firemen who lifted him off the ledge in an improvised hammock of ropes. Physicians said exposure was partly responsible for his death.

CHURCHES FIGHT HIGH FIRE INSURANCE CHARGES

POLITICS
JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE
By MARK SHIELDS

These are just a few before-the-battle-mother fragments touching on the campaign which ends in tomorrow's election. They are no more confused and incoherent than is the political situation in Pittsburgh, Allegheny County and Pennsylvania.

Mr. Shields

Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman probably is happy that the end is near. In addition to managing a campaign without money, so short of funds that he sought seclusion for a time Saturday to escape the importunities of patriots used to receiving a reward for election day activity, the McKeesport citizen had some warfare to umpire between the Republican ladies Independent and regulars of the speaker sex didn't hit it off so well. They aren't accustomed to working together. Management of the big woman's luncheon last week was put in the hands of Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, an Independent. That made no hit with Mrs. Laura J. Hinnua, Republican vice chairman, who wanted a place in the sun.

She carried her complaint to Mr. Coleman, who poured gasoline on the fire with the observation that it was the Independent ladies who were doing the real work of the campaign, and that the Regulars might take a lesson from them.

Maybe Harmony Is Bad Thing for G. O. P.

Parenthetically, this campaign offers one amusing picture. In the past the Independents and Regulars have fought each other, but there never has been question of Republican victory. This year the professionals of both independence and regularity are together for Mr. Hoover, and things look bad. Maybe all this harmony we have heard about, and which has been so zealously sought, is a bad thing for the party.

The Democrats, however, appear to be making harmony pay. This is the first campaign within half a century, probably, when the leaders have been unified. There is the diverting spectacle of Vance McCormick, Joseph F. Guffey, John Collins, Warren Van Dyke, Sedgwick Kistler, John Hemphill, Mitchell Palmer, Eugene Bonniwell, all riding the same bandwagon. The only absentee is John McSparran, Secretary of Agriculture in the Pinchot cabinet, who abhors anything savoring of alcohol.

Their time for fighting will come in the division of the spoils, if Roosevelt is elected, the day when the dealing of patronage begins. Then there will be a scramble for recognition, with Mr. Guffey nearest the window.

Republican gentlemen of more than 40 years' experience in Allegheny County politics still are talking about the abandonment of the traditional pre-election county committee meeting last Saturday. Some, merely through age-long habit, are reported to have wandered over to the North Side Carnegie Library, and then "wondered" home again, unable to comprehend what had happened in Republican politics.

Why Getting Funds Has Been Difficult

As a substitute the women members of the city committee met in William Penn headquarters and heard a letter from Mayor Kline, their leader. It failed to warm them up. The majority who read between the lines agreed that the Mayor was not vitally interested, and would not be perturbed if they spent tomorrow shopping.

One reason the Republican County Committee has had difficulty getting funds is ascribed to a fatalistic attitude of some business men. They have tried to work up enthusiasm, have conceded that it is no use, and can't see why they should contribute valuable and necessary money in a forlorn cause.

The Hon. Robert Garland, quoting from the Book of Timothy—when he might better be reading the Lamentations of Jeremiah—is much exercised over the electric light bulb situation, first illuminated by Senator David A. Reed. Councilman Garland, like Senator Reed, says Japan can sell electric light bulbs in this country much cheaper than we can manufacture them.

Garland says millions of Christmas tree illuminations made in Japan will be used here in December, that happiness in Christian hearts will be lit by heathens Says Councilman Garland, vote

'PANTHER MAN' HELD IN THEFT, ATTACK QUIZ

Identified by Victim, Accused of Attempt To Shoot Officer

The activities of East End's "Panther Man," Negro suspect, arrested in connection with attacks and robberies of women, continued to be investigated today.

The suspect, Earl Allen, 18, of Wall street, was ordered held in Morals Court yesterday after he had been identified, police say, by Mrs. Robert Brown as the man who attempted an attack in her apartment, 339 Spahr street.

Allen was arrested Saturday night in Spahr street by Patrolman George Mamula, who had been investigating the "Panther."

The suspect attempted to shoot the officer with an automatic pistol, but the hammer fell on an empty chamber, it was reported. Mamula countered with a hard right, which he said broke his hand and knocked the Negro unconscious.

At the hearing yesterday Allen denied attacking Mrs. Brown. Detectives are attempting to link him with many other robberies and attacks in the district. In most cases the description of the assailant was the same.

SLAIN BANDIT'S CHUM HELD

Joseph Rafalski, 23, of 170 Home street, wounded, police say, in the holdup of the Atlantic refining Company's gasoline station, East Ohio street and Troy Hill road, August 14, today was held for court on robbery charges by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Station.

Rafalski's alleged accomplice, Charles Lee, 21, of 80 Home street, was shot and killed at the same time the former was wounded by Patrolman John P. Wachter and Edward Werner, who had lain in wait following two previous holdups.

WOMAN'S DEATH LINKED TO DRUG

The death of Alma Brooks, 32, in a rooming house at 1202 Forbes street yesterday is being investigated by homicide sleuths today.

The door of the room had been forced and the officers said there were bruises on her face and body. An examination, however, indicated the blows would not have caused her death.

A bottle that had contained a strong sleeping potion was found in the room, and deputy coroners believe that an overdose might have caused death.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 7.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, I am like Mr. Coolidge. You ain't going to get me taking sides in this election. I am going to write about aviation. Aviation will save this country some day, and I know no politician is going to do it. Wish we could get our presidential candidates to travel by plane, but there is no back platform to make the speeches from, and there is no plane big enough to carry all their "Yes" men. Had a great night flight from Fort Worth to Los Angeles. Night flying is smoother, cooler and the real time saver, and is becoming very popular on the lines.

Will Rogers

Back home after 21,000 miles through 20 countries. All big three-motored American planes, all American pilots, and co-pilots, a radio operator, in touch with Miami, or Brownsville, Tex., every minute, and a steward to feed you. And the whole fare was less than sixteen hundred dollars, and made the trip in less than three weeks. No night flying. You would be surprised at the progress in those countries. Arrive early in the afternoon, then sight-seeing wonderful old towns and cities every night. It's got any trip to Europe skinned a mile. These are the countries we are going to have to get our future trade with.

Here Is How to Mark Ballot for President

To Vote a Straight Party Ticket Mark a Cross (X) in this Column
PROHIBITION
COMMUNIST
LABOR
PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS
UNITED STATES SENATOR
TO VOTE FOR ROOSEVELT AND GARNER AND A STRAIGHT DEMOCRATIC TICKET, MARK YOUR BALLOT WITH A CROSS AS SHOWN AT LEFT AND AS AN EXTREME PRECAUTION, ANOTHER CROSS AT THE RIGHT.
DO NOT VOTE FOR PRESIDENT IN THESE SQUARES BECAUSE YOUR BALLOT WILL BE THROWN AWAY. THE TICKETS NAMED HAVE NO PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

SPECIMEN BALLOT—Study this specimen ballot for use in Pennsylvania so that you can see four ways in which you might unwittingly THROW AWAY your vote for a presidential candidate. There are NO presidential candidates on the tickets called ROOSEVELT INDEPENDENT, LABOR and LIBERAL, hence there are no presidential electors. Gov. Roosevelt is NOT a candidate on the ROOSEVELT ticket, the ticket has no electors, can count NO votes towards Gov. Roosevelt's election. There are candidates for other offices on the Independent, Liberal and Labor tickets, but to vote for them and still have your presidential ballot counted you must vote a split ticket as shown at the top.

On the Pennsylvania ballot are no names of individual presidential electors, but merely the names of the Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates, for whom you vote. The individual electors, already selected by the candidates, will vote for the Presidential candidate receiving the majority vote in Pennsylvania.

The best way to vote for Roosevelt and Garner, and at the same time to vote for candidates for other offices on other tickets, is to mark a cross in the Democratic column at the left, then put other crosses after the names of individual candidates for lesser offices on other tickets. This plan can be reversed, with a cross in the Republican column, and another cross after the names of Roosevelt and Garner. There is always the chance, however, that in the Presidential count this last cross may be overlooked, so the surest way is to put the first cross in the Democratic column, then split your ticket by putting crosses after other names.

In no case vote for more than one candidate for the same office, where there is only one persons to be elected. That will invalidate your vote.

WILD CARGO :-: By FRANK BUCK

CHAPTER XXII.

On one of my trips I wound up in Zamboanga, which is the American military headquarters for Mindanao. Some soldiers of the Philippine constabulary were being sent up to Cotabato Province to quell a disturbance there. The officer in command was a friend of mine and he suggested that I accompany him. Always eager for a new experience when it doesn't interfere with my animal-collecting activities, I accepted the invitation. When we arrived at the town of Parang in a small trading boat commandeered for the trip, we found that the two factions that had quarreled were now in accord, but that it was necessary for my friend and his command to make the short trip inland to the scene of the trouble and stay a few days. A thorough investigation had to be made so that a full report could be filed in the killings that had taken place.

I found myself growing interested in the old Moro dato of the district, who had a 25-foot python that he kept as a pet. Some of the world's biggest specimens came from this part of the universe. The longest python skin on exhibit anywhere is the one, originally from this same province, on display at the Bureau of Science in Manila. It is 33 feet long. (In the process of mounting, it must have stretched, its real length probably having been about 30 feet.)

Like all Moros, who are the principal inhabitants of Mindanao, the headman was a Mohammedan. But it is a far cry from the Near Eastern centers of the Islam faith to these re-

SURVEY SHOWS COSTS DOUBLE IN DISTRICT

Low Levies in East Contrasted With West Penn Rates

Fire insurance rates in Western Pennsylvania, outside of Allegheny County, are in some cases double the rates on the same classes of property in the eastern part of the state, according to survey compiled by the Insurance Commission of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh.

Recently three Protestant bodies, the Methodists, Presbyterians and United Presbyterians, together with the Catholic diocese, asked for an adjustment in rates from the Rating Bureau of the Middle Department, with headquarters at Philadelphia. Their petitions were without avail.

CHARGE INEQUALITIES

The inequalities in rates not only apply to church properties, but particularly to homes, according to a statement from a Catholic insurance commission.

Several years ago insurance rates were substantially reduced in Allegheny County. Rate structures in other parts of Western Pennsylvania were untouched at that time, and as a result many inequalities remain, it is charged.

West of a line drawn diagonally north and south through the state in the neighborhood of Huntingdon, Pa., insurance rates, according to the survey of the Catholic Insurance Commission, are as much as 250 per cent higher.

The commission at first investigated insurance rates chiefly as they concerned churches, and found that a brick church in an unprotected town in Eastern Pennsylvania pays $3.60 per $1,000 in fire protection as against $9 per $1,000 for a similar church in the same type of town in Western Pennsylvania, outside of Allegheny County.

RATES HIGH ON HOMES

For a brick church in a protected town, Western Pennsylvania pays a rate of $3.50 against a rate as low as $2 in the eastern section.

The owner of a little frame home in Western Pennsylvania, outside of Allegheny County, according to the survey, pays $3.20 per $1,000 in a protected town, as against $1.90 for a similar property in Eastern Pennsylvania. The rate in Allegheny County on the frame house under similar conditions is $2.40.

There has been nothing in recent years to indicate greater fire loss in Western Pennsylvania than in the eastern part of the state, according to a statement by the Commission.

Large eastern groups have absorbed most of the fire insurance companies, it is declared, and the rate-making is largely done in New York. The explanation of the low insurance rates in Eastern Pennsylvania, it is stated, is the existence of old mutual companies there, many of them of Quaker origin.

Hoover Gloomy Now; He Wasn't That Way Before
By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

And we wonder who wrote the speeches that Mr. Hoover put on the air.

Herbie was never that way before. In 1928 he promised us prosperity, two chickens in every egg and the same number of cars in every junkpile.

But in 1932 he is the face at every window of a haunted house.

He is hollering there ain't no Santa Claus. He is predicting calamity, disaster and ruin.

When it comes to galloping up and down the 85 notes of gloom Herbie is the real kitten on the keys.

Well, we will make a job for Herbie after tomorrow. He can be master of hounds for the four hossmen.

High Court Outlaws Home Rum Search

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today ruled that a search warrant cannot be issued to prohibition agents for search of a private residence unless there is real evidence that the place is being used for the sale of liquor.

The high court made its ruling in reversing conviction and five-year sentence of William Grau, of Newport, Ky. He was convicted of manufacturing liquor.

Four 'Runaway' Girls End Journeys Here

Edna Mae Mitchell, 17, and Barbara Yaznec, 19, of Youngstown, Pa., believed runaways, were in East End Police Station today, while police awaited a reply from their parents.

Police picked them up last night at Braddock avenue and Forbes street and took them into custody when they doubted their "hitch-hiking" story. Believing them runaways, the officers sent word to their relatives.

Evelyn Eby, of 429 Olive street, McKeesport, and Jone Brenner, of 514 Olive street, both 14, were found weeping in the downtown last night after they had been reported missing from their homes. They were turned over to their parents by an unidentified motorist.

GARBAGE CASE IRKS JUDGE

Homestead Borough wants to build an incinerator plant within 250 feet of one of the borough's schools.

When the matter was being argued before Judge James H. Gray today the court asked:

"Who invented this idea of Common Pleas Court approving incinerator plant sites?"

His question came after P. H. McGuire, borough solicitor, invited the court to inspect the site, in Sixth avenue between McClure avenue and Ann street.

Harry Markley, council secretary, said the site was within 250 feet of a school, when interrogated by the objectors. Markley said Munhall Borough had been disposing of Homestead's garbage at $4 a ton until this year, when they cut it to $3. He said it should not cost more than 80 cents a ton.

Hurley Forced Down On Westward Flight

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The plane carrying Secretary of War Patrick J Hurley on a campaign speaking tour was forced to land here last night because of foggy weather.

With Hurley was Assistant United States Attorney General Roy St. Louis. They were en route to Oklahoma. Republican leaders here staged an impromptu banquet in honor of the Secretary.

MORE CONCERNS AID POOR

Harry W. Shepard, general manager of the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, today said he expected more Pittsburgh firms shortly to offer a percentage of their receipts from sales of their products to his association, without increase of cost to the consumer.

The movement was started by the Tom Collins, Jr., Company, of Cincinnati, when its president, Philip Steiner, responded to Shepard's suggestion and announced his firm would donate one-half cent to the association for every bottle of his product sold in Allegheny County. Tom Collins, Jr., is a carbonated lime and lemon flavored beverage.

Steiner's action was followed by an offer from Newell J. Lewis, president of the Pennsylvania Paper Stock Company, to pay the association 50c for each ton of paper received at his plant from November until March, 1933, after October receipts had been equaled. Lewis also offered to sell paper donated to the association by business houses. Shepard today said:

"If a number of other firms in the Pittsburgh district will take similar steps, a sizeable sum of money—enough to do inestimable good for the destitute of Allegheny County—can be raised. I think it is a fine stunt, especially since the consumer is not asked to pay."

8,000 TO TAKE FIELD IN FIGHT FOR NEEDY

Preparations for the Welfare Fund campaign for $2,500,000 for its 1933 budget, set to begin Wednesday morning, swung along today with a rally dinner scheduled for tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Heads of the employes' division of the campaign organization will meet at 6:30 p. m. in the Fort Pitt hotel. Men, women and children actually engaged in social service will take part in five skits demonstrating phases of relief work.

Holgar J. Johnson, insurance executive, will address the rally, over which James Rae, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, is to preside.

The drive will open Wednesday morning with more than 8,000 solicitors in the field—the largest number ever to seek funds for continuance of Allegheny County's social service.

At a luncheon meeting of the men's team of the central division of the campaign organization, 300 men received instructions for their solicitations. W. P. Witherow, general chairman of the drive; Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the fund, and David M. Craig, chairman of the division, spoke.

STUDENT RALLY BROKEN UP

LORAIN, O., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Six Oberlin College students were arrested yesterday when, with two score of their fellow members of the Oberlin Thomas-for-President Club, they disregarded Mayor Joseph G. Conley's refusal of a permit for a public meeting and conducted a political session at Streeter Park.

The six were charged with violation of a municipal ordinance requiring a permit for public speeches. They were freed on their own recognizance.

The other students and a throng of Lorain residents estimated by police at 200 were dispersed by officers, who advised the students to return to Oberlin.

More than a score of co-eds were among the members of the campus club who followed their leaders to the park near Lorain Public Library.

Girl 'White Slave' Witness Escapes

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Federal agents are conducting a wide search today for Jacqueline Pangborn, 19, government witness under $10,000 bond, who escaped from the county jail.

The girl, who was being held to testify against a ring accused of violating the Mann act, slipped out of the prison Saturday night as the warden was making his rounds.

1933 License Card Mailing Begins

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—The State Department of Revenue today began the mailing of 1,953,920 applications for 1933 license tags to Pennsylvania motorists.

The mailing date was a month later than usual. The department thus hopes to minimize the loss and misplacing of hundreds of the blanks which it is believed resulted from early mailing.

TRUCKS HALTED IN WEST VA.

The first blow against Interstate truckers of the Pittsburgh district in retaliation for the Pennsylvania law requiring truckers of other states operating in Pennsylvania to obtain Pennsylvania license plates was reported today.

C. A. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, said that the Lindy Air Products Company, of Trafford City, reported one of its trucks was held at Chester, W. Va., Saturday night because it did not have West Virginia plates, and another firm also reported one of its drivers was warned at Weirton, W. Va.

Pennsylvania trucks have been impounded in New Jersey because they did not bear New Jersey licenses, but heretofore there had been no similar action reported in the states bordering on Western Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania law requires trucks making regularly scheduled trips for commercial purposes into this state or that make 15 accumulated trips must have Pennsylvania plates.

Druggist Ends Life In Wylie Ave. Store

Solomon Kalet, 32, ended his life by swallowing poison yesterday in his drug store, 1100 Wylie avenue, according to a Coroner's report. The loss of an eye several years ago and financial difficulties were reported to have prompted Kalet's act. He was found in the store by his wife, Mrs. Goldyne Kalet.

Two tracks on the Pennsylvania right of way were blocked yesterday as a result of the derailment.

MONONGAHELA BANK PLAN O.K. DENIED

Representations that Acting Comptroller of the Currency F. G. Awalt had approved a plan for reopening of the Monongahela National Bank, made Saturday by John E. Crawford, chairman of a depositors' committee of the bank, were denied by Awalt in Washington today.

Awalt said depositors should not be misled by the published statements.

Crawford today presented his plan to Pittsburgh bankers, looking to approval of re-opening by the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, of which J. C. Chaplin is vice president.

The plan, as outlined by Crawford, would call for depositors taking over assets of the old bank, putting up new money, paying off small depositors 100 per cent at once and large depositors 70 per cent now, 30 per cent later.

Crawford said Saturday that Awalt had given him until December 19 to obtain approval of his plans.

RED CHIEF SEES WAR CERTAIN

By LINTON WELLS

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—The declaration that "future war is inevitable" was made here today by Klementi Voroshilov, Soviet commissar for war and navy, as 50,000 well-trained Soviet troops marched in Red square to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution.

Standing on a rostrum in front of Lenin's tomb, flanked by high officials of the Soviet government, members of the diplomatic corps and distinguished guests, Voroshilov once again sounded the cry of "defense of the soil" which has become the byword of modern Russia.

Voroshilov thundered:

"When this war comes, we do not intend to allow ourselves to be drawn in.

"But if there is increasing menace of armed invasion, we will rise and defend our soil to the last gasp that is in our bodies."

PITTSBURGHER DIES AS STUNT PLANE FALLS

RANDOLPH, Mass., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Three young aviators, all socially prominent, were killed during a Sunday afternoon plane ride after executing a series of hazardous stunts.

They were Frederick Lothrop Ames, 29, of Boston and Newport, R. I., widely known yachtsman and president of Skyways, Inc., a Boston aviation company; Miss Frances Burnett, 22, of Southboro, daughter of the founder of the Burnett Vanilla Extract Company, and Frank Penrose Sproul, of Pittsburgh, Pa., a grandson of former Gov. W. C. Sproul, of Pennsylvania.

STUNTS SCATTER CROWD

The three left East Boston airport and headed for the North Easton estate of the Ames family. After landing at North Easton they had planned to fly to Newport, R. I.

Pilots at the airport said Ames' monoplane executed a number of stunts as it left the port. The Skyways official narrowly avoided a plane in the air and then swooped under another plane and as he dove he came so slow that spectators scattered.

As the Ames' plane neared Randolph it twisted, jerked and rolled through the sky in a number of difficult maneuvers, according to spectators.

DESCRIBES CRASH

Fred Lakewitz, of Holbrook, himself an aviator and first to apprise the airport of the accident, described the crash. Lakewitz said he was lying in the sun watching an Army plane that had been flying over him. He had binoculars. He said:

"I heard a ship growl toward Randolph.

"When I first saw the plane it was in a vertical dive. The pilot pulled out of that all right, climbed up again and started flying level in a southern direction toward Randolph.

"After he'd done six flat tail spins, I began to be afraid he couldn't get out. I counted nine and then lost sight of the falling plane behind the trees. I jumped into the house and telephoned over to the airport and told them one of their planes had cracked up."

Ames was found in the forward part of the cockpit and his passengers in the rear. All were dead.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH

GORMANIA, W. Va., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—O. R. Hamrick, 33, manager of the Clarksburg, W. Va., airport, and John Shulte, 21, also of Clarksburg, were burned to death when their plane crashed near here yesterday.

They were en route to Washington to bring Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, to his home in Clarksburg.

Hayes Zieman, who saw the crash, said the plane's motor was missing badly and that it suddenly nose-dived and burst into flames when it struck the ground.

A heavy fog made air travel difficult, residents said, but the accident apparently occurred from motor trouble.

The men were flying the National Commander, named in honor of Johnson.

TWO KILLED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Carl A. Bayer, 16-year-old aviator and high school student, and his sister, Anna, 17, a student nurse, were killed today when a plane Bayer had borrowed crashed.

Perturbed About Bulbs But Not Consumers

But the Councilman—and Senator Reed—stopped too soon with this electric bulb story. They should have talked about the current which will light the bulbs, and the tax of 3 per cent which all consumers pay.

As passed by the Senate, the tax bill put that tax on such corporations as the Duquesne Light Company. But when the bill went to conference with the House, Senator Reed—originally voting to put the tax on the consumer—participated in overturning the will of the Senate, and saw that the tax finally WAS put on the consumer.

Senator Reed and Councilman Garland were much perturbed about the bulbs—but not much about the consumers.

The big disappointment of the campaign has been Gov. Pinchot, who has gone back to the forgotten day of the silent movie.

All Pennsylvanians had believed that Mr Pinchot was one of the first public men to be wired for sound, but he hasn't indicated by word or deed where he stands in this campaign.

Two more nominations before election day. As candidates for the role in this campaign of unknown political soldier, Col. Samuel D. Foster and Col. Robert G. Woodside.

Bruce A. Campbell, of East St. Louis, a defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Illinois, is prominently mentioned to take Karch's place on the Democratic ticket. Others being mentioned are Edwin M. Schaefer, treasurer of the St. Clair County Democratic Committee, and State's Attorney Harry Jackson, of Monroe County.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday.

Little Consideration Shown By Some Visitors

Has a mere husband a right to entertain his friends in his home?

James' little woman thought he hadn't. It was okay if she wanted to throw a party—for her cronies. But if poor James wanted to ask in a few of the boys—well, that was different!

So James busted into this department, plenty indignant, to ask us if we didn't think he was getting a raw deal. We told him it looked as if he was, and advised him to tell the lady that she didn't own the premises—that he had just as much right to enjoy the home as she had.

And thereby hangs a few hints. If your "worse half" is bucking about your friends, look 'em over. They may give you an idea why.

Dear Sally—

Having read the letter from some mere man—I've forgotten what he called himself—about his wife objecting to entertaining his friends, I am moved to give a few of my ideas about husbands' boy friends.

My husband has many friends, too. Some he has known since school days. Some he has met in business. Some are fellow church members, and so on. Personally, I don't find many of these friends desirable, any more than this man's wife finds his desirable.

However, I do let my husband entertain them in our home. It is just as much his home as it is mine, and he has just as good a right to enjoy it as I have.

INCONSIDERATE FRIENDS

But here is what I started out to say: I wish that men—and particularly the man who wrote that letter—would give their friends the once-over before complaining about their wives not liking to have them as guests.

One of my husband's friends has the habit of throwing cigaret ashes back of the sofa, or any other "handy" place that he happens to see. He also goes to sleep at the slightest excuse, then wakes up when everyone else is ready to go home, and creates a scene "because the party is dull."

Another one comes over once or twice a week for meals, and never takes us, or even my husband, to his home for a meal or any other entertainment.

Several others come to our house as often as they please, but when we go to their homes they expect us to pay half the expenses.

DISCOURTEOUS VISITOR

One old school friend, supposed to be well-educated, never even says "hello" to me, when he comes in. He plumps himself down, never addressing any remarks to anyone but my husband, stays to meals, and has to be shooed home when we wish to retire.

Now the ladies whom I entertain of afternoons are very agreeable, and everyone who knows them enjoys being with them, because they know how to act. And then I am invited to their homes in return, and nicely entertained.

It gets pretty tiresome to be always on the giving end for these fellows my husband has around, and to not even be treated with ordinary courtesy by them.

Maybe this fellow who wrote in has friends like that. And maybe, if he'd look 'em over, fairly and squarely, he could see his wife's side, too. I'm not saying she is doing right; but I am saying that maybe she has reasons for acting like that.

P. D. Q.

So there, big boys! And from a Missis who's a Regular Guy and a Good Sport!

Now you tell one!

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Card Reading

The requirements of Contract Bridge bidding, which on close hands demand perfect play in order to fulfill a contract undertaken, have developed card reading into a science. Those who are able to determine the distribution of suits in the hands of the defending players naturally have a great advantage over the player who attacks the hand on the hit-or-miss system, trusting all to a favorable finesse or a happy break in the suit.

The method by which one Declarer made a contract through clever card reading is disclosed on the hand below, which was played in a Rubber game at Crockford's Club, New York.

South—Dealer.

♠ A Q 10 9 8
♡ 7 6 5
◇ 10 3
♣ Q 3 2

♠ J 7 6
◇ A 8 7 6
♣ K J 10 4

North / West / East / South

♠ 5 4 2
♡ A K 10 4
◇ Q 5 4
♣ 9 7 5

♠ K 3
♡ Q J 3 2
◇ K J 9 2
♣ A 8 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇ (1)	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 NT (2)	Pass	2 NT (3)	Pass
3 NT (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South's choice of an Opening bid is based on the Approach principle. The hand contains 3 honor-tricks — ½ honor-trick over the minimum requirement for an Opening bid—and therefore he prefers to shade the requirement as to strength in the suit rather than make a notrump bid, to which it is more difficult for his partner to respond.

2—Implying lack of adequate support for partner's Takeout and hinting that the hand itself is not greatly above a minimum. The bidding, however, is a splendid illustration of the use of the "One over One" principle. If South's hand were an exact minimum, he would pass the bid of one spade.

3—North's raise to two notrump is perhaps slightly optimistic. However, he knows that the South hand is slightly over a minimum and his hand contains a five-card suit, which may easily be establishable, and almost 2 honor-tricks.

4—The bid of three notrump is largely predicated on the fact that South knows there is a partial fit in spades, and South feels sure that North's bid of two notrump either indicates a five-card spade suit or sufficient honor-trick strength to make the contract safe.

The opening lead was the club 4, which South could read as fourth best. A low card was played from Dummy, and East's 9 forced the Ace. Five rounds of spades were at once taken, upon which East discarded his two remaining clubs. South parted with one diamond and two clubs. West discarded two diamonds. The Ten of diamonds was now led from Dummy, West winning with the Ace. West now led the 9 of hearts, and East refused to win.

South won with the Knave and returned the Queen of hearts, forcing East into the lead and compelling him at the end to concede 2 tricks in diamonds, as he was forced to lead into the diamond tenace in the Declarer's hand. The successful finesse against the Queen in the diamond suit, coupled with the information given by the spades, gave to South the key to the correct play of his hand. It is probable that if South had gambled on the location of the club King on the first lead, he could have also made his contract, but the method he adopted was much more accurate and in accordance with the play of the most expert players.

Today's Question

What is the proper Opening bid, holding:

♠ A 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♡ 7 ◇ 5 4 ♣ —

Answer: The best bid with a hand of this kind is a pass, as the surprise element of entering the bidding on a later round will probably make it possible to play the hand at three or four spades doubled, which should yield a better return than making the Preemptive bid of four spades, which would probably be passed by the other three players.

Educating Child for Safety

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The mother of two schoolchildren sighed. "Well, thank goodness, they're safe at home once more."

Surveys by interested groups and cold, hard statistics from insurance companies prove conclusively that the "safe at home" idea is a fallacy, for there are many accidents that happen in the home and will continue to happen until they are eradicated, not through over-caution or fear, but through education.

We can't, in fairness to the child, be warning him always of hidden dangers. That would breed the uncertain, fearful child, and that we most certainly don't want to do. All we can do is to educate the child. Teach him how to manipulate objects which hold danger for the careless or uninitiated. That is the only remedy I know.

Children are universally attracted by matches and fire. It is an understandable and age-old urge, that of experimentation with fire, and when a child gets to the stage of being interested in matches I, for one, should feel that the time had arrived to show him what they are for and how to handle them.

I should teach him always to hold the extinguished match under the water faucet for a second before throwing it into the trash basket. I should call him and extend the privilege of lighting the burners for me, and extract the promise that he will not light them when alone.

Children should be taught how to use knives, and the necessity of closing them when the work is finished. Dad should initiate boys into the mysteries of electricity and the proper way of coping with loose connections. A child should be taught how to place a ladder surely and squarely before climbing on it.

All these things can be taught, intelligently, carefully, with reasonable emphasis put on the side of caution. Laws, police and firemen cope with outside factors which jeopardize our safety, but only we can make the homes safe, and that through education.

Only Child More Akin to Orphan Than Pampered Pet—Fay King

SISTERS AND BROTHERS WHO ARE DEVOTED TO EACH OTHER THROUGH THEIR LIVES KNOW MORE LOVE AND AFFECTION THAN ANY ONLY CHILD
AN ONLY CHILD IS NOT SELFISH, BUT IS SELF-RELIANT.
MY MOTHER'S MOTHER WAS AN ONLY CHILD, MY MOTHER WAS AN ONLY CHILD, AND I AM AN ONLY "CHILD" SO I FEEL SOMEWHAT OF AN AUTHORITY ON THAT SUBJECT
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Lately in reference to the fact that Gov. Roosevelt is an only child, I read again that mistaken notion that only children are spoiled and pampered.

It is quite the contrary. An only child always receives the minimum of affection for the maximum of devotion.

In a numerous family parents bestow the same love, but other children share responsibilities, pleasures or sorrows.

Only children must look to outsiders for the congenial companionship of a family circle. It takes greater tact, consideration and unselfishness to gain such outside the home.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, an only child, envying those with sisters and brothers, wrote that "they are born to be friends."

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Lillian Finds Relief in Tears

Harry Underwood's answer to his wife's hysterical query was as gentle as it was curt and decisive.

"We are not going away from here," he said. "They want us to drive around to the side entrance, where we can reach the private apartment of Dr. and Mrs. Barnes without our coming being generally noticed. The school knows nothing as yet. It won't be a minute now before you see them."

There we all alighted and, going up the steps found Dr. and Mrs. Barnes standing just inside the open door. Both were pale, almost haggard, but composed, their kindly, sympathetic eyes showing the intense strain which the affair had put upon them.

I was sure that no possible blame could be attached to either Dr. Barnes or his wife, for the school is run with as nearly cloistered seclusion as is compatible with the daughters of American families; but Mrs. Barnes' eyes told me that she dreaded the almost inevitable reproach of a half-crazed mother.

BEGINS TO CRY

"I left my child with you," said Lillian. "Where is she?"

But Lillian's nature is so inherently fine and her willpower so thoroughly disciplined that even in her own greatest stress she can give both justice and comfort to another's need, and I was not surprised to hear her say huskily, after one swift glance at the other's eyes.

"Before you tell me anything, let me say this. We know that no possible blame attaches to the school, or to either of you."

"That goes double for me," he said. "I didn't have a chance to tell you before."

A little choking cry from Lillian interrupted me. Tears, in which I guessed she rarely indulged, and then only in the privacy of her own bedroom, had welled to Mrs. Barnes' eyes.

WANTS MADGE

"You wonderful woman," she said huskily. Then suddenly the two women were in each other's arms, and Lillian was sobbing convulsively against Mrs. Barnes' shoulder.

"Is this the first time?" I heard Dr. Barnes say in a low voice to Mr. Underwood.

"Yes, I've been hoping for it," the big man softly replied.

"Best thing that could happen," the head of Whitney Hall said in low tones, but briskly, and I saw that his natural initiative and resourcefulness had been strengthened by the approval of Marion's parents.

"Take Mrs. Underwood into your own room, dear, for a minute or two," he said to his wife in somewhat louder tones. "And will the rest of you come into the sitting room? This hall is private, but we can make you more comfortable inside."

But Lillian, with face still hidden, put out a groping hand.

"I want Madge," she said childishly, and then added with her never-failing sense of justice, "and Mary, too."

But my husband's wise young niece shook her head at me and, motioning me to go with Lillian and Mrs. Barnes, she followed the men into the living room. Mrs. Barnes stood still after they had left, waiting motionless until Lillian's paroxysm of sobbing had subsided. Then she said quietly. "Come in here, my dear."

"Sit down here," Mrs. Barnes said, motioning to me to push forward a chair. But Lillian stood erect and shook her head.

"No, no, I can't!" she said. "Don't be afraid for me. I am perfectly all right. This cry was just what I needed. You have helped me so much—"

She smiled, through eyes still wet, at Mrs. Barnes.

"But I must get back in there and hear everything."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Dr. Copeland

One of the most puzzling and bewildering diseases of infancy is marasmus, also known as "infantile atrophy" or simple "wasting." This disease attacks infants and children, but it is only within recent years that its nature has been scientifically understood.

Marasmus is rarely encountered in the children of healthy parents, and it is believed to be due to a hereditary weakness. Such children fail to gain weight in spite of properly supervised and well-regulated meals.

Some cases can be traced to improper feeding, chronic infection, poor eating and sleeping habits, and the lack of sunshine and fresh air. Marasmus is often associated, also, with tuberculosis and other constitutional diseases.

Children suffering from malnutrition or undernourishment are usually pale and thin, have poor posture and tire easily. A child suffering from marasmus is indeed a pathetic sight.

Marked loss of weight causes the child's skin to wrinkle and hang in folds. He looks old. His legs are like drumsticks, and his hands resemble bird's claws. It hardly seems possible that an individual could be so emaciated and live.

The care of a child suffering from marasmus should be under the constant supervision of a physician. It is a serious ailment and is fatal unless energetic measures are taken. The cure is more easily accomplished at a hospital, where newly devised scientific facilities are available.

Our knowledge of artificial infant feeding has advanced, making possible a cure for these unfortunate children, and when recovery takes place the victims grow up to be sturdy and healthy persons. But continued care is necessary to accomplish a cure, and particular attention should be given to the diet.

The diet should contain adequate amounts of milk, fruits, green vegetables, eggs, meat, cereals and bread. The child should not be forced or coaxed to eat, but should be taught good food habits. Neither can I overemphasize the importance, in this ailment, of plenty of sleep, rest, fresh air and sunlight.

Exercise is valuable, but should not be too active. The child should be weighed once a week until he shows a definite and continued increase in weight. Periodic medical examinations are valuable, but the child should be dealt with as a normal person. Do not discuss illness in his presence.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Plump gals, carrying surplus weight, get to be slow-going traffic. When they reduce, acquire the willowy shape, they must learn to walk properly, as befits an active, slenderized lady. Few bulky women are graceful of movement. One of the best of all fat-absorbing methods is rhythmic dancing.

Eye shadows belong to the exotic type, the kind of a girl who can get away with extreme styles, who has a bit of the scenic about her. Quiet little mouses, demure and prim, are out of character when they go in for an excessive amount of complexion batik. Simplicity is their long suit in complexion decorations and dress. Very attractive they are too when they keep their beautifying ambitions to simple, natural effects.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Go out and wear a smart new capelet. A grand new model for general wear is a two-tiered capelet of kidskin. The combination is bright fawn-colored kid on dark brown kid and it is smart with red or brown.

Dramatize yourself by wearing black with red. An evening frock of black Bagherra velvet with an unbelted but molded silhouette has a long train cut in one with the skirt. At the armholes are wheels of red coque feathers and a red chiffon hankie is carried.

On the fringe depends much of the touch of Old World charm in trimming that marks the new mode. A frock of brilliant black satin crepe has the lower part of the wide sleeves and the front of the bodice trimmed with little bunches of fringe so irregularly placed as to give the effect of white ostrich feathers.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—If a couple intends to be married very quietly—by a justice of the peace or in a church, or in a minister's home, should engagement announcements be sent out?

2—Should wedding announcements be sent out, and how soon after the wedding?

3—Does the bride carry a bouquet of flowers or a corsage in such a case? READER.

1—It is never good form to send out engagement announcements, that is, of the formal kind. The couple write to their friends, telling them that the engagement has been determined on . . . and, if they wish, the parents of the bride-to-be announce it in the newspapers. That is all that is necessary. The form of the engagement is not affected by the plan for the form of the marriage ceremony.

2—When the wedding is such an informal, small one as the one you mention is apparently planned to be, it is most convenient to have wedding announcements. They may be ordered . . . they really should be . . . before the wedding, and then they can be all ready to mail directly after the ceremony has been performed.

3—When the bride is informally dressed, she usually wears a corsage, on her shoulder or at her waist. However, if she prefers to carry a bouquet, it is quite correct for her to do so.

Huge Python Eats Owner's Pet Child

mote islanders who, many generations ago, were converted by Mohammedan missionaries from the most primitive kind of savages into "true believers." It is not surprising then that they sometimes mix their Mohammedanism with a little paganism. In the case of the old dato this confusion of Allah's guidance with original racial savagery well-nigh took the form of animal worship. The man's love for his great snake was touching. He explained to me that many years back, when it was only about half its present length and he could safely let it roam the premises, this python had cleared his place of rats. (The Moro language is pretty much like Malay, which I can speak fairly well. Whenever I got stuck I had one of the soldiers act as interpreter.)

The old fellow believed implicitly that his snake was a divine messenger and that while he retained this emissary from a strange heaven, as he tried to explain to me, no bad fortune could befall him.

About noon of the day we were due to leave there was much excitement in the village when it became known that the dato's python had escaped. One of the old man's carabaos had been browsing in an enclosure adjoining the big cage where the python was kept. The animal had got its huge horns caught in the bamboo uprights of the cage, and, in yanking himself loose, had left an opening large enough to permit the reptile to glide out.

PYTHON HUNGRY

The old man stopped his wailing long enough to explain that normally the python (which he referred to as "my god") would not have taken advantage of the opportunity to escape. But the creature was hungry. "I had been looking for a stray dog to feed him," explained the old boy. "But I could not find one. I did not want to feed him one of my goats unless I had to." The python, it seems, had not eaten for several weeks and was now ready for a meal. (These reptiles usually eat once every six to eight weeks, depending on their condition. I have known them to go foodless for several months without any ill effects.)

My officer friend liked the old man and assigned some of his soldiers to help the members of the household in their search for the missing python. I joined the searching party, too, rightly expecting it to prove an interesting experience.

The head-man did all he could to spur us on in our search, frantically crying at regular intervals. "My god is gone from me! Now I shall have no more good fortune!"

We combed quite a stretch of woods (not real jungle) near the old fellow's dwelling, without any success. Then, as the officer was beginning to wonder how much longer he could allow his soldiers to participate in the hunt, one of his men yelled that he had located the fugitive. We ran over and found the python coiled up under some heavy brush.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY

When the soldiers indicated that they did not want to get too close, the old man, now happy and smiling, said, "He knows me and will not harm anyone." I helped him pull the heavy snake (the creature weighed over 300 pounds) clear of the dark brush while the soldiers stood by ready to shoot in the event of a mishap. We might have been tugging away at so many yards of heavy ship's rope for all the response there was. As soon as we got a good look at the python it was obvious to all of us, from the great bulge it showed, that it had just eaten. That, of course, accounted for its sluggishness. It would be nine days before this creature would digest its meal and be active again.

Interested to know what the snake had devoured, I ran my hands over the bulge. I could feel a round knobby something that suggested a human head! Working both hands feverishly a little below this point, I found myself tracing the outline of human shoulders! There was no longer any doubt in my mind. There was a human body inside that reptile—probably that of a child.

When I communicated my belief to the old man he showed no concern, his joy over the finding of his "god" representing his one and only emotion.

CHILD MISSING

After we had dragged the snake back to the house and returned him to his cage which was quickly repaired (although it would be several days before the creature could slip through that opening again), the old head-man called a meeting of his family which consisted of six wives and 21 children. Even the offspring that were working in the rice fields were called in for the check-up, the meeting taking place beside the python's cage.

It developed that Taqua, the only son of Tata Kena (I recall the names distinctly) was missing. As Tata Kena was his "number one" wife, her boy was his favorite child. When the head-man officially decided that his pet son was no more, I expected him to set up a terrific wailing. Instead he entered the cage, and, stroking the sluggish python where the boy's head bulged out, said, "My Taqua will sure go to heaven; he is inside god." With this he consoled the weeping Tata Kena, even rebuking her for failing to share his view of the matter.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: The day after your item appeared about that bank forcing its employes to contribute money to its Hoover fund, it returned the money to them saying they didn't want "certain newspapermen" to think they were intimidating their staff, etc. . . . So score another for the column, mister . . . Ken Murray spent a fortune all week long-distant-phoning Mona Maris in H'wood . . . It looks like Fred Berrens, who stated he would give $100 to your pet charity, ought to—for Harry Barris can prove that his song, "Lies," has a range of only 3½ tones . . . Betty Starbuck, the actress, is worried because too many of her friends think she's gone tall millinery on them . . . Well, it seems that she hasn't, but her eyes have troubled her plenty lately, and she can't see well three feet away. I think if you say so for her, it will make her happy.

Len Golos thought you'd like his definition of New York—"a place for two-faced guys to double-cross on one-way streets" . . . "Hot Feets" is now getting the play in the Village since Barney's folded. It is the only really blazing spot left, plenty lowdown . . . Ethelind Terry's ex-groom, Ben Bogeaus, has been reported married again on the Coast . . . Well, he isn't, and is not rushing anybody . . . Rex Cole says he knows how "extremely fair" you are, and that you do not desire to do anyone an injustice, and so he would like to straighten out the recent story about the fight between a flier and an aviator editor in Roscoe Turner's Waldorf suite. It was merely a fight over something the editor had written, and Miriam Hopkins was not there, and doesn't even know the parties concerned, etc. He will be deeply appreciative if you so state . . . The linking of her name, he believes, comes from the fact that Miss Hopkins was a passenger in the same plane with him, Cole (which Turner piloted), so do your stuff.

The other Tuesday a Sunday driver made an exceedingly poor left turn and almost hit me at 44th St. . . . The driver stopped his car and gave me a dirty look, to which I barked: "See here! I'm the one who should be disgusted, not you!" . . . The very idea! . . . Well, this goes to show you something or other . . . A girl writes that she wants to write jokes for Burns and Allen, and describes herself as "the girl the Prince of Wales asked to dance" . . . Now, which one is that? . . . And is that what happens to girls who are asked to dance with the P. of W.? . . . Jeannette Hackett is now ballroom-dancing with Dan Carthe . . . She sends her fondest . . . Here's a depression note from Rhinebeck, N. Y. . . . A woman there who washes clothes for a living couldn't deliver them last week "because her husband was off with their car on a hunting trip!" . . . Toss an orchid to the window decorator at the two Hudnut places on 5th Ave . . . No one except the decorator at Black, Starr & Frost-Gorham, Inc., can approach his work.

Frank Scully's "Fun in a Bed" doesn't deal with his adventures in hospitals. It's a book of gags, stories, etc., for people who are! . . . Jim Tully spent a week-end with Mencken at Menk's home and says that the report that no smoking is the law there is a canard! Mencken smokes corncob pipes all over the place, and Menk states that he formerly paid five cents a dozen for them, but now they're 25 cents a dozen, and he blames it all on prohibition! . . . If Roosevelt makes the grade, here's my suggestion for Sec'y of the Treasury—Bernard Baruch, and I know what I am talking about too!

When the news broke about young Rockefeller's wedding plans, someone on the Hurld-Trib made an amusing boner . . . In announcing the engagement of the boy, the paper's proofreaders permitted it to state that, in assuming the directorship of a certain bank in Harlem, the youth made his "debt" in the financial world! . . . Incidentally, one of the prize mistakes of the year was that of a famous 5th Ave. jewelry shop. On display in its window they featured a plaster replica of the head of Amelia Earhart—her book—and various diamond pins in the shape of airplanes . . . On two cards in the window Miss Earhart's name was misspelled. Such is the fame that comes from risking your life soloing the Atlantic by air.

Fred Waring's ex-wife was also named Dot—and it is she who is romancing again. Dorothy Lee, by the way, is on the coast Marshall Duffielding it, yet . . . Of course I don't know his name or shield number, but he rates an orchid anyhow, according to a pal of mine. I mean the cop, who was called into Silvers at 48th and 7th the other night to arrest three youths, who were starving. They went in, ate their fill, and then told the manager they couldn't pay. So he sent for the cop, who asked the manager what the bill was, and then paid it. "One of the Finest" is right, this time, Walter . . . And so saying, I remain your faithful Eve, Sheba, Cleo and Girl Friday.

Marie Jeritza, first prima donna of the season to visit Pittsburgh, will open the May Beegle Concerts in Syria Mosque Friday evening, November 11. Her program will include such favorites as "Il est doux, il est bon," from "Herodiade," by Massenet, and "Jeanne D'Arc," by Tschaikowsky, as well as an aria from "La Gioconda," by Ponchielli, and Verdi's "La Forza del Destino." She also will include "Nightingale Singing, Whippoorwill Winging," by Harvey B. Gaul, Pittsburgh composer and critic.

Sheridan Square Has Laurel, Hardy

Laural and Hardy, comedy team of the pictures, are cast as misfit but kindhearted doughboys in "Pack Up Your Troubles," comedy feature showing in the Sheridan Square. The boys take upon themselves the responsibility of finding the relatives of a child whose father was killed in the World War. Needless to say they make plenty of errors in their search for the child's relatives.

Beatrice Lillie Sued by Lawyer

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Beatrice Lillie, the British comedienne, today had been served with a summons in a suit for $639, which Roger Marchetti, Los Angeles attorney, claims is due him for legal services. He says he represented her in two court actions.

Dr. Curtius Dinner Speaker Here Tonight

Dr. Julius Curtius, former German minister of foreign affairs, will speak at a dinner of the Pittsburgh branch of the Foreign Policy Association in the Schenley Hotel tonight. His subject will be "European Economic Co-operation." He will be followed by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, chairman of the dinner.

Bulgarian Queen Awaiting Stork

LONDON, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—An heir to the throne of King Boris III of Bulgaria may be born around Christmas time, the Daily Mail's Sofia correspondent reported today. Queen Joanna, daughter of King Victor Emanuel of Italy, is expecting her first child at that time, according to the report.

Studio Scraps Mae West Play

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.

Story trouble plus a touch of "Hays-fever" has caused Paramount to scrap its plans for the production of "Diamond Lil," "Diamond Lady," "Honky Tonk" and all the other aliases under which the Mae West play was supposed to reach the screen.

Instead, the blonde star will do her culluloid emoting in an original story called "Ruby Red." Earnest endeavors fail to discover anything about the plot except the solemn assurance that it has no connection with "Diamond Lil."

Mae West

In cancelling that colorful extravaganza of the 90's, Paramount breaks up the proposed acting team of Miss West and John Davis Lodge, Boston blue-blood, who gave up a legal career to come out here and face the camera. Mr. Lodge, one is told, will now be given another assignment.

TOWN GOSSIP:

Last night Clara Bow entertained the entire company and crew on "Call Her Savage."

I put the red-head on the spot about her future.

She said:

"I've promised Sam Rork I'll make another picture for him if I like the story and if he will guarantee that there will be 75 per cent action against 25 per cent dialogue."

So, unless Clara changes her mind again, that's that.

In a quiet way, both Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., extend help to many Hollywood unfortunates. Right now, Doug is helping his stand-in go through an expensive corrective treatment for an eye affliction. He calls the hospital every day to see how the boy is.

If Carole Lombard okays the part, she will be Richard Barthelmess' leading woman in his new picture. In that recent tempest-in-a-teapot, they went ahead and cast her in the Cagney film without letting her see a script.

Carole Lombard

Mrs. Bob Montgomery is going to New York to visit her sister. She'll be back here to greet Bob on his return from that location trip to Honolulu. The Elliott Nugents are expecting another visit from the long-legged bird. In my morning's mail is a copy of Jim Tully's new book, "Laughter in Hell." Bought by Universal while still in proofs, it will be reaching the screen within a short time now.

HOLLYWOOD BY NIGHT

Making his initial appearance as an orchestra leader, Stanley Smith was greeted by a crowd of film celebrities in the Biltmore Garden Room. Constance Talmadge gave another of her big parties, while Mervyn Leroy, Eddie Sutherland and many others entertained. Merv was with Ginger Rogers, as usual. Talked to Margaret Livingstone, who'll be returning East in a few weeks now. She was with Evelyn Brent and Harry Edwards. Judging by appearances, Matty Kemp and Shirly Grey are looking at things through the same eyes. Jack Oakie brought Mary Lallande, also his mother. Viva Tattersall, whom you'll see in "Cynara," was among the dancers. Also Janet MacLeod and Gavin Gordon. Looks like Hollywood will add another rendezvous to its list.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The attraction for the week in the Nixon, beginning tonight, will be Walter Hampden in "Cyrano De Bergerac," for six nights and the customary matinees, Wednesday and Saturday. Owing to the extreme length of the play, curtains will rise at 8, sharp, and 2 o'clock at matinees.

Next week the Nixon bill will be Earl Carroll's "Vanities," edition that appeared last season in New York. In the company will be Al Trahan, Mitchell and Durant, Lucille Page, Betty Veronica and many other principals, besides the girls boasted by Monsieur Carroll as the most beautiful in the world. Seats will go on sale Thursday.

Betty Hanna will make her debut as leading woman for the Edwin Vail Players in the Pitt tonight, when she will appear in a role originated by Helen Hayes in "The Good Fairy." Tonight's performance will be sponsored by the Southwestern District Jewish Religious Schools. Tomorrow night election returns will be read between the acts of the performance.

* * *

Barry Conners, author of "Applesauce" and "The Patsy," wrote "Unexpected Husband," also a comedy, which will be presented by the Edwin Vail Players in the Pitt next week. It is bedroomy and farcical, but not suggestive, it is announced.

Tomorrow evening, in the College Club, North Craig street, Elmer Kenyon, dean of the drama department at Tech, will deliver the final discourse in a series of lectures on "The Spirit of the Time in Modern Dramatists." The specific topic will be "Luigi Pirandello, Italy." Eugene O'Neill, Noel Coward, Henri-Rene Lenormand, George Kaiser and Jacinto Benavente have been the subjects of previous talks in the series.

"Forward March" closed temporarily Saturday night, and the company departed for New York in two special Pennsylvania Railroad trains Sunday, one at midnight and the other at 10 a. m. Convinced that the new revue, which has much good material, cannot be made to go without "names," a member of the producing firm of Brown & Henderson, who also authored it, took the airways for Hollywood last week to angle for one or two. When it has a star or stars it will be presented to the public again.

Script of Crawford Picture Completed

Joan Crawford's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle will be an original story by William Faulkner, author of "Sanctuary" and "Light in August." Faulkner is now in Hollywood, where he recently completed work on this script, and Miss Crawford returned to the Culver City studios not long ago after being borrowed by United Artists to make "Rain."

Kate Smith Picture Named 'Cheerful'

The title "Cheerful" has been definitely set for Kate Smith's new Paramount picture, previously known as "Moon Song." Production on the story by Fannie Hurst will start immediately after the arrival of the singer in Hollywood.

War Path

Baxter Stars In Davis

By AL. GOUGH

In "Six Hours to Live," film in the Davis, a diplomat gives his life for his country, and science gives it back—for six hours. It is an adaptation of "Auf Widersehen," in which Warner Baxter plays the lead. Miriam Jordan, blonde, and John Boles, who, with a different nose, might pass for Mr. Baxter's double, play opposite.

The villain plays mostly in shadow. He's so unimportant in the cast, he is not even named. However, he manages to get in his licks and the play goes on.

Modern science, with a crackling of studio static and jagged lightning-like effects in the dark, leave much to imagination in the way of the eminent professor's ability to raise the dead. It's too bad his powers are limited, because if the hero had lived happily forever after, it would be a swell fairy story.

There is also a news reel and an alleged comedy.

Cohan and Durante Enright Stars

Politics, a timely subject, is the theme of "The Phantom President," current in the Enright. In the cast are George M. Cohan, Jimmy Durante and Claudette Colbert. Cohan plays a medicine show doctor who has been hired to impersonate a candidate for President. The real candidate is a colorless sort of chap who can't get his stuff over to the voters. Cohan knows how to get his "message" over. Durante plays the "doctor's" pal, and Miss Colbert is the sweetheart of the real, but colorless, candidate.

'Pigboats' Company Leaves Hollywood

The entire production company engaged in filming "Pigboats" is now on its way to Honolulu, where the picture is to be made at the Pearl Harbor naval submarine base. "Pigboats" is an adaptation of Commander Edward Ellsberg's story of life aboard a naval submarine, and the cast is headed by Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Jimmy Durante and Robert Young. The company plans to remain on its Hawaiian location for fully a month.

Avenue Cinema Bills German Talkie

Beginning a week's engagement in the Avenue Cinema today is "Vienna, City of Song," with Paul Morgan, Max Hansen and Charlotte Ander. The story deals with an unemployed musician who loves a shopkeeper's daughter. The shopkeeper says "no" to the affair, for the musician has little or no money. Then follows a little mixup in a lottery drawing and several of the characters go about spending money they don't possess.

Little Notes On Movies

More than 100,000 candidates anxious to become members of "Our Gang," have been interviewed by the Hal Roach studios during the past 10 years, according to Director Robert McGowan. About 37 youngsters have enjoyed the distinction thus far. This reveals that one in approximately 3,000 children has a chance to become a film rascal.

The maze of telephone connections at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios are sufficient to supply 2,000 people with communication facilities . . .

Friends in Need

THE FIVE GREAT bankers sat in a private dining room at the Great Dane Club. They were fat and wheezy. Two waiters hurried in and out of the room with trays of food. The five ate well. Then they sat back to smoke cigars.

They talked of this and that. Not of banking. For they knew banking. They discussed art. These five men were patrons. They had the souls of great artists. They rarely discussed paintings or operas in a technical sense. Their discussions were limited to money. How much would this cost? How much would it sell for in—say—two years? How much was the Metropolitan charging for season boxes? How much did that Italian tenor want to come to America? Why?

And so on. They sat for an hour after the meal was over. They were in no hurry. Haste makes indigestion. They knew that. Suddenly, Banker Cecil Rodding holds up a hand for silence.

"By the way, gentlemen," he says slowly. "By the way. There is a matter which I meant to bring before you, but which escaped me during this marvelous repast.

"You gentlemen recall the Great Molitov, do you not?" He pauses. The four appear to be thinking. Then, one by one, they nod. They remember.

"Well, the Great Molitov," he continues, "who was the premiere danseuse of the world five years ago, is destitute. She needs our help."

He pauses again. Four faces frown. Four hands stroke four chins. Or perhaps eight. Their frowns deepen. But Banker Rodding smiles and wags a playful finger at them.

"Just a minute, gentlemen," he says. "Just a minute. I meant to suggest that we stage a benefit for her. And I might add," he continues with a wise look, "that the matter can be arranged with but very little expense to us."

The room is barely furnished. An old couch serves as bed and chair. A retired soap box is used as a table. The woman sits staring at the opposite wall. Forty years ago, she was born in this very neighborhood.

She was Josie Smith then. Josie Smith, a bright-eyed kiddie who loved to dance. Since then she had become the Great Molitov, the world's most famous dancer—and had become Josie Smith again.

When she was on the heights, her friends were legion. Her pretty feet could have graced the floors of a dozen Rolls-Royces every night in the week. The air in her dressing room was always heavy from the odor of the many orchids.

But fate held an unerring timepiece, and when the time came to slip down the ladder, the Great Molitov was quickly forgotten.

The hundreds of people whom the Great Molitov had helped with money and other aid had too many troubles of their own to think of her. And now, after five years, she was destitute. But her hollow cheeks wrinkled into a smile as she thought of good old Banker Rodding.

He knew her plight. He knew where she was. He would help her . . .

"I shall ask Mrs. Van Gild," concluded Banker Rodding, "to take care of the tickets. She has such a charming daughter, you know. And I personally shall take care of the publicity."

He glanced at his watch.

"I must leave you, gentlemen."

He grunted as he stood up.

"We shall discuss the benefit for the Great Molitov one week from today at this hour. Good day, gentlemen. Good day" . . .

One week to the very hour, the five great bankers met again in the same place. They ate well. They sat back and smoked. They talked of this and that. Art, mostly. Then Banker Rodding rubbed a reflective hand across his shiny forehead.

'Gentlemen, gentlemen, gentlemen," he wheezed. "We have neglected a matter of the most importance—the benefit for the Great Molitov. You remember that we discussed the matter last week. We must make arrangements for the donation of a theater and talent.

The bankers smile. They nod approvingly. They puff their cigars and appear to be dreaming. They are dreaming of their generosity to an artist in distress. How lucky she is to have men like them to protect her! To help her!

"Gentlemen,"conclides Banker Rodding, "we must hurry. This is not a matter to be delayed. The Great Molitov is depending upon us. I sent my chauffeur to her room in Brooklyn today to tell her not to worry. We will not fail her.

"Therefore, I suggest that we meet here one week from today at this hour, and set a definite date for the benefit. Good day, gentlemen. Good day!" . . .

Banker Rodding is now in his office. His bald head reflects the yellow light from the chandelier above. His secretary its at one side of his carved desk with her pencil poised. The banker stares at the ceiling and pulls his lower lip out like a rubber band. Then he lets it snap back.

The secretary doesn't make a sound. She hardly breathes. For the financial genius is thinking.

"—and after careful consideration," he finally says, "I have come to the conclusion that the price of a membership in your country club is entirely too high, comma, considering the prevailing low prices throughout the country."

A pause. Then—

"That will be all, miss."

"By the way," he says. "Make a note to remind me to take up the matter of a benefit for the Great Molitov at the Great Dane Club a week from today."

"Oh," says the secretary, "I forgot to tell you that the young man who called the Molitov case to your attention was in today. He told me to tell you needn't bother about the benefit."

"Needn't bother?" repeated the great banker. "But why?"

"Because," replied the secretary, "she died yesterday."

"Died?" wheezed the banker. "Died? How? Of what?"

The secretary opened the door to the outer office.

CLOSE FIGHT HELPFUL TO PANTHERS

THAT PITT WAS hard pressed to conquer Penn's previously undefeated team Saturday was to have been expected. The Quakers were primed for that particular game, whereas the Panthers were affected both physically and mentally by the natural reaction to the terrific struggle they had gone through against Notre Dame. But acting Capt. Warren Heller and his fighting comrades were good enough to win, and that's all that matters. As a result they're standing out more prominently than ever in the eastern and national ranking and looking more and more like a team that may go through undefeated. What Army did to Harvard Saturday added indirectly to Pitt's prestige.

Warren Heller

Perhaps it was fortunate that Penn gave the Sutherlands such a close fight. An easy win in Philadelphia might have bred over-confidence, with possibly disastrous results in the Nebraska game this week. The Cornhuskers may not have their greatest team this season, but they're always big and tough, and on their home field particularly troublesome. It's a helpful break for Pitt to be saved from going into that game with a feeling of cockiness or over-sureness.

THE QUALITY OF their reserve material has been one of the most impressive things about the Panthers from the start, and an item, too, that has been a tremendous factor in their success. They've been pulling a regular Notre Dame act in coming up with substitutes to equal or outshine the displaced regulars.

When an end began to sag in the Army game, in came Harvey Rooker to save the day. When Bob Hoel weakened at tackle, Frank Walton proceeded to win the job. When Bob Hogan was injured, Miller Mungas proved a star at quarterback, and when Izzy Weinstock had to be lifted last Saturday, Henry Weisenbaugh played a part that had much to do with the victory.

NO OLLEGE HAS a right to feel prouder than Duquesne, when you look back at Saturday's football developments. There has been no finer comeback staged this season than the Bluff boys pulled in rallying from the West Virginia Wesleyan defeat to hand Washington and Jefferson a surprising 19-to-0 setback.

The Presidents had appeared to have a clear edge in the form sheets, and the Dukes must be given credit for one of the best performances of the year hereabouts, both offensively and defensively, in rising superbly from the role of underdogs to beat a supposedly superior foe in decisive fashion.

A MID-WESTERN critic recently named Walter Eckersall, Gus Dorais and Benny Friedman as the best three quarterbacks of all time, which prompted a prominent veteran coach to come to bat with a boost for Carnegie Tech's advisory coach. "You missed one—Walter Steffen," he said. "And I'll tell you confidentially that if Eckersall and Steffen were in their prime today, and I had the choice of either player, I'd pick Steffen to quarterback my team. He was the greatest field general I ever saw and a great kicker besides. Great quarterbacks are born. You can't develop them. And Steffen was born a great quarterback."

Fielding H. Yost

WITH ALL DUE respect to the statement of Wally Steffen that the spinner play as perfected by Carnegie Tech was discovered by accident in 1924, and assertions by others that it was devised a few years earlier, Fielding H. Yost insists that something very much like it was in use as far back as 1904.

The famous old Michigan coach presents in support of his contention diagrams and descriptions from a book he published after the close of that season. The play was described as the "Tackle Straight Back—Fullback Cross Buck," and Yost says it "illustrates very definitely the use of the spinner in almost exactly the same way that it is used today."

THE PLAY OF 1904 was a feint by left tackle on the right side of the line with the fullback making the real attack at left guard. Yost described the workings of his play in the book as follows: "Center blocks to right. Left guard blocks to right. Right guard blocks to right. Left tackle starts as if to carry the ball to the right. Right tackle blocks to right. Left end blocks out opposing tackle. Right end follows and assists from behind.

"QUARTERBACK TURNS AS IF TO PASS BALL TO LEFT TACKLE, BUT TURNS ON AROUND AND PASSES BALL TO FULLBACK AND THEN ASSISTS THE RUNNER. Left halfback breaks through and assist runners on left hip. Fullback is the runner." This clear, Yost adds: "There you have a spinner if ever there was one."

QUICK KICKS—Slip Madigan has the biggest feet in the coaching ranks, and when he once asked Knute Rockne if he could play in the Notre Dame backfield the reply he got was "Look at your feet, Slip, and then go back to guard." Louisiana high schools are accepting farm products in lieu of money for admission to games, which leads someone to suggest that the teams not going so well probably are receiving plenty of raspberries. Abe Eliowitz, Michigan State captain, earns his way through school repairing mimeograph machines. The average weight of the players in the National Pro League is 203 pounds.

A PIRATE OF more than a quarter of a century ago will be back in baseball if Del Howard succeeds in his efforts to repurchase the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League.

IF IT HAD not already become apparent from signs in other directions that the major league baseball magnates are planning further salary reductions next year, the remarks of Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager, would dispel any existing doubt as to the intentions of the club owners.

William Muldoon

Barrow does not beat about the bush, but openly says the players in the big show will be forced to take another cut in pay before the 1933 season begins. As to other proposed moves for economy, however, he makes it known that the Yankees will oppose any atte[illegible]pt that may be made to reduce the play[illegible] limit to 21 men.

[illegible]EING HIMSELF A living contradi[illegible] of the old wisecrack that youth mu[illegible]e served, William Muldoon, the iro[illegible]wed rock of the New York State Ath[illegible]ic Commission, scoffs at its being applied to other venerable sports figures. Muldoon, you know, is 87. He was a champion wrestler more than half a century ago; a noted trainer who conditioned John L. Sullivan and other famous fighters, ran a health farm at White Plains, N. Y., where he had the late Edward M. Bigelow and other prominent Pittsburghers among his patients; invented the shower bath and the medicine ball. And he's still functioning. Muldoon takes bitter exception to the idea that Alonzo Stagg at 70 is too old to continue as football coach at the University of Chicago. He says Von Hindenburg was 70 when he turned the tide on the Russian front in favor of Germany; that Gladstone was premier of England when 80; that Lord Roberts was running the Boer War campaign at the same age, and that Mark Twain was making the world laugh at 70.

By JULIUS LEVIN

New champions in both sections of the City League will be crowned Thursday afternoon when all 12 members of the circuit wind up their regular schedules.

Westinghouse High, coached by O. H. (Pro) Burton, setting the pace in Section I, needs a victory over Allderdice to clinch the title and the right to engage the Section II champion in a post-season game for the City crown.

Perry, coached by Chester Smith, is leading the parade in Section II and can assure itself of a place in the post-season tussle by defeating Langley at Perry Thursday afternoon.

PEABODY HAS CHANCE

In event Allderdice upsets the dope by defeating Westinghouse, Peabody can take the Section I title by defeating its ancient rival, Schenley, in their game on the Peabody gridiron.

If Langley can take the measure of Perry, Oliver will have an opporunity to win the Section II crown by defeating Allegheny at Oliver High School field.

The other games in the City League races Thursday afternoon find South playing Fifth Avenue at Schenley High Field, while South Hills is the opponent of Carrick at Carrick.

Judging from the standing of the teams in both sections of the City League, one thing is certain, there will be new champions in both divisions. Schenley, Section I winner, has been eliminated, while South Hills, Section II winner and City champion of 1931, also has been dethroned.

FOURTH FOR LAKERS

Should Westinghouse win the Section I title it will mark the fourth time in nine years that the Silver Lakers have competed in the post-season battle for the City crown. Westinghouse never has been beaten in the championship playoff, having won the City crown in 1927, 1928 and 1930.

Schenley High, coached by Walter Gross, and South Hills High, coached by Ed Mazeski, boast the best records in City League football competition.

Schenley has represented Section I five times, winning the City championship on four occasions. The Bellefielders held the City title in 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1929, losing out to South Hills in the playoffs in their fifth attempt last season.

South Hills has competed for the City title no less than seven times, being defeated in 1924, 1925, 1926, 1928, 1929 and 1930. The Tunnelites won the crown last year.

With the City League races up for settlement Thursday, interest in the Class AA Conference centers around the fight between New Castle, coached by Phil Bridenbaugh, and Jeannette, directed by Markley Barnes. The two elevens are deadlocked for the lead at present, each winning three Conference battles.

JEANNETTE HAS CHANCE

The deadlock will be broken Saturday afternoon when Jeannette plays at Turtle Creek Union. A victory for the Jeannette machine will give it undisputed possession of first place as New Castle is slated to meet Youngstown South, a non-league opponent, at New Castle.

Greensburg, which was tied with New Castle and Jeannette last week, was dealt a blow in its fight for the crown by being held to a 7-7 tie by Wilkinsburg Saturday.

In Class B Ambridge and Beaver Falls continued their marches, Ambridge defeating Stowe, while Beaver Falls trounced South Hills, of Pittsburgh.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Election day being just around the corner, how about electing this Pitt football team for something or other?...... It may go on to win the national championship, and then again it may not, but one thing is certain and that is that when it comes to giving its followers the jitters it takes second place to none in the land........Take that Army game, for instance. ....There it was giving and taking and finally pulling out on the long end of an 18-13 count........Then that scoreless tie with Ohio State, followed by its 12-0 victory over Notre Dame, after bearing the brunt of the Irish attack for three quarters... And, last Saturday, the crowning climax, that 19-12 tussle with Penn at Philadelphia, rated by the fans of the Quaker City the most spectacular and thrilling gridiron affair they've witnessed on old Franklin Field in a decade.

You had to see this Penn battle to appreciate it. . . . There was the Pitt team almost getting a touchdown at the very start and winding up by throwing the ball into the end zone to halt the drive. . . . Then a march of 61 yards for a touchdown, straight up the field. . . . Then Penn's score on a pass after it had blocked a kick from behind the goal, with the score 7-6 at the half. . . . Then, late in the third period, a score after running back an intercepted pass to the 13-yard line, and, finally, another score on an 80-yard march in the fourth period, followed by a 55-yard runback of a punt by Penn for its second tally, and, in the closing seconds, a punt recovery by Penn on the 14-yard line and a long gambling pass beyond the end zone that might have brought a tie.

Pitt outgaining the Quakers, 3 to 1, yet fortunate to escape a tie . . . Soaring to the heights and sinking to the depths of football play . . . Standing by and seeing the enemy down three kicks near the goal line to put the Panthers on the spot each time . . . An orgy of intercepted passes . . . It was enough to drive a coach crazy with the team loafing one moment, galloping unrestrained onward the next . . . Seemingly

LIONS' FOOTBALL BEGAN IN '87

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 7.—Memories of Penn State's first football team in 1887 were brought back to the campus recently when four members of that team returned to the college for their forty-fifth reunion.

Two members of the first Nittany Lion grid team now are living in Pittsburgh, John S. Weller, 915 Park Building, and James R. Rose, Duquesne Club. All but one of the 13 members of the pioneer team still are living, Watson L. Barclay, right end on the team, having died two years ago.

Those who returned for the reunion were Charles C. Hildebrand, and John F. Morris, both of Germantown; J. Price Jackson, of Pelham, N. Y. and James C. Mock, of Detroit, Mich.

The first Penn State team played only two games, defeating Bucknell University on both occasions.

PANTHER TEAM ADDS PENN TO VICTIMS

By JESS CARVER

Now it's Nebraska's turn!

This business of stacking up week after week against formidable opponents, each one of which is laying back with a stick of dynamite in either mitt, ready to blow 'em sky-high, is beginning to wear a trifle on the nerves of Dr. Jock Sutherland's Pitt Panthers. It's very nice to be up there at the head of the parade, but it also is very wearing on the nerves and sinews.

Pitt has come through another major contest, surmounted another barrier on its charge to the mythical national football championship. Penn gave the Pitts exactly the sort of a battle they expected. The Panthers had to keep the power turned on to win, and as they completed their second invasion of the East they added new acclaim as a truly great football machine.

MEET HUSKERS NEXT

This week, they swing into the mid-West, nosing about the precincts of Nebraska's husky Cornhuskers, who, while they have accomplished little of note to date, are so anxious to secure revenge for the crushing and humiliating defeat served them here last year that the suspicion lurks in some quarters that maybe the Huskers have been pulling the old "lying-in-wait" act.

For the second time this year, too, the Panthers are facing a team that would rather win its game with Pitt than any other on the schedule. The Army felt that way and Nebraska is just as determined. Here, see how Coach Dana X (Marks the Spot) Bible feels about it.

[illegible] toughest ball game on [illegible] schedule from now on is [illegible] to be with Nebraska. Bible [illegible] anxious to beat you fellows [illegible] saving everything. He still feels keenly the humiliation of last year's walloping Jock Sutherland's team gave him that he's been eating, sleeping, dreaming, living and breathing Pitt ever since. Those babies will be tough, plenty tough, out there in Lincoln.

WESLEYAN SURPRISED

Pitt's victory over Penn; Duquesne's fine triumph at the expense of Wash-Jeff (and a fine licking they gave 'em, too), Glenville's surprising 21-21 draw with Wesleyan and West Virginia's victory over Georgetown provided the big kick of the weekend program in the tri-state district.

Other games went as they were supposed to, with Geneva beating Grove City; Waynesburg taking the measure of Juniata, but only after a hard battle; Westminster bumping off Thiel and Allegheny remaining consistent, to say the least, by dropping another one, this time to Oberlin.

The Dukes looked like the money as they trampled Wash-Jeff. Entering the game no better than even choices, Coach Layden's lads ran the Presidents ragged. First, they had the old cork necessary to hold off the Red and Black attack on the one-yard line and then they had the punt to come back and rap out three touchdowns. They might have hung up a couple more, too.

This double-wing back system, such as the Presidents employ, is okey-okey if you have the backs, but you'd better not be caught short in that department. The Wash-Jeff backs, particularly Gehart Zagray, looked like they'd have been better off running from straight right or left formations or am I talking (writing) through my derby. Zagray is a mighty neat trick of a ball player, but he couldn't go against the Dukes. The Wash-Jeff attack, after an impressive start, bogged down and bogged down right.

DUKES' BLOCKING FINE

The Dukes were out-blocking their Washington rivals and out-charging 'em, which was the big secret of the Duquesne success. The Red and Black line was out-played throughout; it didn't give the backs the help necessary for success on the attack and was weak at the tackles when the locals had the ball. Wash-Jeff's tackling was loose, another factor that contributed much to the success of the Duquesne running game.

The Dukes have an up-and-coming ballplayer in young Artie Strutt. He plunges well and steps around like a halfback. He has a lot to learn (name me the sophomore who does not), but he looks better with each game and appears to have a football complex . . . football brains, if you please.

St. Thomas Wins Over Irish B Team

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Coach Jack Harding's St. Thomas College gridders chalked up their fifth straight victory here yesterday by defeating Notre Dame's "B" squad, 24 to 6.

Two of the touchdowns were gained from aerial plays and the others were picked up in line plunges.

HARPSTER PICKS PANTHERS TO GO THROUGH UNDEFEATED

DUKES IMPRESS WITH VICTORY OVER W.-J.

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach; All-American Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928.

Dr. Sutherland's fine University of Pittsburgh football team successfully guarded its undefeated record in winning the important game with Pennsylvania Saturday, and took one step nearer the Eastern championship and the New Year's Rose Bowl game at Pasadena.

Mr. Harpster

Only Nebraska, Carnegie Tech and Stanford remain to be disposed of, and, although each of these major opponents will give the Panthers plenty of trouble, at the present writing not one of the three appears strong enough to stop the winning ways of the Pitt team. The fact that the past records will make Dr. Sutherland's team the favorite in each of the remaining games adds considerably to the task of the Panthers, but, with a national title as an incentive for each game, it is doubtful if any of the remaining opponents will catch Pitt in a slump.

DUKES SPRING SURPRISE

At Forbes Field, Saturday, Elmer Layden's fast-stepping Dukes knocked W. & J.'s revenge act in the head, with a clean-cut and decisive 19-to-0 victory. After the first quarter, the Dukes dominated the entire play and made a staggering total of 16 first downs to four for Wash-Jeff. Led by the fiery, red-headed quarterback, Sullivan, Duquesne's offense clicked almost to perfection, and the W. & J. eleven spent a merry afternoon in an attempt to stop an avalanche of touchdowns. Both teams made several fine goal line stands, otherwise the fans would have witnessed much more scoring.

The Dukes are rapidly gaining the reputation which the Pitt team has held for many years, that they are a mighty hard team to defeat in November.

Carnegie Tech had a day of rest, and, while most of the Tech players were watching the game at Forbes Field, West Virginia was soundly whipping Georgetown at Morgantown. The Mountaineers, having suddenly come to life, continued the fine brand of football they have displayed in the past few weeks and handed Georgetown a three-touchdown defeat.

ARMY FLASHES POWER

Two other outstanding games were the Fordham-St. Mary's clash, which the former won by the surprising score of 14 to 0, and the 46-to-0 victory of Army over Harvard. Although the pre-game dope indicated Army would be the victor, few, if any, believed it would be possible to run up 46 points against Eddie Casey's team.

In the tri-state district, Waynesburg continued to show the way with its seventh victory in as many starts, beating Juniata, 13 to 12. Westminster outplayed Thiel to register an 18-to-0 win, and Geneva eked out a last-half victory over a fighting Grove City team with a 20-to-0 score.

The Grove City game was played on a very slippery field, and many times the backs of both teams slipped while carrying the ball because of the treacherous footing. With a limited amount of material at hand, Bill Amos, the new Grove City coach, has done a very fine job in turning out a fighting team. Although the natural material isn't there, Amos has instilled a never-say-die spirit in his team which has turned each game from a rout into a real battle.

GENEVA HAS BATTLE

Although Geneva made some 11 or 12 first downs to Grove City's one or two, it looked for about 40 minutes as if the game would end in a scoreless tie. Finally Troiana crashed through for the first score, but only on the eighth and final try, having started 14 yards from the goal.

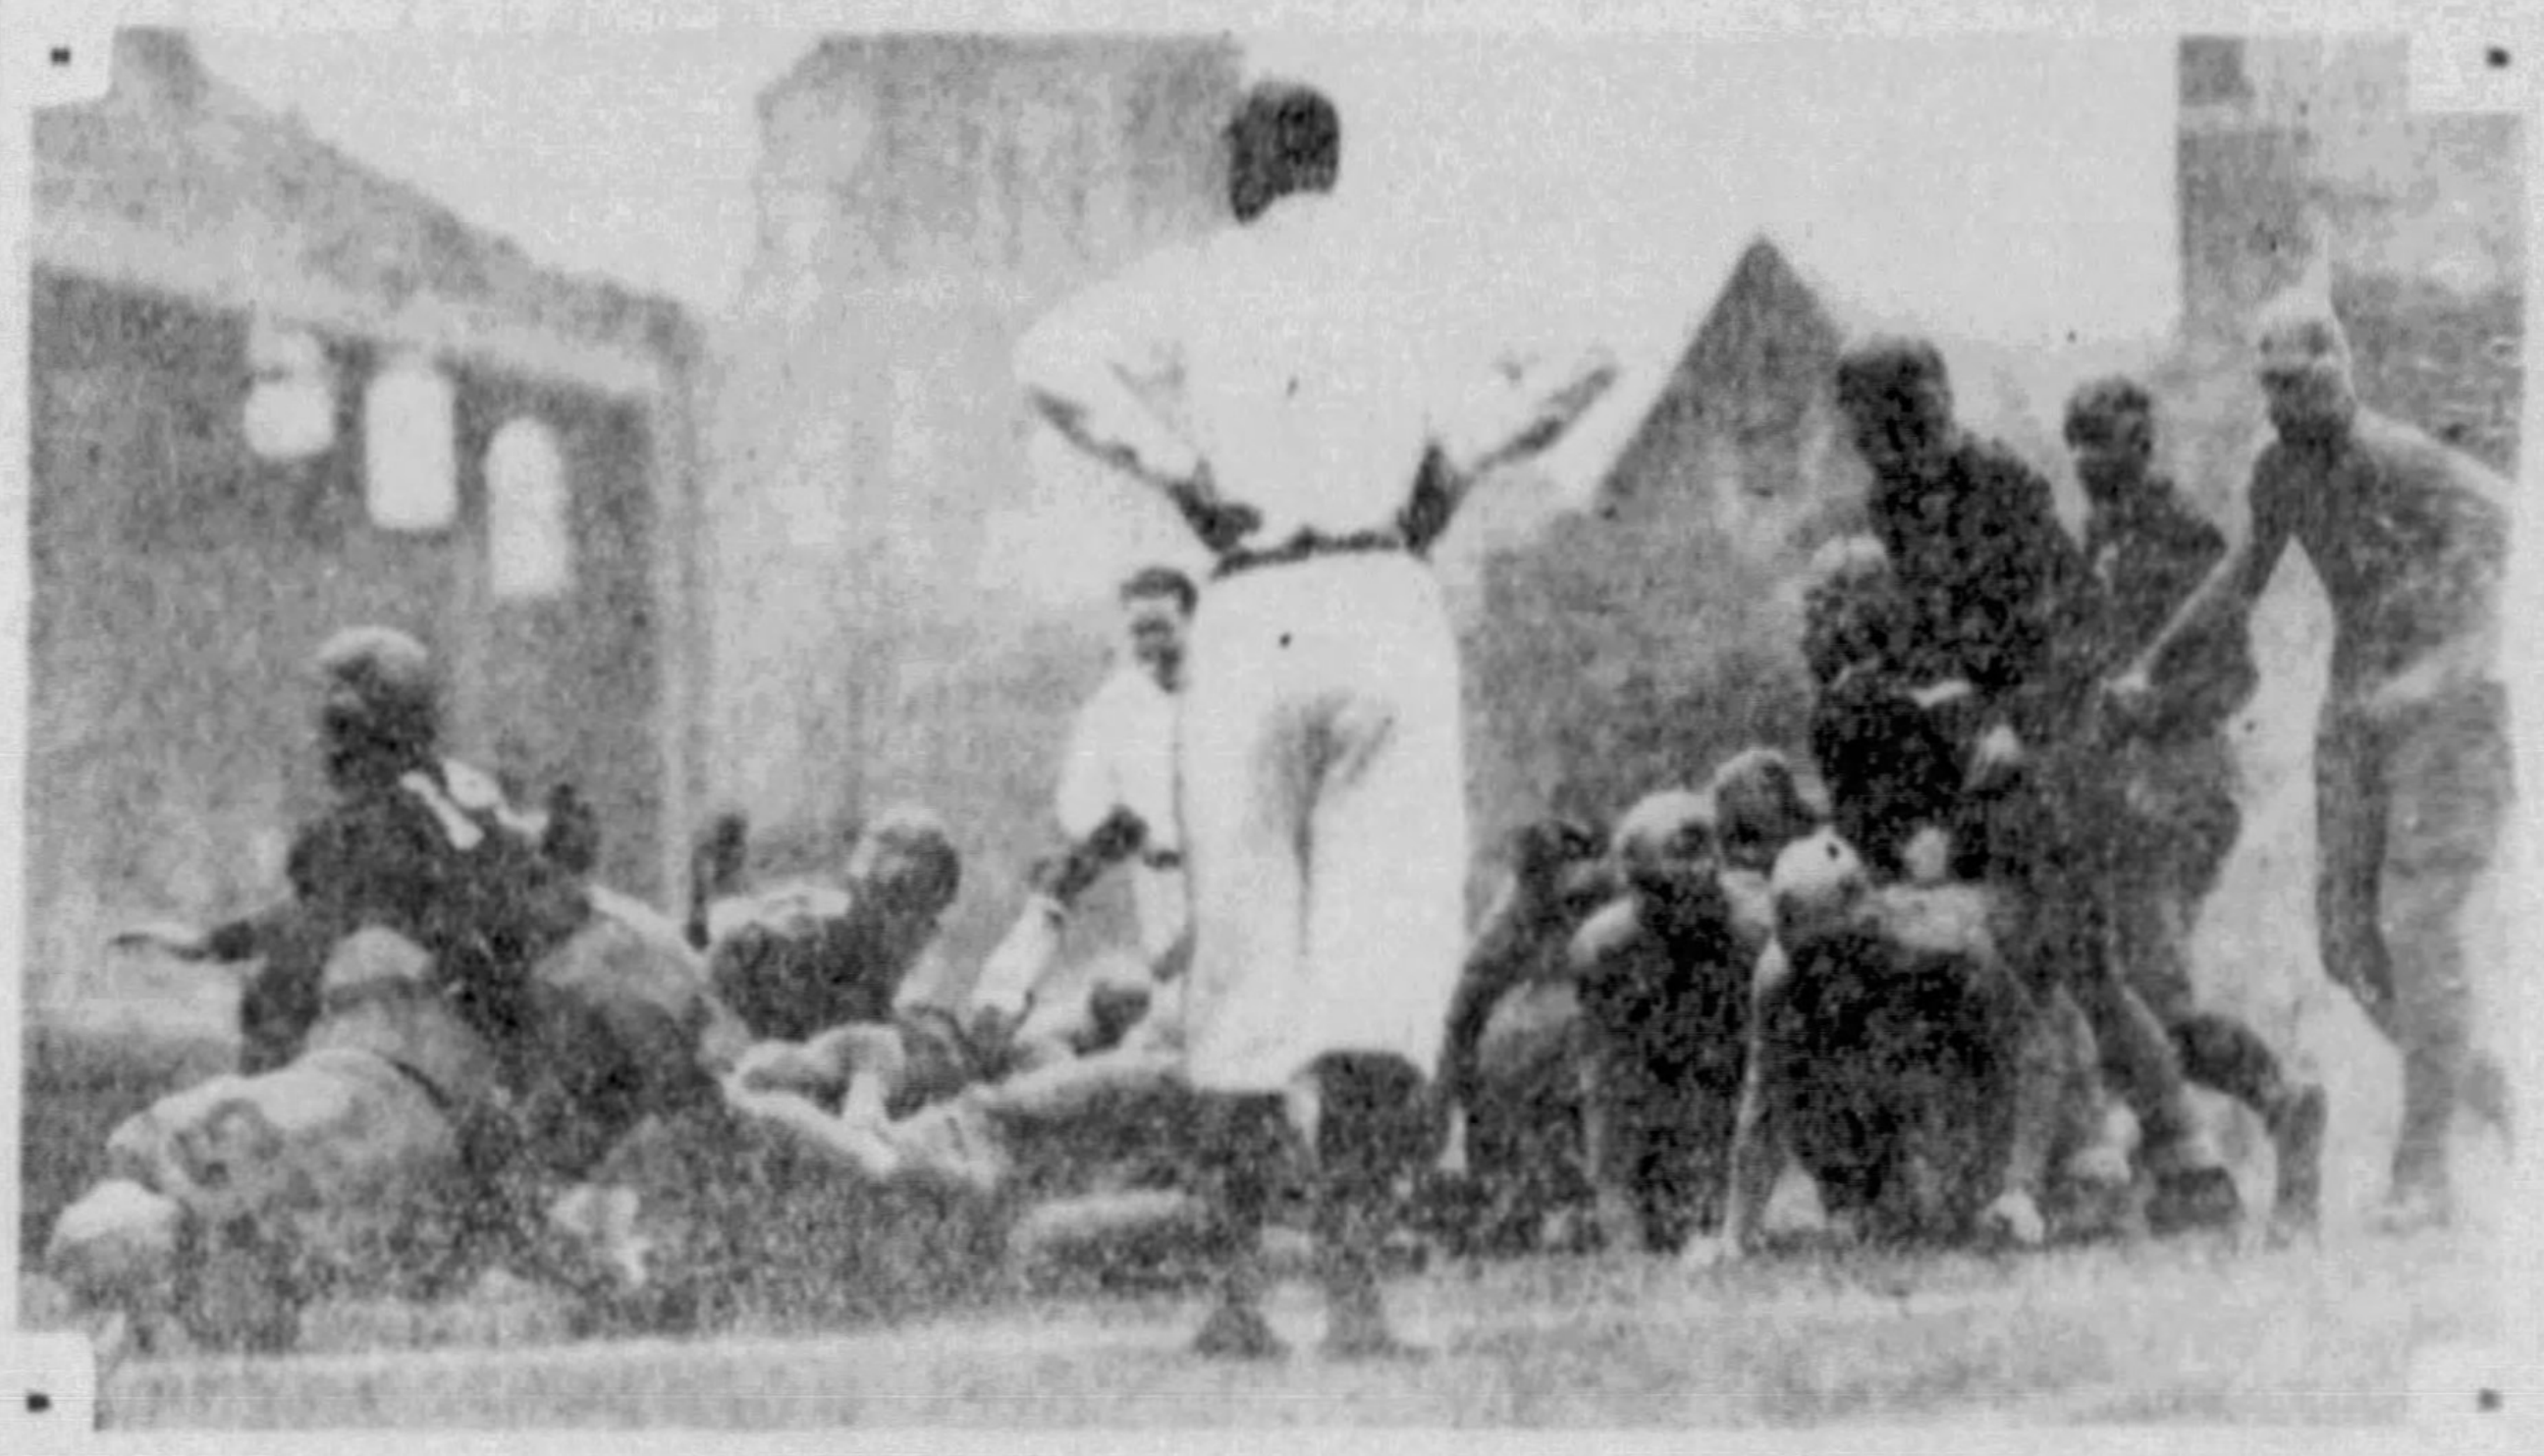
HELLER STOPPED NEAR THE GOAL AS PITT SCORED A 19-12 VICTORY OVER STUBBORN QUAKER ELEVEN



WEISENBAUGH GOES OVER FOR PITT'S SECOND TOUCHDOWN IN THRILLING FRAY

The Pitt Panthers kept their record of no defeats intact as they turned back the University of Pennsylvania's hitherto undefeated eleven in a thrilling battle before 70,000 fans at Franklin Field Saturday. These are International News Photo Service pictures of the battle.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

—By GIB MARSH—

With their setters, pointers and springer spaniels, those sportsmen who favor the wingshooting pastime will invade the thickets and meadows for quail, ringneck pheasants and grouse today. The game code of Pennsylvania provides for the shooting of these game birds during the first three days of this week and on Armistice Day. And in the fields will be the usual number of rabbit hunters, as cottontails are legal quarry on all week days during November.

The hunter who confines his shooting to ringneck pheasants and quail can return with an attractive bunch of birds. The code provides for a limit of two ringnecks per day and six quail, and, while grouse are not numerous in the thickets in the counties adjoining Allegheny County, they may be found. The day's limit, two birds, added to the limit kill of ringnecks and quail, makes a splendid nimrod's harvest for the day.

PLENTY OF GROUSE

Of course, the real patrons of the grouse will journey into the large forest regions of the state, Clinton, Clearfield, Center, Lycoming, Potter, Elk and the northern counties. In those counties the gunner should not experience much trouble in bagging two grouse, and without having to do a lot of tramping.

Ringneck pheasants, which were planted in this state a number of years ago to provide sport for the hunters are becoming more popular every season. When grouse became scarcer in 1917, the game commissioners decided to purchase and breed in large numbers ringneck pheasants.

While the ringneck has ingratiated itself with the sportsmen in Pennsylvania, it never will win the popularity of the veteran grouse shooter, especially the hunter who traveled the mountains 20 years ago. The day's bag limit then was 10 birds. They were plentiful. The bag limit later was reduced to five birds per day in 1917, when it was observed they were becoming scarcer. Closed seasons and reduction of the bag limit provided a means of saving them.

RECALLS OLD DAYS

It was common in the old days to observe hunters returning to the local railroad stations with strings of 20 grouse and even hunters carrying grain sacks filled with them. It is the gamest and keenest of all game birds, and it is hoped science will uncover some method for conserving it for all time.

NEW YORK BOXER ILL

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—Illness today forced Phil Rafferty, New York welterweight, to withdraw from his 10-round bout against Paulie Walker, of Trenton, N. J., in Brooklyn, Saturday night. Larry Marinucci, Brooklyn, will take Rafferty's place. Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight, will box Paddy Creedon, Jersey City, in the 10-round semi-final.

TROIANA TAKES SCORING LEAD

Geneva College's diminutive halfback, Shorty Trioana, passed Warren Heller, of Pitt, in the race for top honors among Western Pennsylvania college grid scorers Saturday, twice crossing the goal line against Grove City to run his point total for the season to 44.

Heller scored once against Penn, and he and the Geneva star each have seven touchdowns to their credit, but Trioana has kicked two goals after touchdown for the points that put him ahead of the Panther ace.

SEBASTIAN GAINS

Mike Sebastian, of Pitt; Ben Pawlina, of the Dukes; Rab Currie, of Waynesburg, and Art Grahame, of Geneva, made substantial gains Saturday. Bill Schemick, of Thiel, still holds third place, with 30 points, although he did not score against Westminster. Izzy Weinstock, of Pitt, with one point after touchdown against Penn, is tied with Grahame for fourth place with 26 points. Those having tallied 24 points are Bob Deacle, of Wash-Jeff; Johnson, of St. Vincent; Kavel, of Carnegie Tech; Pawlina, of the Dukes; Sebastian, of Pitt, and Currie, of Waynesburg.

Only one new player joined the list of scorers, he being Ketterer, Westminster's new fullback, who plunged over for a score against Thiel.

able to do anything when stirred by the mood, mostly playing like a team that had eaten its heart out beating Notre Dame the week before . . . Nothing this team may do in the remaining games of a hard season will come in the nature of a surprise . . . It already has done everything possible except lose a game . . . Incidentally, it develops that it was Jimmy Simms, who was touched by that rolling punt, thus putting it onside for Penn, just before the end of the game, and not Johnny Luch, as reported . . . A Luch would have better luck than that.

Boxing the semi-final to the Tony Canzoneri-Billy Petrolle fight in New York's Madison Square Garden the night before the Pitt-Penn game were two good lightweights who could be brought here to fight the Battling Gizzys, Johnny Dattos, Charley Baxter, et al., with an even or better chance of winning . . . They were Bobby Pacho, of Mexico, who claims the championship of his own country and the state of California, and Joey Costa, of Jersey City . . . Pacho was down twice for no count in the first round and got up to floor his opponent before the bell . . . Then they battled on furiously over the eight-round route, with Pacho the winner, but always in danger from Costa's sharpshooting right, which has knocked out 33 men . . . Costa has beaten Lew Feldman in the Garden and the defeat by Pacho was only the second of his career.—HARRY KECK.

OFFICIAL CALLS PITT GAME 'TOUGHEST'

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—"Twenty-seven years I've been at it. Twenty-seven years of officiating, and that was the toughest game I ever worked."

Dr. Edward O'Brien, returning from the sensational Pittsburgh-Pennsylvania game in Philadelphia last Saturday looked as if he had done a day's work.

"It was the hardest game I ever worked, too." That from Harry Fisher, who with O'Brien, officiated at the game.

"Every rule in the book came up to plague us. The new rules got a good test and I think they came through with flying colors."

This from O'Brien.

SPECTATORS PUZZLED

Several times during the course of the game the players, as well as the 70,000 spectators who jammed Franklin Field seemed confused at O'Brien's ruling. The one play which had everyone guessing was a blocked kick, which eventually was converted into a touchdown by Pennsylvania. Bob Hogan, of Pitt, had dropped seven yards behind his own goal line to kick out of danger. His punt was low and it bounced into the mass of players struggling on the line of scrimmage. The ball rebounded into the air and came down on the 10-yard line. It was caught by Joe Skladany, Panther end, and then, to everyone's surprise, O'Brien gave the ball to Pennsylvania where Skladany had caught it. O'Brien explained:

"The rule says that if a kick is partially blocked and then goes beyond the line of scrimmage the ball cannot be recovered by a member of the kicking team. The ball Hogan kicked went over the line of scrimmage, and it was just as if it never had been blocked. When Skladany caught it, it reverted to Penn."

DECISION QUESTIONED

Two plays later Pennsylvania had scored and even now the Pitt players no doubt resent O'Brien's decision, which an inspection of the rule book shows to have been correct. But, then, O'Brien's decisions never are questioned by coaches.

Another play which had the stands in an uproar occurred a few minutes later. Don Kellett, Penn quarterback, threw a forward pass to Burnett, his left end. The ball hit Burnett's fingers, bounced from there to the hands of Carl Perina, Penn back, and then bounced out of them into the arms of a Pennsylvania lineman, Sokolis, who ran 60 yards with the ball. O'Brien called the play back and it went as an incompleted forward pass. The Penn stands roared their disapproval but, of course, O'Brien was right. He explained:

'TOUGHEST GAME'

"Linemen are not eligible to receive forward passes. The pass first went to an eligible man, bounced from his hands into the hands of another eligible man and then landed in the arms of a third man, who could not become eligible to receive the pass.

"It was a great game to watch, and it was played cleanly, but it was a tense game and odd situations kept coming up for me to settle. You've got to be hair-trigger on your decisions, too. Yes, it was the toughest game to officiate in 27 years, and I hope I'll never have another like it."

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—In football waters strewn with upsets, the Michigan crew was sailing peacefully on today with undisputed possession of the Western Conference football championship within its grasp.

The battling Wolverines, undefeated and untied, and with four championship victories to their credit, have only Chicago and Minnesota to conquer to turn the trick. Michigan plays Chicago at Ann Arbor Saturday, and Minnesota a week hence. Old man Stagg's maroons, demoralized by Purdue, 37 to 0, Saturday, figured to have no chance with the Wolverines, but Minnesota intends to furnish the spark of dynamite.

Purdue undefeated, but with a tie with Northwestern blotting its record, figures to finish in the runnerup position, for the Boilermakers battles the hapless Iowans at Iowa City next Saturday, and Indiana a week later.

The meeting between Minnesota and Wisconsin at Madison Saturday, appears to furnish the most important conference game of the week-end. The game finds Coach Clarence W. Spears leading his Badgers against his former pupils, the Gophers, with the result a tossup.

Wisconsin, rubbing out a big Illinois lead, conquered the Illini Saturday, 20 to 12, while Minnesota rolled over Mississippi, 26 to 0.

In the other Conference games, Indiana battles Illinois at Champaign, with the result having no bearing on the championship situation.

Northwestern will attempt to upset Notre Dame at South Bend, but a victory for the Wildcats appears to be highly improbable. The game, however, will be bitterly fought, as the teams are traditional rivals.

ART INSTITUTE OPENS NEW GALLERY

Pittsburgh artists, in a few weeks, will have a place to exhibit their paintings, through the courtesy of Willis Shook, director of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, Stanwix street and Penn avenue. Voicing a long-existant need, he said:

"For many years I have felt that a great deal of artistic talent in Pittsburgh was never brought to light because independent artists had no place in which to display their work. The recent outdoor show on the Hotel Schenley lawn convinced me of their crying need for an exhibit room. I am preparing wall space in the Art Institute for nearly 100 portraits, available without cost to Pittsburgh artists who have no place to display their pictures."

MANY ENROLLED

For the past 12 years Willis Shook has been directing the talents of art students from all over North America, at the Art Institute. His present enrollment of nearly 400 includes students from 23 states, Alaska and Canada. Inquiries about the school come from all over the world, Hawaii, the Philippines, Fiji Islands, the Balkan states, British and Dutch Guinea, Mr. Shook said.

In an attempt to reconcile the often impractical attributes of an artistic temperament, with the cold actualities of a commercial world, Willis Shook, more than a decade ago, conceived and founded his school on the theory that most artists, however talented, are confronted with the necessity of earning a livelihood. Many of them are financially unable to spend four years in a Fine Arts College.

WORK CONCENTRATED

By eliminating academic subjects which ordinarily consume half of the time spent in curricular activities in a Fine Arts College, the Art Institute of Pittsburgh concentrates its efforts solely on the development of artistic talent, Mr. Shook said. He continued:

"If our students are financially able to devote their entire time to the production of art for art's sake, well and good. For those who wish to employ their talents to maintain themselves in an economic world, we direct their energies into lucrative channels. We believe that talent may have adequate expression in color, design, scope and perspective in commercial art. Commercial success often brings leisure in later life which may then be devoted to art, for its own sake."

Eligibility requirements at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh are ambition and the ability to work hard, Mr. Shook said. In happier days, 17 out of every 20 students at the school were placed in positions when they finished their courses, the director continued. Now many of the students are able to earn their entire tuition in prize competitions and commercial projects, while in school, he said.

ART :: Fall Painting Exhibit

By PENELOPE REDD

The fifth annual fall exhibit of paintings by members of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh at Kaufmann's galleries will be on view only through this week. About 75 painters are represented by 125 pictures in the best show of the series. The show contains many still life paintings that indicate how ingeniously ordinary things may be personalized.

Miss Redd

Caroline Oliver, in "Fall Flowers," salvages a random garden memoir of golden autumnal blossoms and prosaic garden tools. Florence Newcomer shows midsummer's height in a vigorous bouquet. Anna Woodside fuses color as fragrant as the flowers she paints with her own irrepressible gaiety to create sparkling arrangement.

Grace Permar selects with consummate care white hedge roses for her black vase in a singularly fresh study. Charles Burns' pineapple juxtaposed to a porcelain urn is beautifully realized in water color. William Shulgold, in "Flower Study No. 2, concentrates his most serious effort on a still life study in which he has balanced a pervasive sobriety against one brilliant note of color in dramatic style.

A HIGHWAY GARDEN

Sarah Shaw makes the most of a happy essay in her jubilant garden. Anna Belle Craig shows a Laughlintown garden as a flash of color along the Lincoln Highway. Christ Walter in doing "A Mountain Stream" in the same neighborhood, combines with great sensitivity, the atmosphere of the cool shade of the forest with the bright sound of the brook. T. Ralph Lias has a decoration of mood in which willow trees frame an expanse of azure water.

In a landscape of more familiar linaments, Joseph Durso shows the Squaw Run neighborhood in the autumnal purples and browns which most become the sturdy character of the hills. R. D Long also has a November pastoral appealing to a city-bound rambler. Another local landscape that invites is by J. J. Raisbeck.

NEW TREATMENT

Virginia B. Evans, in "Bruges," does an oft-repeated theme without the somber umbers associated with this city pictorially. She secures an excellent picture. Marcella Comes paints "Upper Gardone" with assurance. Louise Pershing's "The Main Drag," showing a gasoline pump of high visibility and the crowds about the "Village Inn," testify to the true painter quality informing her work. Mildred Schmertz appears with two brilliant canvases. Her "Modern Madonna" is the most exciting figure subject in the show.

At the time this exhibition was reviewed some of the canvases had not yet arrived. Among other still life paintings of merit were those by Aloise, Cuthbert, McCurdy and Shryock. Landscapes by Armstrong, Ellen, Patterson, Shirk and Sturges were likewise noted. Marines by Menten, Nebel and Thomas made desirable oases among the more strenuous figure subjects. Figure subjects by Boyer, Goffee, Nesbert, Scheuch and Wilson, add the animation one expects in a contemporary exhibition. This exhibition is a thoroughly enjoyable one where the visitor is free to choose his own prize painting and purchase if he have the price.

BEET INDUSTRY PROVIDING WORK

Almost 18,000 days of factory work opportunity are being provided this winter by the beet sugar industry in the United States, according to Charles S. Young, representative of the United States Beet Sugar Association. Mr. Young is here on a tour of the Middle West to report conditions in agriculture and industry. He said:

"While employment in the beet sugar industry is not at normal capacity throughout the eighteen states interested in this farm-factory employment opportunity, there are bumper crops in certain sections which help hold up a satisfactory average."

PROVIDE WORK

Beet sugar factories, according to Mr. Young, operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week, during the sugar manufacturing period. Three shifts of eight hours each is the work opportunity. Normally, the sugar manufacturing campaign, as it is called, is of 100 days' duration during the fall and winter months and if the factories could be operated on a straight eight-hour day basis, this would mean 300 days for each plant. However, Mr. Young said, this is not a normal year in all parts of the country because of lack of rain and resulting curtailment of irrigation over large areas.

Southeastern and Western Colorado, Southeastern Wyoming and Utah have suffered from lack of water this summer and some of the factories will be operated for less than 50 days. California, however, will be able to bring the general average up to 80 days, so that the 74 factories being operated will provide work for factory hands of 5,920 days of 24 hours each, or 17,760 work days of eight hours each, according to Mr. Young.

FARMS SAVED

This is is addition to the agricultural labor. About 100,000 farmers grow sugar beets in 18 states, he said, and more than 100,000 additional farm help, railroad workers, truck drivers and others are provided with employment during the beet harvest and sugar manufacturing campaign.

About $50,000,000 will be paid the farmers for their sugar beets by the beet sugar manufacturers this season. In many cases this money will actually save the farmers their farms.

New England Life Maintains Dividend

The board of directors of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company voted to continue the regular dividend scale to policyholders during the entire year 1933. Moreover, policyholders' funds left on deposit with the company at interest will continue to receive the rate that has been in effect of 4¾ per cent annually.

New England Mutual has increased its dividend scale seven times in the last 34 years, and during this period no dividend scale of this company has been reduced.

The directors announced that the conservative investment practices of the New England Mutual are proving their real merit under present business conditions and that the underwriting and investment results of the company during 1932 fully warrant the distribution of the regular dividend in 1933.

Beer Would Provide Stable Revenue, Bank Says

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

JUST WHAT WILL be the effects of a change in the prohibition laws on taxes and on business? Much has been said but most of the declarations can be traced back to a selfish, a political or a prejudicial influence. These statements make an analysis of the situation published by the New York Trust Company of particular importance since the problem has been attacked solely from an economic standpoint and partisanship appears to have been eliminated.

The organization questions some of the higher estimates of tax revenue to be derived from the legalization of beer and wines, but sees the possible returns from this tax source as substantial and dependable forms of revenue for federal and state governments.

The study finds only a slight benefit for agriculture and employment although the task of rehabilitating theindustry might cause a temporary spurt in the demand for certain types of workers. It sees the revenue advantages and the replacement of a decentralized and illegal industry by a co-ordinated and legal industry along with the tax advantages as sufficiently important to justify serious consideration of the legalization of light wines and beer.

Amount of Revenue Remains Uncertain

THE NEW YORK Trust Company states that the estimates of the amount of revenue to be derived from the legalization of light wines and beer show wide variations, but indicate it to be substantial and show that it would be fairly stable and that those taxes might bolster the entire tax structure in times of lessened business activity.

In 1919 the federal government receipts from taxes on alcoholic beverages amounted to $483,051,000 and in 1918 amounted to $443,840,000. According to the Bureau of Internal Revenue the tax collected on alcoholic beverages in each year from 1911 to 1916 yielded more than one-third of the total annual revenue.

While the federal revenue in no year reached the estimate of $1,000,500,000 made by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the amount is not to be neglected. The New York Trust Company says:

"Experiences of foreign countries since the war likewise indicate that a tax on alcoholic beverages provides a stable revenue. For example, approximately one-fifth of Great Britain's total annual revenue from 1923 to 1930 was obtained from liquor taxes. Canada collects about 17 per cent of all its revenues from excise and customs duties on alcoholic beverages. In Sweden and Norway, liquor taxes yield about 15 per cent of all government receipts from taxes. In Denmark and Australia, the revenues collected from alcoholic beverages account for approximately 19 per cent of all collections."

Enforcement Cost To Be Eliminated

IN 1931 FEDERAL prohibition enforcement cost about $51,000,000 while fines collected amounted to $5,000,000, according to the survey. This left a net cost of prohibition of about $46,000,000 which would be eliminated subject to the cost of enforcing the new laws which cannot be estimated.

The effect on employment would be to give many temporary jobs for putting the industry back into operating condition but after that it would be uncertain, according to the report which says:

"One argument frequently advanced for the return of light wines and beer is that a new industry would be created which would furnish employment to many hundreds of thousands of men who are now unemployed. Available evidence does not indicate that either outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or modification of prohibition would create a new industry. Such change would replace a decentralized, inefficient and costly illegal industry with a co-ordinated, efficient and economical legal industry. Honest jobs would replace criminal occupations.

STOCKS JUMP ON COVERING BY SHORTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The stock market cast off its pre-election restraint today and rallied briskly.

Brokers reported that the chief impetus toward higher prices appeared to be short covering and professional buying, with the general public still adhering to the sidelines. Prices moved up easily, however, as they did on Friday. Stocks were supported by firmness of wheat, but cotton was held back by hedge selling.

The market pushed up 1 to more than 4 points in the early dealings, and, while it wavered somewhat during the middle of the day, the advance was well maintained.

Business news over the week-end was meager, with some surveys mentioning pre-election hesitancy as a restraining factor. Nevertheless, another slight gain in steel production was reported, and in some brokerage quarters the opinion was expressed that with election out of the way business improvement might make further progress. Nevertheless, inasmuch as the normal tendency is for business volume to contract in the closing weeks of the year, Wall street opinion was decidedly mixed.

Yesterday's election in Germany was largely obscured by political developments at home, but in any case was not decisive enough to affect sentiment as to the international outlook much one way or the other. With Hitler losing ground, and no party commanding a majority, it was felt in international banking quarters that the Von Papen government will continue for some time.

Santa Fe's report of freight movement for the week ended November 5 showed a volume of 27,163 cars, against 28,323 a week previously, indicating a continuance of the normal slackening of freight movement expected at this time. Wall street is chiefly interested in how severe this seasonal contraction will be. Last year, loadings dropped from an autumn peak for the week ended October 1 of about 780,000 cars for all class 1 roads, to a low in the final week of the year of about 440,000 cars. Loadings evidently reached a seasonal peak this year in the week ended October 15, with a total of about 650,000 cars.

COPPER MARKET FIRM ABROAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Copper prices abroad showed firming tendencies today, sales having been negotiated at 5¼ cents, cif. Hamburg, Havre and London, or about .07 of a cent a pound higher than Saturday.

At the same time domestic buying was small with the rate still holding at 5¼ cents a pound delivered to the end of this year.

While some fairly large buying orders, it was expected in some quarters, may appear in the next few weeks, considerable anxiety is being expressed by producers regarding the final disposition of a bill in the British Parliament levying a protective tariff against foreign copper.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A fair demand was reported in spot silver under stimulus of good inquiry from China. Official price for spot was 27⅜ cents per fine ounce, or an advance of ⅜ cent over Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(INS.)—For the eighth consecutive week, wholesale commodity prices were again lower for the week ended November 5, as reported by the National Fertilizer Association. BANKING STIENGTHENED

BREWINGS LEAD LOCAL LIST UPWARD

Securities pushed ahead at the opening of the new week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with Pittsburgh Brewing preferred showing an advance of more than 2 points from its close on Saturday. The other brewings were firm, but their fluctuations were narrower. Fuels and industrials joined the upward movement, influenced by the strong demand for stocks on the "big board."

Gains in the general list ranged from fractions to over a point, with the buying well distributed throughout the list. Improvement was mainly attributed to the results of the German election, where the Hitler movement received a definite set-back. There was a disposition to interpret the Communist gain in Germany unfavorably, but observers have pointed out that many of the old German "middle class" have attached themselves to this group recently, the assumption being that the basic principles and ideals of this class have not changed fundamentally and their adherence to the Communist banner reflects chiefly a search for a party of ideals rather than a swing toward extreme radicalism.

WHEAT SCORES 3-CENT RISE

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Brisk upturns of grain values early today followed New York stock market advances, as well as a rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Larger takings of wheat by continental countries were reported, together with lessened pressure of Canadian and Argentine offerings. Opening ⅜ to 1 cent higher, Chicago wheat futures scored additional gains later. Corn started ⅛ to ⅝ up and continued to mount.

Crop damage reports from some districts of Cordoba Province, Argentina, were a factor in the wheat market advance, which soon carried prices here about 3 cents a bushel above the recent low point. Corn and oats ascended with wheat, corn touching the topmost point since October 21. Provisions responded to firmness of hog values.

Forbes

Pre-Election Trade Trend Satisfactory

By B. C. FORBES

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED, there is reason to be satisfied with the current economic trend.

NOTWITHSTANDING the destruction caused by boiling politics, the security markets last week lost very little ground, principal commodity prices closed with very little net loss, retail trade was well maintained, employment reports were encouraging.

Mr. Forbes

THE EVIDENCES are that the financial world has become reconciled to the prospect of a change in the administration. Therefore, a Democratic victory should not precipitate untoward developments in the security and commodity exchanges. Should, perchance, the voting spring a surprise by resulting in a Hoover victory, the financial powers-that-be unquestionably would seek to stage a bullish demonstration.

The fact is that High Finance and Big Business are prepared for the overthrow of the present administration.

SO MUCH is being said about "fear," so much is being said about the alleged halting of the recovery movement which began in July, that it may be well to show that the most significant and sensitive of all financial and economic barometers, the stock market, is still more than 50 per cent above its mid-year low level, and that the shares of many representative corporations closed the week approximately 75 per cent above their recent minimum quotation. For proof:

ADMITTEDLY, political uncertainties have had widespread restraining influence during the last fortnight. Cereals, cotton and several other agricultural commodities have suffered more or less acutely. This has brought a recession in the general price level. Also, retail trade activity, formerly expanding unmistakably has become irregular, gains in certain directions being offset by decreases elsewhere.

Latest industrial developments have also been uneven. Copper has declined, and so has rubber, silk, beef, coffee. Commercial failures—and even bank failures—have been somewhat more numerous. Bank clearings have decreased. Seasonal reduction in railway car loadings has set in.

ON THE OTHER hand, steel production has continued to creep upwards, improvement in electric power consumption has been maintained, employment reports have been distinctly encouraging.

Money rates in Wall street have reached historically low levels, the American dollar has proved impregnable, our stock of gold is climbing towards a new peak, large city banks are glutted with idle funds, and the federal government is offered at extraordinarily low rates far more funds than it needs to meet its constantly - swelling deficit.

Most railroads are exhibiting ability to keep down expenditures, and third-quarter industrial reports are not all disappointing, by any means. Several important dividends which were regarded as uncertain have been maintained.

IT MAY INTEREST the country to know that the "betting odds" in Wall street have become increasingly in favor of Gov. Roosevelt, until they are now quoted at four or five to one.

Under these circumstances, would it not be illogical for the security markets to show excitement should the Democratic candidate win.

U.S. BUSINESS MAINTAINS ADVANCE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

[illegible]rsal Service.

NE[illegible]RK, Nov. 7.—In spite o[illegible] and irresponsible political talk, business last week continued to hold its own, for the most part retaining its modest gains since the summer trough.

With the seasonal peak behind, indices of production have been easing off, though the decline has been somewhat less than seasonal and has, if anything, come a little later than ordinarily. In this connection, it should be recalled that in the earlier improvement, business rose in accordance with the usual seasonal tendency, though in the fall of 1930 and 1931 it failed to do so.

Mr. Rukeyser

In the heavy industries, the only mild encouragement comes from the steel activity, which continues steady, supported by railroad repair work and by some automobile purchases for new models. The lack of autumn demand for automobiles has been an unfavorable factor, reflecting the great damage which has been done to American purchasing power. Building contracts have been receding.

TREND SEASONAL

But these industries have been merely performing in accordance with the seasonal trend. The chief discouragement has come from the decline in commodity prices, which after eight weeks of decline, fell to the lowest level since June 14, down over 8 per cent from the September peak.

The stock market gave a varied performance. After a period of stagnation, it declined sharply. Then in the two closing sessions it recovered after so authoritative a commentator as Owen D. Young gave it as his opinion that in spite of the G. O. P. ballyhoo, there was nothing bearish in the election of Gov. Roosevelt to the presidency.

In the present mood of buyers, one effective way to break the purchasers' strike is to demonstrate that it is extravagant and wasteful to cling to obsolete, uneconomic possessions instead of replacing them with modern instruments.

'SHARE-WORK' SUCCESS

N. R. Powley, executive vice chairman of the San Francisco committee on sharing the work, reports:

"The results to date are extremely encouraging.

"Reports tabulated for 1,749 firms canvassed to date by the employment committee of the Chamber of Commerce, show that since the first of August 2,235 employes have been put back to work through job-sharing and 4,566 employes have been retained who otherwise would have been laid off."

Whatever may be the theoretical limitations of the philosophy behind this emergency movement, it deserves commendation because it represents an attempt to apply the principles of management to the use of the human factor in business.

STEEL OUTPUT HIGHER HERE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Steel production advanced from 19½ to 21 per cent last week, the first time the rate has crossed the 20 per cent mark since early in June, said Steel today. Schedules for this week indicate another gain of one point. The improvement, the magazine said in its weekly survey, was largely due to bunching of orders in the Pittsburgh district and the release of automotive requirements to Cleveland and Youngstown mills.

The operating rate in the Pittsburgh district gained two points to 19 per cent, in Cleveland it rose seven points to 33½ per cent, and in Youngstown was up half a point to 19 per cent. Cleveland mills probably will jump to 38 per cent this week. The report continued:

"But beyond the current week producers are not disposed to look. Actual bookings since November 1 have bee.. strikingly smaller than the average for October, a slump which is in large measure ascribed to uncertainty over the election. The tendency to await the outcome of the election unquestionably delayed some business."

Known Loans on Securities Show Drastic Decline From 1929 Peak

Total known security loans outstanding are now at the lowest levels since such statistics have been made available. Figures based on the security loans of reporting member banks, advances by private sources as reported in the stock exchange monthly figures, and loans made by non-bank lenders, now aggregate only $4,418,000,000. These figures contrast with the record high of September, 1929, and reveal a condition of no less than 66½ per cent from the peak total of $13,205,000,000 reported at that time. Such drastic deflation is hardly indicative of the necessity for much further liquidation at least in banking advances backed by security collateral.

The drop of 24,531 cars reported in the freight movement for the week ended October 29, proved about in line with unofficial estimates which had been around. The firmness of the rail shares suggested the showing had been pretty much discounted by recent reaction in that group. Shrinkage in carloadings is recognized as reflecting the normal tapering off in business from the peak of the fall movement, accentuated somewhat on this occasion by election considerations.

With the election results out of the way, the speculative fraternity will probably display greater interest in the meeting of Union Pacific directors for dividend action, slated for Thursday. Union Pacific earned $2.07 a share on the common stock in the first half year, falling somewhat short of covering requirements for that period. But traffic has since improved materially, and from current indications it appears the road will probably show net approximately equal to or very little short of $6 a common share.

There remains only today's session before the election recess toward which the market has been casting its gaze for many weeks past. The prolonged spell of lethargic dealings experienced the last few weeks was broadly ascribed to the indisposition of public and professional alike to be actively in the market pending the outcome of national balloting tomorrow. Accordingly it was the feeling as the week opened that not much beyond last minute efforts at "evening-up" could be expected.

Electric refrigeration sales during the past few months indicate a consumer preference toward larger sized cabinets, according to a statement made recently by R. C. Cosgrove, manager of the refrigeration division of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Cosgrove made this statement to amplify the recent announcement that the Westinghouse refrigeration business has shown a substantial increase during the past few months. According to the figures made public by the Westinghouse Company their refrigeration division reported that orders entered during the month of September, 1932, were 59 per cent over the previous month in dollar volume, and 17 per cent ahead of September, 1931.

While retail trade throughout the country profited substantially from the recently more than seasonal consumer demand, storekeepers generally are still confronted with rental and leasing problems. Numerous merchants, hoping for further improvement in business at least by next spring, are attempting to compromise with their landlords on the ground that they will be unable to pare their previous losses unless rents are reduced in proportion to other prices. In general retailers say that their landlords, realizing the situation, have attempted to help them in a solution of their renting problems and in numerous instances adjustments have been made.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—While second grade loans exhibited rallying tendencies in a fairly active bond market today, the higher priced investment groups moved uncertainly. Some of the German government issues were up moderately, as were bonds of France, Belgium and Italy. United States government loans were rather dull with prices mixed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

OIL INDUSTRY SEEN MAKING PROGRESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Sir John Cadman, chairman of Anglo-Persian Oil Company, Ltd., and of the Iraq Petroleum Company, Ltd., who is here to address the American Petroleum Institute annual meeting, which will be held November 15 to 17 at Houston, told The Wall Street Journal that he believes the petroleum industry has shown fundamental progress since he spoke here in 1928 urging world oil co-operation.

While stating that economic conditions in general are "about as bad as they could be," he asserted that the oil industry, more than any other, has proceeded to adjust its difficulties.

WORLD BUSINESS

The presentation of a united front by the leading oil companies of the world at the conferences this year to correct the unsatisfactory situation in foreign markets was a distinct gain, he said.

Practical conservation of oil, Sir John said, is a plant of slow but steady growth. Oil executives recognize, he said, that their industry is one that transcends all nationalistic barriers. He deprecated the prevalent tendency in all countries to overtax oil, although he said tax collectors are beginning to appreciate that they "can kill the goose that lays the golden egg."

IRAQ GOING AHEAD

The Iraq oil project is developing satisfactorily, Sir John said. The pipe line from the oil fields to the Mediterranean, which involves many difficulties in construction, is scheduled for completion in 1935.

"Petroleum and Policy" will be the topic of the Anglo-Persian chairman's address at the institute meeting. He will view technological development while in the Southwest, and will probably visit California. He will return to England about the middle of December.

ROONEYS WIN AGAIN; MORGAN TIES RANGERS

By TOM BIRKS

The J. P. Rooneys, twice West Penn Conference champions, kept their undefeated record intact yesterday afternoon at Greenlee Field, defeating the West View gridders, 13 to 0, in a game that found the champions opening up with a series of scintillating plays for the first time this season.

In the other West Penn Conference game, the Bellaire Eagles defeated the McKeesport Olympics, also by a 13-to-0 score.

CHAMPS OPEN UP

With West View playing a fine defensive game in the first half, holding the Big Green machine scoreless, Coach Art Rooney delved into his bag of tricks, and when a barrage of triple and double passes was laid down, West View crumbled.

Franklin Hood scored the first touchdown for the Champions in the third period. Jimmy Rooney failed to collect the extra point. Just to put the game on ice, the Big Green opened another drive in which Bucky Wagner, Bud Devinney, Harp Vaughan and Franklin Hood did the ball toting, Vaughan finally going over for the touchdown from the six-yard mark. The Rooneys pulled something new for the extra point, Hood throwing a pass to Devinney.

PAPALES VICTORS

In a non-Conference tussle, the East Liberty Papales, with a rebuilt lineup, defeated the Mt. Pleasant Merchants, 12 to 0, on the Washington boulevard grounds. A blocked punt accounted for the first touchdown and Politz took a pass for the second.

In other sandlot battles, the Aliquippa Indians walloped the Twenty-seventh Ward Traders, 33 to 0; Broadway Mounts upset the Bloomfield Civics, 13-0; Goose Goslins added to their win streak, defeating the New Kensington Scholastics, 39-0; Brookline Merchants tied the Evergreen Olympics, 0-0; Arsenal Ramblers won over Marshall Tech, 19-6; J. J. Doyles took the Irwin Mohawks, 14-0; Soho Oakleafs walloped Glenwood, 25-0; P. J. McBrides blanked the Sixteenth Ward Traders, 12-0; Oakland Community nosed out the New Idea team, 6-0; West View Juniors downed the North Side Cyclones, 12-0; Morningside defeated the Veronas, 12-6, and Allison Park downed the Krieger-Marx eleven, 13-6.

The Rooney-West View lineup:

J. J. ROONEYS—13.		WEST VIEW—0.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The Boston Braves, led by Gyp Battles and Oren Pape, snowed the Stapletons under in a National Professional Football League game yesterday, 19 to 6.

The Braves took the kick-off in the first period to pass the plunge to the nine-yard line where Batties sliced off tackle for the score. Battles broke away again in the second period to score from the 20-yard line.

Stapleton scored in the fourth quarter when Campiglio broke away for a succession of long gains but on the kick-off after the score Pape raced 85 yards through the entire Stapleton team to end the scoring.

GRANGE GETS THREE

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Red Grange scored three touchdowns as the Chicago Bears buried the New York Giants under a 28-to-8 score in a National Professional Football League game here yesterday.

DODGERS DEFEATED

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—After being checked by two great goal line stands, the Portsmouth Spartans scored 10 points in the final quarter yesterday to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers.

GREEN BAY WINS

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The forward passing combination of Arnold Herber and Johnny Blood yesterday led the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Professional Football League, to their seventh victory of the season, a 19-to-9 triumph over the Chicago Cardinals at Wrigley Field.

Gonzaga Victor Over San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Gonzaga's Bull Dogs defeated the University of San Francisco Dons, 6 to 0 here yesterday in a hard-fought game that saw the visitors score the winning touchdown in the third period.

Krause, Gonzaga fullback star, took a lateral pass from a teammate on San Francisco's 27-yard line, reversed the field and dashed to the goal. Krause's place kick on the try for point was short.

Hershman Back At State After 20 Years

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 7.—Heff Hershman, star fullback of the Nittany Lions a quarter-century ago, is back on the campus. Hershman, now a successful mining engineer, will spend several months here preparing a thesis for a professional degree in engineering.

He has not been on the campus since his graduation some 20 years ago until this week. The first thing he did on his arrival was strike out for the practice field to watch the 1932 Nittany Lions go through their daily workout.

He was regular fullback in the seasons of 1906 to 1909, inclusive.

In a game that proved to be the roughest of the season, and which wound up with three of the home players being ordered from the field, the Curry soccer team defeated Valley Camp, 4 goals to 2 in the feature game of the Keystone League yesterday afternoon at Van Vooris.

Referee O'Conner had a small edition of Donnybrook Fair on hand as the game started, and he soon removed Harrison, Bailey and Lorenzo for dangerous tactics.

REFEREE ATTACKED

Minus three players, Curry piled up four goals, while the home team only tallied twice. Two of the players were playing their first game since being reinstated and seeing that Referee O'Conner was assaulted after the game, it is possible that the West Penn Commission, meeting Wednesday, will hand out some salty sentences and may close the grounds for the remainder of the season.

The other games in the Keystone League found Morgan beating Cecil, 4-0, and the Zoneys stopping the Bridgeville Rosies, 2-0.

In the Allegheny Valley League, Harwick nosed out Tarentum, 2-0; Curtisville beat Millvale, 2 to 1, and Kinlock had little trouble beating Barsotti, 3-0.

In the Ohio-Pennsylvania circuit, Tiltonville beat Midland, 4-2, and Aliquippa stopped East Liverpool, 1 to 0.

AVELLA WINS

The Washington County League found some close battles. Avella surprised Donahoes, winning 2-0; Langeloth had an easy time with Lincoln Hill, winning 4-0; while Atlasburg beat Cedar Grove, 2-0

In the Panhandle circuit, Primrose lost its local battle with McDonald, 3-1; McKnights beat McGraths, 2-1; Vulcans nosed out Gallatin, 2-1, and Coverdale beat West Carnegie, 3-1. Leetsdale had an easy afternoon with Pleasant Hills, winning, 4-1; Coraopolis and the Shannon Braves played a 1-to-1 tie, and Moon Run defeated the Grove A. C., 1-0.

Yanks, Frenchmen Tie in Bike Race

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—Jimmy Walthour and Charley Ritter, and the Red Devil team of Alfred Letourner and Gerard Debaets, were tied for the lead in Chicago's twenty-eighth international six-day bicycle race last night after 96 hours of riding at the Chicago Stadium.

The leaders had covered 1,733 miles, nine laps, with the Americans having the advantage in points, 179 to 153. The field was reduced to 10 teams with the withdrawal of Otto Petri, of Germany, and Steve Wagner, of Chicago.

Olympics Capture Detroit Ice Title

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—(AP.)—The Red Wings, Detroit's National Hockey League entry, won the third and rubber game of the city championship series with the International League Olympics last night, 3 to 2, but the Olympics won the series on the basis of total points, 12 goals to 11.

Last night's game went into overtime, Buswell breaking the tie after nine minutes of the extra session by slapping home a pass from Marker.

CHAPTER XVI.

Below stairs, two huddled together upon a couch. The color had come back to Elizabeth's face. She could smile a little and once she startled herself by laughing at something Lennox said. The drama had dwindled to adjustment. The burden had been taken from their young shoulders. They could even forgive—or ignore—the things Louisa had put into words, the other, more bitter things she had not uttered. She was old, she couldn't understand, they were pariah in the sight of her middle-age. But they loved one another—and everything would come right.

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon, aristocratic widow, who idolizes her son, Lennox, above all things else on earth, is arranging details of his wedding to Elizabeth Howland. Mrs. Sheldon in secret decided to marry off Lennox to some nice girl more than two years before when he attended a party where giddy girls of no social standing had made merry with the boys. Mrs. Sheldon took command of wedding plans and sent Elizabeth home to visit her family for a few months. His mother is annoyed when Lennox tells her he intends to visit Elizabeth at Boston. He goes there, enjoys the visit, and plans to make the trip every week-end.

Now Go On

They dined, passably well, with Henrietta in the gloomy dining room. Henrietta was flutteringly exhilarated at the thought of the coming ceremonies. Louisa stayed in her room, writing, telephoning, sending back her tray untouched. Late that night, long after she heard them come upstairs, she rose from her desk, stiffly, like an old woman. She had heard Lennox hesitate at her door. How she had listened then, waiting for his knock, his touch on the knob, but he had passed on to his own. She had heard far down the corridor another door close. Elizabeth's.

Now she rose and took off her clothes, putting them neatly to rights in a clothes press or over a chair, turning her stockings wrong side out as she always did, fitting wooden trees to her boots. She drew the cool white linen of her nightgown over her head, brushed and braided her abundant hair, washed, opened her windows. Then disregarding the cool rush of air blowing the curtains, she knelt beside her bed.

FLAME OF HATRED

After a long time she rose again. She had not prayed.

She lay down on the big bed and drew the blankets about her. It was not cold, for March, but she shivered continuously. She shut her eyes and saw dreadful unspeakable things. She could not see beauty for she had never seen it; she was unfamiliar with its veiled and altering face.

She wept, painfully. She thought she wept for the dishonor of her son. Hate dried her tears, and she thought it hatred of his sin. Hate licked at her heart; it was a vehement flame.

After a time she crept from her bed and went to the door which communicated with Lennox's room. She crouched down beside it and pressed her face to the polished panels. Was he in that room, sleeping, or waking? Or was the room empty of him? Had he left it, stealing like a thief down the quiet, carpeted hall?

It seemed to her that against such an outrage the old house must find a voice of protest, must cry out.

Louisa drowsed there, half sitting and half kneeling, listening to his audible breathing. Once he stirred and spoke a name. She knew the murmur for a name; she knew whose name. She pressed closer to the panel, dreading an answer. None came.

She stayed as she was, her braids of graying hair falling over her relaxed bosom. Her tall angularity was as if shrouded in the stiff whiteness of her decent nightgown; her bare feet protruded, blue with cold, helpless and ugly.

PREPARATIONS GO ON

Crucified there, against the barrier which separated them, not daring to go in to him with this live flame eating at her heart, she crouched by his door, painfully, doggedly, until daylight.

The advanced date of the Sheldon-Howland wedding caused very little comment. People revised their engagement books and allotted an hour to the purchasing of gifts. One or two women who knew Louisa Sheldon fairly well—none could call herself an intimate—said, not caring, "Going abroad? How like Louisa!" Which, interpreted, implied that Mrs. Sheldon's custom of suiting her own convenience was recognized.

In the house on Washington Square the preparations went on, quietly. Louisa's wire to Ella had been of so urgent a nature that Ella arrived, tearful and flurried, upon the first possible day and was asked to share her daughter's room.

"You won't mind? I thought you might like it. The girls will have the green guest room, next door, and the Lennox connection will occupy the others."

VISITORS ARRIVE

Normally, Elizabeth would have been glad of her mother's close companionship through the remaining days and nights. But not now. For Ella's tears and transports, her soft reproaches concerning the contemplated "elopement," her stammered Victorian, decently vague warnings and explanations took on a shape of refined torment to the girl. She marveled unceasingly and gratefully, that her mother was so insensitive to the atmosphere of the house, to Louisa's attitude toward herself, Elizabeth. Yet there was nothing tangible, nothing you could put your finger on and, to the uninitiated, the mask, as always, sufficed.

The place began to hum with talk.

The sisters arrived, having procured substitutes for their school positions. The Lennox connection, women stiff in black satin, liberal of jet and bugles, men heavily frock-coated after an older fashion, came rustling and tramping into the house, entirely self-possessed, full of long, congratulatory speeches, bearing expensive gifts. The place began to hum with talk, to clatter with tea cups, and Henrietta was red rimmed about the eyes, wan from sewing, from the last fittings, despite the two assistants who had been called in.

Much of Elizabeth's trousseau had come from the shops, an inevitable departure from old custom. The wedding gown was secured already made, a Worth importation, sent over as a model. The sewing room might have sat for its portrait, every chair heaped with fine linens and laces, with ribbons uncurling colored lengths of satin; with feathers and straw and buckles, slippers and shoes and stockings.

"You don't seem a bit excited, Betty. If I were in your place I'd be out of my mind," Alice remarked, viewing the pretty chaos.

Louisa made her own careful plans, arranged her sailing for a few days after the wedding, communicated with the acquaintance who was departing at the same time.

Directly after the ceremony Lennox was to take Elizabeth to Pinehurst; the rooms had been engaged.

Mrs. Howland said, damply, to her hostess, "we can't thank you enough, Louisa. All you are doing for my little girl! How happy she will be! Lennox is the dearest boy and Betty will be a good wife. I have brought her up with that in mind—a woman's highest duty. She is domestic, devoted, simple in her tastes. But you have had her with you for two years now, so you know."

"Yes," I know," Louisa answered, with no effort at irony. Indeed she spoke absently, amiably enough while her mind stood aghast at how little she had known.

Stop a COLD the First Day!

Taken Promptly, this Four-Way Remedy Will Usually Stop a Cold the First Day and Save You Much Suffering as Well as the Danger of Serious Complications!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started. Once a cold fastens its grip on you, it becomes twice as hard to remove. And a cold lodged in the system may lead to something worse.

Don't hope to kill a cold with merely local or external applications. A cold is a germ attack, an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment.

Don't hope to kill a cold, either, with anything except a COLD remedy. A cure-all is self-deception. Many preparations which people commonly take for a cold actually make the relief of a cold more difficult because these preparations are constipating and also make the system acid.

The Required Effects

The thing to take for a cold or case of grippe is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—because it does the four things necessary, in the way that is necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly—the first step in knocking a cold. Secondly, it kills the cold germs in the system, expels the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Thirdly, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourthly, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

This is the treatment a cold calls for—adequate and decisive.

Harmless, but Effective!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate or make the head ring or swim.

In dainty tablet form, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is convenient and pleasant to take, as well as effective. Comes in handy, pocket size boxes, cellophane-wrapped, and is sold by every drug store in America.

When you feel a cold coming on, take a few of the tablets immediately. This will usually expel the cold overnight and prevent the infection from spreading within the system. Ask distinctly for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine and resent a substitute as an imposition.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Several thousand boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, attended the regular meetings Saturday at the 16 Warner Theaters. The meeting of the Cameraphone Chapter opened with the usual ceremonies, reading the club pledge, salute to the flag. The youngsters, led by Eddie Riffle and Jack Kastrankas joined in the singing of the following songs: "A Shanty In Old Shanty Town," "Good-night, Sweetheart," "My Mom" and "Say It Isn't So."

Lorraine Mayhew, a cute little miss about 14, then offered an acrobatic specialty which was well received by the members.

The members wanted to sing some more, so Manager Earl Roeser called Eddie and Jack back to the stage and they led the children in singing "Walking My Baby Back Home" and "Snuggle On Your Shoulder."

While this was going on, Lorraine changed her costume and this time dressed as a West Point Cadet offered a very fast military tap dance.

BALLOON CONTEST

Then 12 boys were called to the stage and each given a large red balloon. The one who blew the balloon biggest without breaking it was judged the winner. Clarence Brock had the best pair of lungs and by popular applause was judged the winner.

Lucille Bishirjian then tap danced her way right into the hearts of the youngsters.

Then came the contest which most of the boys had been waiting for. Yes, that's right, Manager Roeser was looking for the champion "pie eater" of the Cameraphone Chapter. There were so many youngsters wanting to compete in this contest that Mr. Roeser had to have the youngsters put all their names in a hat and one of the ushers drew out eight names. These eight boys were then given a blackberry pie and the fun began.

MEMBERS' AMBITIONS

Dorothy Crozier, cute little blonde singer of the Cameraphone Chapter, desires to be a great movie star when she grows up.

Joe Melvin is a football fan. He has been to every game the "Dukes" have played this year. Joe sees all the games for 10 cents and two Lucky Bucks clipped from the Sun-Telegraph.

Anna Schmidt has a large collection of butterflies and moths, all nicely mounted and in glass cases. She invites some of the members over to her house each week to see her collection.

La Verne Sangl's greatest ambition is to be an entertainer on the radio when grown up.

Bug Finds Politics is Too Manly

Now is the time for all good men to rush from party to party.

No real reason why you shouldn't be both Democratic and Republican tomorrow and earn the goodwill of everybody.

That's the only way you can prevent yourself from being well shellacked by the baker, the butcher and the neighbor. In order to prevent belligerent fisticuffs The Bug has decided to be whatever the other guy is.

Every man has his own opinion about politics. And he is ready to enforce it with sword and gun. That's why The Bug oils everybody in an urbane manner. We are fattening up a turkey for Thanksgiving and we don't want history to claim that a bird outlived us.

There is a man in the next apartment who is a Republican of the most muscular origin. Every day he grabs us by the lapels and does a group loop. He seems to think that democracy is something that can be cured by thumping out the resident microbes.

TOMORROW IS ELECTION DAY—NOW I WANT TO KNOW—

We are equally convinced that Republicanism is not essentially fatal if treated with a vaccine composed of knuckles and boots. But he outweighs us 60 pounds and we know we couldn't win even with Jack Kearns in our corner.

So we temporize with him knowing that softboiled answers will turn away raps. Anytime we fight for our country there's going to be a pension connected with the job.

But that won't stop thousands of individual partisans from smacking each other around tomorrow at the polls. One guy will yell, "Hooray for Franklin." His opponent will howl, "Whoops for Herbert." And the fight will be on. They'll pull and tug around a 60-acre lot, roll in the corn stubble and knock over all the gallon jugs in the Anti-Saloon League.

Nobody ever stops a fight like that if their side is winning. It's okay so long as the Democrat is on top. But when the other guy shuffles the huddle and climbs on the hurricane deck the other Democrats pull him off and ask: "Why don't you take a guy your size?"

The Duke of Wellington isn't the only strategist who knew the value of reinforcements.

THE BOYS GOT TO FIGURING

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

A crowd of perhaps a dozen Monday evening in a local cafe brought up the subject of craps. One of the boys told of a game his dad was in, where a feller "hit" 28 times. The boys got to figuring on the basis of a 25-cent shot, leaving their money on the table and letting it double 28 times. They figured they would have over nine million dollars!

Country Above Party

The "Regularity" Fetish Is Used "By the Privileged Few" for the Exploitation of the Many.

Senator Johnson spoke the language of true Americanism, the Americanism of George Washington, when in his eloquent address at Los Angeles, he denounced as a fetish that party regularity which is too often utilized "by the privileged few" for the exploitation of the unprotected many.

One of the sternest warnings bequeathed to his countrymen against this fetish is to be found in Washington's farewell address.

After dwelling upon the danger of founding political parties on geographical discriminations, the Father of His Country in his immortal valedictory, said:

"Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effect of the spirit of party, generally. . . . It exists under different shapes in all governments; but, in those of the popular form, it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy . . . ."

All progressive Americans who, like Senator Johnson, of California, refuse in this time of national crisis to enslave themselves to the fetish of party regularity are heeding the warning words of the Father of His Country.

By putting country above party, and voting tomorrow to promote the national welfare instead of voting to perpetuate the fetish of party regularity, Senator Johnson and all other progressive Americans will make a most appropriate and useful contribution to the celebration of the bicentennial of George Washington, who was "of good men the greatest, of great men the best."

Coyotes in Pennsylvania

It Would Be Interesting to Know How the Prairie Wolves Found Their Way Into the State.

A strange animal kept raiding the poultry yard of a Somerset County farmer. He maintained a watch, and succeeded in shooting the beast. Puzzled as to what it was, he sent the pelt to the State Game Commission, which has identified it as a coyote, or prairie wolf.

The commission has records of five or six coyotes killed in Pennsylvania during the last two years, and is of the opinion that these wolves are living in a wild condition in various parts of the state.

But there is another possible explanation. As the supply of game increases the supply of predatory animals also increases. John M. Phillips, former president of the Game Commission, remarked some years ago, as his work in bringing deer back into Pennsylvania began to show results, that it would not surprise him if, in the course of time, as the deer became more and more plentiful, their abundance would attract timber wolves from points outside of the state. They have long been extinct in Pennsylvania.

Can it be that the abundance of game accounts for the presence of the coyotes?

21 Hours to California

Pittsburgh's New Air Service Marks an Important Step Forward in Transportation.

New airplane service which went into effect Saturday night makes it possible to arrive in Los Angeles the same day that one leaves Pittsburgh.

You step into a plane at the City-County Airport at midnight. Twenty-one hours later you step out in the California city.

It is perhaps trite to say that a comparatively few years ago it would have been considered absurd to predict such a possibility. But even now there is a tendency to rub one's eyes and ask if it is not all a dream.

It does seem that the limit in fast transportation has been reached. Yet it will not be long before the 21-hour service to Los Angeles will be a commonplace, and presently a still faster schedule will be arranged.

This rapid transit is a great step forward. And the best part of it is that it is scarcely any more hazardous than other forms of transportation.

Well Done, Greensburg!

The Success of the Westmoreland County Drive Augurs Well for the Pittsburgh Appeal.

Greensburg is entitled to compliments on the success of its welfare fund campaign. With the goal set at $40,000, the total amount pledged is $63,635.

It speaks volumes for the generosity of the people of the Westmoreland County town that many of the workers have promised to contribute to the welfare fund 2 per cent of their earnings during the next eight months.

The success of the Greensburg drive augurs well for the Pittsburgh Welfare Fund campaign, which has the raising of $2,500,000 as its goal. The local drive starts Wednesday.

Bishop Boyle has set a good example. He has made his offering larger than it was last year because of the greater need.

To Emphasize Quality

A Proposed Campaign Is a Reminder That in the Long Run First-Class Goods May Be Cheapest.

A number of Pittsburgh merchants decided at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to start a campaign to call attention to the quality of merchandise rather than the price.

The movement is timely, for cheapness undoubtedly has been overemphasized of late, to the disadvantage both of customers and merchants.

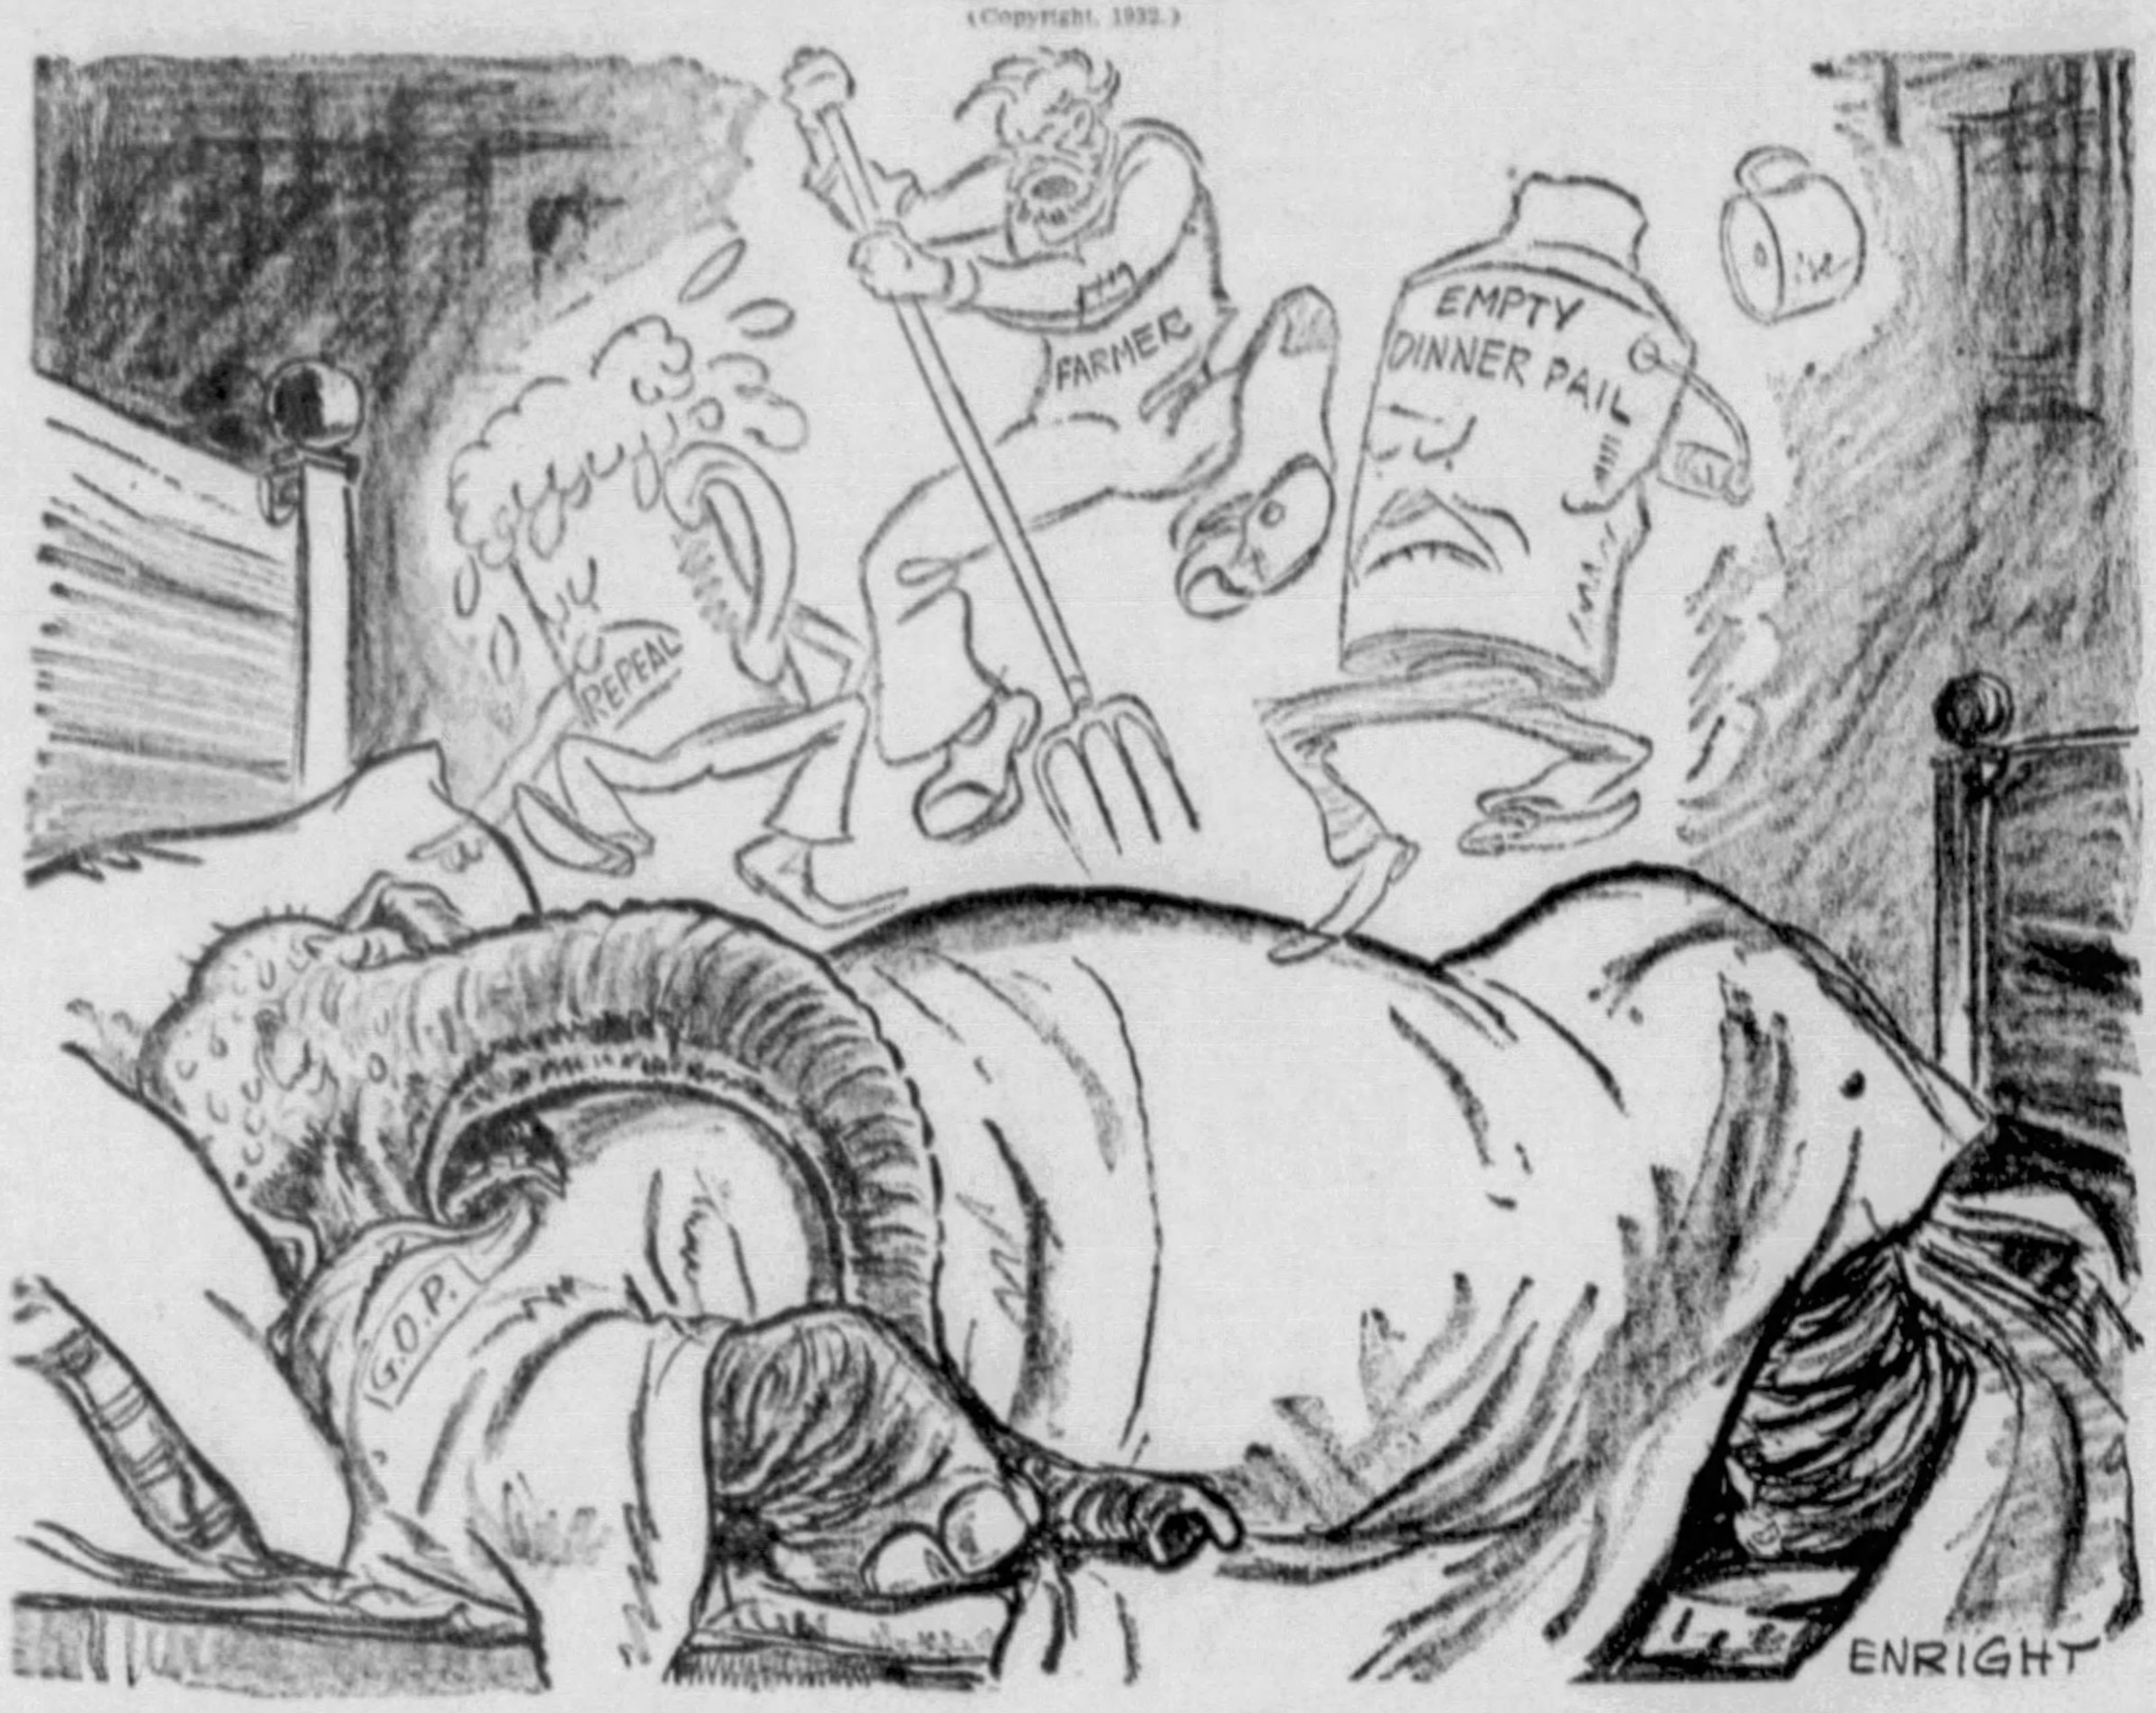
Paper shoes may cost only half as much as leather footwear, but a pair of leather shoes may outlast three or four pairs of the cheaper articles.

And so it is of shoddy, as compared with material that is all wool, and of innumerable other commodities.

First-class goods in the long run may be less expensive than inferior articles.

Nightmare!

(Copyright, 1932.)



He sleeps, the poor old Pachyderm,
A fitful sort of sleep,
For nightmares come to make him squirm
And cause his nerves to creep.
Shades of an empty dinner pail,
Ghosts of a glass foaming ale
And spectral farmers make him quail
And plague his slumbers deep.

For many a promise long forgot
And many a wily scheme
Comes back to put him on the spot
Without a hopeful gleam.
Nor will the nightmare pass away;
He knows these spectres grim and gray
Will wreck him on Election Day—
And that's no idle dream.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early up and to my mail, finding scarlet autumn greetings from Lois Josephine, Frazier and Bob Hunt and an autographed copy of Ruth Kauffman's new book from Geneva. So at my moiling awhile and then prepared a fresh draught of my vows against the new year.

With my wife to a dressmaker, and tried to read "The Life of Emerson" but, Heaven forfend! found myself glancing at mannikins all the while. Later to Riverdale to the Spruille Bradens, and the Ted Woodyards there and Bill Hamilton. And came upon the shyest dog ever I beheld.

To dinner with Mary Louise and Otto Carmichael from Muncie. And the Roy Howards came. Also Joe Moore, Lee Olwell, Isabel Leighton and Ralph Hays, all merry. And on way home a lady with movie star eyelashes called from a doorway "Lo Pappy!" So irked, I lay awake the night.

On a swanky stretch of upper Fifth avenue today, four enormous vans were removing what must have been expensive loads—tapestries, Chippendales, Sheratons and a sprinkling of Picassos and Modiglianis. Doubtless the disarray on the sidewalk and under heavy guard had been combed from all parts of the world. Yet it looked tacky. There is no way to make a moving aristocratic.

The times, perhaps a spirit of adventure, but anyway, this is a season flowering stage debutantes. Appearing currently are three buds from a recent crop—Elizabeth Young, Betty Gilette and June Blossom. The debbies' trail to the footlights, incidentally, was blazed by Grantland Rice's lovely daughter, Florence.

This is poaching on Maury Paul's preserves—he's been vacationing in Europe, too, and knows how it is—but I hear the creme de la creme of the 400 no longer is gauged entirely by wealth or the Social Register. Fortunates who "really belong" are those receiving bids to Mrs. H. McKay Twombly's Thursday dinners. They are a glaze of stiff pomposities, but everyone is heartened by realization they are snugly within the sacred fold.

Mention of the 400 still brings a thought of the foppish Harry Lehr. He was most extravagantly publicized. No one ever heard of Mrs. Lehr entertaining. Yet she, with her Medusa-like curls, was the most gracious hostess of all. But Harry got the notices.

It's a nimble leap from the social swim to cabins in the cotton, but just this minute I received a card from James Grouch, a South Carolina columnist, who reports business improved down yonder. The local store just sold a whole plug of Brown Mule. For the past three years they have been selling it by the "chaw."

As first nighters' debouched under a marquee the other evening, there was a furious swirl around a figure which proved to be Edward G. Robinson. They sought his autograph, and some, in frenzy of hero worship, reached to touch him. Along the curb where two famous stage stars, still young but in the corona of eclipse, I wondered if Robinson recalled that, quite inconspicuously, he was in the supporting cast of one of them a few years ago. It was heartening that his greeting for her had the grace of humility. And it doesn't seem out of place here to add, Robinson has become one of the very finest actors of our time.

Robinson made the gangster glamorous, but, at the same time, stressed his evil finish. That is acting. In Manhattan thickets and underbrush, I have met "Eat 'Em Up" Jack McManus, Monk Eastman, Big Jack Zelig, Kid Twist and others. None was glamorous. I felt the need of fumigation. Even so, the old-time sluggers were Sir Galahads, compared to the machine gun-sniping rats of the day.

* * *

After every paragraph like that, there's usually a telephone call fraught with menace, inquiring: "Lissen smart guy, you're going to talk out of turn once too often!" But it doesn't frighten me. And if I take off suddenly at your touch on the shoulder, it means nothing. I've been flying that way for years.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Mr. W. R. Hearst, in a recent message to the American people, said a large thing.

"OUR GREAT MEN HAVE NEVER BEEN 'STAND-PATTERS' WHO BELIEVED IN LETTING BAD ENOUGH ALONE."

"Letting bad enough alone"—that's a curious twist in words, isn't it? Startles you; maybe makes you a bit uneasy. For chances are, all your life, you've accepted that other old axiom, "Let well enough alone."

Scores of times you have been on the verge of drastic action, then laid off because someone told you to "let well enough alone."

There was that time when you wanted to tell your meddling neighbor where to head in—

And the time the whole town was fighting mad over the re-election of a dishonest supervisor—

And the time you almost decided to jump your job, pull up stakes and make a fresh start in a new place.

You were red hot for action then, werent' you?

But they warned you that you "might start something you couldn't finish;" advised you to "let well enough alone."

You didn't want to listen; didn't want to agree. You were sick of things as they were; determined to have a change. Your fighting blood was up. But—

You had to admit that their warnings sounded like sense. Bad as things are, they MIGHT be worse. Perhaps if you broke loose, you'd make them worse; find yourself in a nasty jam. You didn't want them; you certainly didn't! Then, maybe—

Yes, probably it was better to "let well enough alone." And so you listened and didn't do anything. Just let things go on as they were.

But you've never been really satisfied with your decision. Always you squirmed under a secret conviction that you acted the coward.

For were you really letting "well enough" alone?

Or were you actually letting "BAD ENOUGH" alone because you were too yellow and too lazy to take a stand?

And now again, on all sides, you're hearing that old Shush Slogan, "LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE."

Twelve million men out of work. Millions of their dependents homeless and starving. Your state and your country in debt over their ears. No jobs in sight. No plan. And winter just ahead. Youngsters in rags, half fed. Townships so poor they can't provide decent schooling. Parents so poor they can't provide decent homes. Dozen of men lounging on every corner, their eyes cringing, looking like licked curs. Gaunt, grim women. The rising mutter of revolution.

Is that "well enough"? Is that all that we've a right to expect; all we are able to do, in this richest country of the world? Can't we have, daren't we demand, anything better than—THAT?

You don't know. You can't decide. You wish you didn't have to decide; wish you didn't have to take sides on November 8. Maybe it's best, after all, to let things go on as they are.

STOP IT! STOP TWO-TIMING YOURSELF WITH THOUGHTS LIKE THAT! STOP KIDDING YOURSELF INTO COWARDICE!

Vote—and vote as you please. Don't let any man meddle with your voting conscience.

BUT DON'T VOTE ON THE THEORY THAT WE SHOULDN'T MAKE A CHANGE IN THE MIDDLE OF A MUD-PUDDLE.

Don't check any man's name because you want to pass the buck; because you'd rather "leave well enough alone" than face facts and fight!

YOU'RE LETTING "BAD ENOUGH" ALONE!

This country is in bad. It will take the bravest and the most agile man we can select to pull us out of this mess.

AND THE MAN WHO WON'T ADMIT IT IS A TRAITOR TO HIS COUNTRY!

DON'T ELECT A STAND-PATTER, WHATEVER HIS PARTY!

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

A good deal depends on personal application, even when it's only a porous plaster.

Text For Today For God giveth to a man that is good in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy: but to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, that he may give to him that is good before God. This also is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes, ii:26.

Hoover for Volstead; And the 'System'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

In his speech in New York City Mr. Hoover made as impressive as possible his continuing devotion to the "noble experiment" and his absolute opposition to the modification of the Volstead act. The demand that he say like a man what some of his supporters in New York whisper, that he is willing to sign a beer bill, had been made. He read a flimsy apology for his administration in which prohibition was utterly ignored.

Instead of meeting a paramount issue courageously and like a leader, Mr. Hoover continued his campaign to destroy confidence and thereby delay the return of normal conditions. Whether a man capable of these desperate devices, so detrimental to the public interest, is fit to lead the United States in critical days admits of but one answer.

With the triumph of Roosevelt assured, Mr. Hoover and the rather small fry supporting him on the stump are concentrating on an effort to weaken what confidence has survived the stupidities of his administration, and to intimidate the people. Every administration speech today is a blow at confidence in the business and financial fabric of the nation.

The President's Pretty Tale

Some of these attempts of Hoover and Mills to destroy confidence have indeed been desperate. The President's imaginative tale of how he played the hero solitary and alone, and saved the gold standard when we were within two weeks of being forced to abandon it, has now been proven false to the satisfaction of every intelligent business man. Carter Glass, whose Federal Reserve System has done all the saving that has been done under the Hoover Panic, has demolished the President's pretty tale.

The other hobgoblin stories are brazen misrepresentations of the facts, as we repeatedly have demonstrated here.

But Mr. Hoover's attempt in his New York speech, made under the approving eye of Wall street and the international bankers there, to make any one but morons think that Mr. Roosevelt would and will destroy American institutions probably sounded the depths of Mr. Hoover's capacity for such things. And he has a great capacity in that direction.

Mr. Hoover Understands The System

There is only one way to make that speech make sense at all. He dwelt on the "American system." He did not dwell on American institutions or on the traditional American principles of government.

There has been no President in our history to whom we would have gone with less confidence for a definition and explanation of American institutions and principles than to Mr. Hoover. They had never interested him for a single second up to the moment he shook the dust of America from his feet as a mere boy. He never gave them a thought during the greater part of his mature manhood, spent under the British flag in British business. He was so devoted to American institutions that he never even voted until he was far in his forties. Mr. Hoover's background has not been such as to justify any confidence in his capacity even to explain the meaning of American principles or the significance of American institutions.

But Mr. Hoover spoke of the "system" that Mr. Roosevelt would destroy.

He understands the "system." It is a system of privilege and governmental pillage that has been built up in defiance of our traditional principles, and this "system" it is, which made the panic inevitable. The Insull monstrosity was an important part of the "system." The plan of the power combines to steal the power resources of the people is in the "system."

We are going to end that "system" that we may save American institutions built on the American principle of fair play to all men and the protection of the public interest.

Mr. Hoover was not speaking for American institutions; he was speaking for the "system."

Another List For Mr. Hoover

It was scarcely in keeping with the intellectual dignity of the presidency for Mr. Hoover to indulge so flagrantly in personalities, but personalities invite personalities. He sought to show by mentioning names of Progressives supporting Mr. Roosevelt that the latter's election would destroy the American concept of government. I have read his list. There is not a man among those mentioned who could not teach Mr. Hoover the significance of Americanism for years without stuffing for the purpose.

Every one of them stands for the rights of the whole people, and for the ending of privilege for a few at the expense of the many, and these are dangerous to Mr. Hoover's "system." Thank God for that.

But the demagogy, the cheapness of the performance was in the fact that along with these he did not mention as urging the election of Roosevelt the following:

Alfred E. Smith.
Newton D. Baker.
John W. Davis.
Bernard M. Baruch.
Gov. Ritchie.
Owen D. Young.

These make up the destructive forces that want to turn Mr. Hoover out. Mr. Hoover cannot duplicate that list from among those supporting him on the stump.

The Saviors of The System

Who are the saviors of the "system" for whom Mr. Hoover spoke? The heads of the power combines who want to exploit the nation to the tune of billions; the international bankers who want to transfer the debts of 11 nations to the backs of American taxpayers and to continue the flooding of the American market with worthless foreign securities with the aid of the government; the Joe Grundys, the Pat Hurleys, the Bishop Cannons, the Dr. Pollings.

These personify the "American system" Mr. Hoover is afraid may cease to rule if Roosevelt is elected.

Another Promise! Is There No End?

There were amusing features to Mr. Hoover's New York visit. It was not conscious humor. Surely it was not conscious humor that impelled Mr. Mellon to make a political campaign speech for Hoover in Manchester, England. And Mr. Hoover clearly had lost all sense of humor when he said that he could see the restoration of prosperity if he is re-elected—he under whose administration we have scraped the bottom of ruin.

Another promise? Is there no end?

Who promised a chicken in every pot.

This is the man who misrepresented the condition of business and the market and thereby fooled millions to their ruin.

He misrepresented the state of unemployment and embarrassed private charity in its work. He issued monthly bulletins, for two years, announcing that prosperity was "just around the corner." It is notorious that so undependable became his assurances that every time he threw a word of cheer into the market the stocks went down—because his words had weight.

And now he tells us that he can see prosperity if he is re-elected.

It is because he has destroyed all confidence in his leadership and his administration that the restoration of prosperity demands his elimination from public life.
